4.7 Billion Tax Slash Approved by Senate Unit

Compromise Bill Substitutes New Schedule for House Bill Cuts

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A $4,772,600,000 cut in individual income taxes, retroactive to January 1, last night was approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

The compromise bill, scaling down the 6½ billion dollar House-approved cut, was adopted 10 to 1, with two votes not yet recorded. Democrats failed in an effort to substitute a four-billion dollar reduction.

Committee Republicans squeezed the bill to what they hoped was veto-overriding size by substituting a completely new schedule of percentage cuts for the Knutson bill rates. Every other provision of the House bill was adopted without major change.

New Reduction Rates

The new rates reduce taxes 12.5 per cent on the first $2000 of taxable income, and 7.4 per cent on net incomes between $2000 and $136,710. On income over that amount the cut would be 5 per cent.

The deeper House reductions followed an entirely different breakdown. These had cut taxes 30 per cent on income up to $1000. Persons earning from $1000 to $1400 received a 30 to 20 per cent reduction. From $1400 to $4000 the cut was 20 per cent. And on net income over $4000, the House cut was 10 per cent.

Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) estimated the Senate percentage cuts would lose the Treasury only $1,799,700,000, compared to the $3,637,200,000 cost of the Knutson reductions. In their substitute measure, committee Democrats tried and failed to hold the percentage cuts to one billion dollars.

Knutson Provisions Approved

Approved by the Senate committee without change were these additional relief provisions of the House-passed Knutson bill:

1. An increase of $100 in personal and dependency income tax exemptions. (Cost, 2 billion dollars.)

2. Permission for husbands and wives in all States to split their income for tax purposes. (Cost, $350,300,000.)

3. An additional exemption of $600 for taxpayers who are over 65. (Cost, $163,800,000.)

4. An additional exemption of $600 to taxpayers who are blind. Blind taxpayers over 65 can claim this exemption in addition to that based on age. (Cost, $100,000.)

The committee then voted to extend the "splitting" principle to estate and gift taxes, as in the House bill, at a revenue cost of $199,100,000. Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) moved to make this privilege retroactive to 1942, he was defeated, 8 to 5. Connally succeeded however, 10 to 0, in fixing the value of estates for tax purposes at the value at time of death. He failed, 8 to 3, to make the latter proviso retroactive.

District Escapes Snow With Cold, Clear Due Today

Washington escaped snow last night as the storm which it expected moved to the east.

A wintry air mass, however, entered the city at midafternoon, bringing heavy dark clouds, mist and rain, and a steady temperature drop expected to reach nearly 20 degrees early today.

The Weather Bureau said the storm passed the city too fast for snow and today was expected to be clear, cold and windy, with an afternoon high temperature of about 30 degrees.

Yesterday's high was 52 at 2:52 p. m.

Meyers Case To Be Given Jury Today

Last-Minute Attack On Constitutionality Of Subcommittee Fails

Courts and Congress might as well close up if perjury is allowed "to run amok," the Government told a Federal jury yesterday in summing up its case against Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers.

Both Government and defense completed their final arguments to the jury yesterday in the trial of the former Army Air Force procurement officer on charges of inducing perjury before a Senate subcommittee.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff said he would charge the jury this morning.

Meyers lost an eleventh-hour appeal to have the case thrown out of court on the ground that the Senate subcommittee was not legally constituted and therefore perjury could not be committed before it.

No Defense Witnesses

The defense rested early yesterday without calling a single defense witness, a point stressed by the prosecution in its summation.

Defense Counsel Robert T. Bushnell told the jury that the Government had failed to prove that Bleriot H. Lamarre, dummy president of Meyers' Aviation Electric Co., had lied under oath to the subcommittee.

Lamarre, the Government's key witness, has pleaded guilty to perjury and is awaiting sentence.

If Lamarre did not commit perjury, Bushnell argued, then Meyers cannot be convicted of persuading him to commit it.

He told the jury that if the 10 men and 2 women acquit Meyers on the "subornation of perjury" charge it will not be expressing approval of any of his other actions.

Assistant District Attorney Edward Molenof opened the final arguments for the prosecution.

Terming Meyers "a conniver" and "a high-living bird with champagne tastes," Molenof told the jury Meyers loved only "money."

"Money is his god," the prosecutor said.

Defense counsel pictured Meyers as "an old soldier" now being prosecuted by the mighty Government he faithfully served.

Parole Board To Take Time On Disputed 4

Hearing on Possible Revocation Planned But Not in Near Future

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Despite congressional pressure, the United States Board of Parole will take its time in considering whether or not to return four Capone mobsters to jail, Chairman Daniel W. Lyons indicated last night.

Before the House Executive Expenditures Subcommittee closed lengthy hearings into paroles of the four men, the Parole Board agreed to reconsider the case and see if the paroles should be revoked.

Board Wants "All Evidence"

Lyons told The Washington Post last night there were no plans to hold a board hearing for this purpose in the near future.

The Justice Department has ruled that the Parole Board can order the four back into custody if it is established that the men, as the subcommittee evidence indicates, concealed previous arrest records when applying for paroles.

Lyons said the Parole Board would have to have "all the evidence" before it calls a hearing.

Asked if the question of whether or not the gangsters reported all arrests in their parole applications could not be quickly settled by reference to existing records, Lyons agreed it could.

Reporter Testifies

But, he added, the board needs more evidence because perhaps there are other grounds on which the paroles could be revoked.

His statement was made after a newspaper reporter yesterday told the subcommittee that $20,000 was paid for a former Missouri legislator's efforts to have the men moved from one Federal prison to another, in advance of their parole.

Theodore C. Link of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch told a House Executive Expenditures Subcommittee that Paul Dillon, St. Louis lawyer, gave the money to the widow of the late Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady.

Link said Dillon, one-time campaign manager for President Truman, received the $20,000 from Willie Heeney, a Cicero, Ill., tavern operator who once was a partner of one of the gangsters.

Anti-Truman Bill of Tuck's Toned Down

Plan Now Permits Democrats to Have Two Slates on Presidential Ballot

Richmond, Va., March 11 (AP).—A toned-down version of Gov. William M. Tuck's anti-Truman bill came out of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee today.

The legislation, originally designed to keep President Truman's name off the Democratic ballot in Virginia, has now been changed to permit the name of the Democratic national convention nominee to appear on the November ballot without requiring his backers to file a nominating petition. The procedure will be virtually automatic, but a Virginia-backed Democrat may appear, too.

The committee revised the bill with the knowledge and approval of the Governor.

Provisions of Bill

The revised Senate bill would guarantee the President's name a place on the ballot if the national convention certifies him to the Virginia State Board of Election. If Mr. Truman is the national party choice, the convention must certify a slate of Truman electors.

The Virginia State Convention would certify its own slate and its own Democratic candidate in the event Mr. Truman or some other national figure obnoxious to the Southern viewpoint were named at Philadelphia.

Thus two sets of electors and two sets of presidential and vice presidential candidates, all bearing Democratic labels, would grace the ballot. Just so the party names aren't identical the provisions of the bill will be met. One word or one syllable difference is all that is required.

The committee rejected several other amendments, among them one that Republican electors named by a State convention would be expected to support the national party nominee for President.

A member of the all-Democratic committee said the Republican proposal "didn't get out of the infield."

The Governor and administration leaders in the Legislature believed they have retained the key point of the original program. That is to hold back Virginia's electoral votes as an inducement for more consideration by the national Democratic Party.

The committee gave unanimous approval to the bill—a committee substitute for a much stronger original that the Governor handed the Legislature to the accompaniment of a ringing address on States rights versus civil rights.

The bill apparently is slated to pass with only 12 or fewer votes against it in the 40-member body tomorrow.

Navy Modernizes Age-Old System Of Rating Sailors

The Navy yesterday modernized its age-old system of ranking enlisted men—many dating back to the days of "iron men and wooden ships."

Dropped overboard are such ratings as coxswain, ship's cook, seaman, 1st class, and seaman, 2d class.

The general revamping of the system will merge the present 198 ratings into 77 general service rates under 12 general categories.

Under the new system, seamen, 1st class, in the aviation branch become "airmen" and seamen, 2d class, "airmen apprentices." Ship's cooks become "commissarymen," carpenter's mates and painters, "damage controlmen," coxswains, "boatswain's" mates, 3d class," watertenders, "boilermen," and divers, "underwater mechanics."

Truman's Confidence in Peace Shaken by European Events; House Plans Single Aid Bill

GOP Leaders' Decision Threatens Time-Table for Recovery Program

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

House Republican leaders finally decided yesterday to wrap up all foreign aid programs into a single bill.

Their decision threatened to snarl the Senate-House time-table and to prolong the eventual conference between the two houses. For this reason alone it foreshadowed a possible delay in the final approval of the European Recovery Program until too late to influence the Italian elections on April 18.

The Administration was so alarmed at the almost inevitable delay beyond April 1, the original deadline, that President Truman asked Congress for 55 million dollars of additional stop-gap relief funds for France, Italy and Austria. The President pleaded that there must be no interruption in the pipeline of essential food and fuel at the end of this month, when existing relief funds for the three countries expire.

Authorization Exists

The request will involve new appropriations but no new authorization, since Congress last December appropriated only 522 million for stop-gap relief after authorizing 597 million.

Regardless of the President's new appeal, House leaders argued yesterday that the "single-package" foreign aid bill gave by far the best promise of quick action. They foresaw such intense pressure for aid to China, for example, that they thought it might be hard to pass the European recovery bill through the House without the added trimmings.

A combined bill would also provide a pretext for slashing the cost of ERP, as many Republicans have demanded, to make room for economic and military help to China, Greece and Turkey.

The Foreign Affairs Committee will try to get out a combined bill "as quickly as possible," Chairman Charles A. Eaton told reporters after meeting with Speaker Martin, Majority Leader Halleck and Republican members of his group. The committee plans to start writing the bill early next week.

"Two-Title" Bill

As the House leadership sees the combined measure, it would be a single bill with two "titles." One would embody the European Recovery Program, for which $5,300,000,000 has bee nasked for the first year, and also economic aid to China, for which 570 million dollars has been asked for 15 months.

The Senate expects to pass the ERP bill by Saturday night, but its Foreign Relations Committee has not yet started hearings on China, Greece and Turkey. The House, on the other hand, still has no ERP bill before it, but its Foreign Affairs Committee has held two months of intermittent hearings on everything.

It was anybody's guess last night how these two positions could be reconciled in time to prevent an interruption of supplies for Europe, with the Italian election only five weeks away.

The other part of the bill would include added military aid to Greece and Turkey, for which 275 million dollars has been asked, and military aid to China, a brand-new item, for which House Republicans are talking of about 100 million dollars.

On the Senate side, however, the House leaders' decision brought bewilderment and dismay.

Before he heard of it, Senator

Gen. Keyes Protests

Russian Wounded Vienna GI With 'Dum-Dum,' Army Says

Private Jack Grunden—the American soldier shot in the back by a Russian sentry in Vienna Monday—was wounded by an explosive "dum-dum" bullet, the Army said last night.

It made public a report from Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, American commander in Austria, stating that he had made a face-to-face formal protest of the action to the Soviet commander in Vienna at a meeting of the Interallied Commission yesterday.

Keyes gave additional details of the incident—described in news reports as the most flagrant of its kind. He stated that ballistics reports showed that Grunden's arm was shattered by a "bullet of explosive dum-dum type."

Such missiles are barred by the laws of international warfare. Keyes said the bullet was of "German or Russian origin."

The American commander also revealed that the Russian commander had lodged a protest with him contending Grunden and the other American involved were drunk and had started the incident. He asked that the Americans be punished.

Keyes said that "there is a complete distortion of facts" in the Russian protest and in news reports given to Austria newspapers by Tass, Soviet news agency. He declared that it shows the "Soviet attitude" toward the incident.

Reporting the facts to the Department of the Army, General Keyes said that Grunden, Pvt. Samuel Adelman of Baltimore, Pfc. Thomas G. Harper and three Aus-

President Adds That He Still Believes War Can Be Averted

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday that his confidence in ultimate world peace had been somewhat shaken.

He hurriedly added, however, that he still believed that we can have world peace. He said that we must have it because we can't afford to destroy the whole world with another world war.

Talking to reporters at a White House news conference, Mr. Truman said that the United States is opposed to including any Communists in the Chinese government. He said this country doesn't want a Communist government in China or anywhere else if it can help it.

Barrage of Questions

The Chief Executive said that it never was the policy of the United States to have Chiang Kai-shek broaden his government by taking in Communists. Under a barrage of questions, he insisted that this was so and that Secretary Marshall had never intended anything t othe contrary.

Mr. Truman's admission that his confidence in ultimate world peace had been shaken came after a reporter asked him whether recent events in Europe had altered his earlier outlook.

He said he felt very badly about the death of Jan Masaryk, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, who committed suicide after Communists took over his country. He said he had been well acquainted with Masaryk and would send a letter of sympathy to the Masaryk family.

Here he repeated the warning of Secretary Marshall, and said that Americans should be careful not to let their passions get the better of them until they know the facts.

Stalin Meeting Discounted

A reporter asked about rumors of a proposed meeting between the President and Generalissimo Joseph Stalin of Russia.

Mr. Truman said that there was no foundation to such rumors—that he had never been approached. He has always taken the position that if Stalin wanted a conference, he would be glad to see him in Washington.

Asked if the time had arrived for the United States to join Free Europe in some sort of military alliance, Mr. Truman said that he was not prepared to answer—that he had no comment.

The news conference veered toward foreign policy when a reporter reminded the President that the Truman doctrine for containing communism was a year old. Did he think, Mr. Truman was asked, that the doctrine needed to be expanded or strengthened?

Policy Declared Successful

The Chief Executive said that the so-called doctrine was the foreign policy of the United States, and that it was preliminary to the Marshall Plan for European recovery.

If the European Recovery Plan, now before Congress, is carried out promptly, he said, the purpose of the so-called Truman doctrine would be accomplished. So far, he said, it has been a success.

In response to a question, he agreed that "promptly" was the

Marshall Asks Aid Approval To Avert Chaos

Trying to Keep Level Head, He Says; Dulles Warns Reds of Recoil

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Marshall last night declared the world is in the midst of "a great crsis" and urged approval of the European Recovery Program to avoid chaos.

With President Truman in his audience, the Secretary addressed an ERP meeting in Washington Cathedral, sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches and the Washington Federation of Churches.

His words piled darkly on his Wednesday comment that the world situation is "very, very serious." The crisis, he told his audience last night is "inflamed by propaganda, misunderstanding, anger and fear.

"At no time has it been so important for cool judgment, for an appeal to one's self for a proper sense of justice, for a realization of conditions, material, political and spiritual, in other parts of the world," he said.

More than 2000 persons heard the program on the relationship of the church in America to the recovery program, heard Secretary Marshall assert the church and school must play "a very important part" in coping with world problems.

Earlier in the day, a petition urging congressional approval of the ERP and signed by 723 churchmen was presented to Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), president of the Senate, and to House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.).

Defense Chiefs In Conference On Security

Military Leaders Hold Extraordinary Parley at Key West

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A new American preparedness program is expected to come out of an extraordinary meeting of the high comand now underway at the Key West, Fla., Naval Base.

In announcing the conference late yesterday, officials termed it "historic" and forecast that the top commanders will return next week with the first overall strategic defense plan in United States history.

Based on this general blueprint, comprehensive program for the security of the United States under present world conditions will be drafted and presented to Congress next month, a high source revealed.

Defense officials agree with Secretary of State George C. Marshall that the world situation is "very, very serious," and declare that an extensive program to put our armed forces in shape to meet an emergency is mandatory.

Unquestionably, it will call for a large increase in air power and some means of compulsion to bring the Army up to strength. The ground forces now total only about 550,000 men—120,000 short of requirements—as the result of recruiting lags.

That Congress will be receptive to an expansion of the defense forces—particularly in air power—was shown by a statement of House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., yesterday. Martin declared that America must have the "strongest air force in the world, for defense and offense."

Air power will have "top priority" in appropriations, he said, while Army and Navy estimates

Britain to Get American Films Under New Pact

London, March 11 (U.P.)—The seven - month Anglo - American movie deadlock was broken today with an agreement that will restore the flow of American pictures to Britain and increase British dollar earnings in the United States.

The agreement, which will run for four years beginning June 14, provides that Britain will revoke its 75 per cent tax on foreign film profits in England and will let American producers keep their entire British earnings. About one third of the profits must remain in Britain, however.

The Americans, in return, consented to lift the embargo placed on Hollywood films after the tax was imposed last August, and will encourage wider distribution of British movies in the United States.

Number of Priests Named To Offices in Archdiocese

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, yesterday named more than a dozen Washington and Maryland priests to archdiocesan offices in his official household.

At the same time, he named the Rev. Edmond J. Fontaine pastor of St. Paul's Church, 15th and V sts. nw.

On the archdiocesan level, the Rev. James E. Cowhig of St. Patrick's Church here, a native Washingtonian, was made archdiocesan chancellor, and the Rev. Leo J. Coady of St. Francis de Sales Church, vice chancellor.

As officialis, head of the archdiocesan tribunal, was named the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral. The Rev. R. Robert Arthur of St. Patrick's Church, was named vice officialis.

The archbishop also appointed a board of 10 consultors.

St. Paul's Epistle on Liberty Moved Masaryk at His Death

"Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage."

These words of the Apostle Paul to the Galatians were believed in the mind of Jan Masaryk in the moments before his death Wednesday.

The Social Democrat newspaper Pravo Lidu, reported from Prague yesterday that a Bible had been found on Masaryk's bed in the Foreign Office rooms from which he plunged to death.

The Bible lay open to the Epistle of Paul to the Galatians, Chapter 5, which begins with the exhortation to stand fast in liberty.

The newspaper said verses 22 and 23 had been marked in pencil.

Verse 22 reads: "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith."

Verse 23 says: "Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law."

Following these verses, Chapter 6 begins: "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted."

It continues in this vein: "For every man shall bear his own burden . . . for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap . . ."

Anti-Inflation Program

British Industry Urges Year Dividend Freeze, Price Limits

London, March 11 (NYHT).—Britain's industrialists today recommended a one-year program to freeze dividends, put a ceiling on selling prices and boost production with their available plant to combat inflation.

The recommendations were contained in a report submitted to Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, by the Federation of British Industries, the Assiciation of British Chambers of Commerce and the National Union of Manufacturers. Sir Stafford had enlisted their help in his battle to fight inflation early last month.

Sir Norman Kipping, director general of the FBI, said tonight the industriatlists had urged that their program be handled on a voluntary basis. He said the government's recent price freezing orders applied only to less than 50 per cent of the products made in this country. "Our report applies to the lot," he said.

The industrialists' report was accompanied by a demand that the Government further reduce or postpone its own expenditure in all categories not strictly essential to the country's survival. Otherwise, it said, "no lasting improvement in our fundamental economic position can be achieved."

The report said that shortages of components and materials, as well as restrictions on capital expenditure and shorter working hours, made price reductions impossible at present.

At least 20,000 firms are represented by the 300 trade associations consulted by the three national industrial organizations in drawing up their report.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Dr. Jan Papanek

Dr. Jan Papanek, 52-year-old Czechoslovakian delegate to the United Nations, who accused Russia of violating Czechoslovak independence, is known among reporters and fellow diplomats as a quiet, sincere, hard-working man with an intense devotion to democratic ideals.

Dr. Papanek

During debates in the Assembly or on the Economic and Social Council, to which he was a delegate during Czechoslovakia's membership, he has always made his points firmly but in soft-spoken words. In his informal talks with reporters he has always been genial and helpful.

A tall man with a wide streak of gray running through his heavy shock of black hair, Dr. Papanek has seemed to shy away from the delegates' lounge and other centers where the diplomats and reports gather, since the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia on February 22. On that day he replied with only one word when asked by a fellow diplomat how he felt. The word was "rotten."

Studied Law in Paris

Dr. Papanek was born in Brezova. He studied law in Paris and at The Hague and took degrees at the University of Paris in 1922 and at the Charles University of Prague in 1928. He began his diplomatic career in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and became commercial attache of the Czech Embassy in Budapest in the early twenties.

It was while he was in Budapest that he married his American wife, the former Miss Betka Papenek of Chicago, who in 1926 was visiting relatives in Prague. The next year, Dr. Papanek came to the United States as Secretary of the Czech Legation in Washington.

In 1932 he returned to the Czech capital as parliamentary secretary to Dr. Edward Benes, then Minister of Foreign Affairs, but came back to America in 1936 as Consul in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Represented Dr. Benes

When the Germans occupied his country in 1939, Dr. Papanek became personal representative in the United States to President Benes and acted as director of the Czech government information service in New York.

In 1945 he went to San Francisco to help draw up the U. N. Charter and since then has taken a part in many major U. N. activities. He was acting president of the Economic and Social Council during its fifth session and as outgoing president opened the current session.

Dr. Papanek belongs to no political party.

He lives in upper Manhattan. The Papaneks have no children.

Czech Regime Eligible to Seek World Fund Loan

By The Associated Press

The new Communist-dominated Czhecoslovakian government has been declared eligible to apply for economic assistance from the $7,961,000,000 International Monetary Fund, Managing Director Camille Gut said yesterday. But he declined to predict what the fund's attitude would be toward any such request.

Gutt told a news conference that if the fund's 14-member board of directors approves, Czechoslovakia can withdraw one-fourth of its 125-million-dollar quota.

Gutt said J. V. Mladek, who has represented Czechoslovakia since the fund began operations last March, continues to attend all meetings and has given no indication of a change in status since the Communists took over in Prague.

Papanek Seeks U. N. Sponsor In Red Attack

Lake Success, N. Y., March 11 (U.P.).—Jan Papanek of Czechoslovakia will urge one of the United Nations to sponsor his sidetracked attempt to indict Russia in the U. N. for engineering the Communist coup in Prague, Papanek said today.

Speculation promptly centered on the United States as the nation most likely to consider Papanek's request.

Papanek's own attempt to have the U. N. Security Council debate the Czech crisis was turned aside by U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie. Lie ruled in effect Papanek no longer represents the Czech government.

Papanek said Lie's action recalled the League of Nations "sell-out" of Czech President Edouard Benes when the Nazis were preparing to take over Czechoslovakia in 1939.

He said he was filing a formal protest.

"The United Nations cannot call me a private person," said Papenek, adding that he represented "the Czechoslovak republic as it existed before February 20"—when the Communists took over.

"In 1939 when the Germans took over my country, Benes asked to have this terrible matter placed on the agenda of the League, just as I am doing now. The secretary general of the League refused because he said Benes was just "a private person!"

[Papanek told the New York Herald Tribune he would try the "little assembly" if the Security Council fails to help. He declared he would seek to occupy the vacant Czech seat in the "little assembly" on Monday. The Czechs and the Russians have boycotted the organization from the start.]

Red Drive Predicted in Austria Next

Vienna, March 11 (AP).—Observers predicted tonight Communists in Austria, a neighbor of Czechoslovakia, soon will begin an all-out drive against the coalition government of Chancellor Leopold Figl.

It was 10 years ago today that Austria was forcibly joined to Adolf Hitler's German Reich.

Government sources said a wave of Communist-inspired strikes is expected throughout Austria next week. According to the informants, the work stoppage might be brought about by groups similar to the Czech action committees.

The first step in the Communist campaign, it was suggested, would be to blame the critical food situation on Socialist Food Minister Otto Sagmeister.

Apparently the Communists have given up their previous attempts to woo Socialist support in Austria, the informants said.

The rightist People's Party and the Socialists are the two major parties of the country. The Communists hold only 4 of the 165 seats in Parliament. The People's Party has 85 seats and the Socialists 76. The Communists withdrew from the government last December.

Government quarters have received reports Communists cells in Austrian factories, particularly in the Russian occupied zone, have been stirring up discontent the past few weeks.

Czechs Announce Suicide Of Another Party Leader

Prague, Czechoslovakia, March 11 (AP).—The suicide of another National Socialist party official was revealed today as the Czech parliament gave Communist Premier Klement Gottwald an unanimous vote of confidence.

Police said Josef Herot, former regional secretary of the National Socialist party, killed himself in Ostrava prison where he was said to have confessed participating in an "espionage network." No details were given.

Gottwald won his vote with 67 members of parliament absent and while black banners and tricolors flew at half staff in memory of Jan Masaryk, the Socialist foreign minister, whose death plunge of yesterday remained as big a mystery as ever.

The vote was in effect approval of Gottwald's sweeping Communist program and signalled that his new "popular peoples democracy" was in full motion.

The deputies showed they knew how to vote. After two organizers of the Cominform, Communists Rudolf Slansky and Stefan Bastovansky, had spoken, Chairman Josef David called for the vote for the government.

Every hand was raised.

He called for opposing votes.

Not a hand was raised.

He called for a show of hands of those abstaining. Not a hand.

Thus was approved, in effect, the program to nationalize every industry and enterprise employing more than 50 persons, to restrict individual land holdings to about 250 acres and distribute the rest to peasants, and cut taxes for workers, small shopkeepers and peasants.

Tomorrow, the program calls for legalizing the activities of the action committees which purged parties, government departments, industries and every phase of Czechoslovak life.

There was no indication of the whereabouts of the 67 absent from Parliament.

Eduard Benes was still President, but resting at his country home and apparently communicating with no one.

Police said Herot's confession gave the Communist Ministry of Justice the last necessary link to prosecute Prokob Drtina, former minister of justice; Peter Zenkl, former deputy minister; Vladimir Krajina, former secretary general, and other party officials.

Drtina was found injured near his home in what police said was an attempted suicide.

Deputies absent today included Josef Duchacek, Catholic Peoples Party leader; Vojta Benes, the President's brother; former Deputy Premier Jan Ursiny, and Josef Hodza, son of the one-time Premier.

[The United States Embassy was informed the government had confiscated a fifth issue of the United States Information Service bulletin, published by the State Department and containing American press comment on the Czechoslovak political situation.]

Masaryk will be laid to rest at a state funeral Saturday beside the grave of his father, Thomas G. Masaryk, first President of the republic.

The government's official account was that Masaryk was ill, suffered from insomnia, became overwrought on reading reproachful messages from friends in England and America and finally threw himself out the window.

By government account, this transition in Masaryk's mood was in the eight hours after ending a cheerful day by giving aides instructions for the work for the morrow.

key word in his statement about ERP.

"On the subject of United States policy toward China," a reporter asked, "is it still the policy of this Government to include Chinese Communists in the Chinese government?"

Mr. Truman said that he didn't know that was ever the policy of this Government. If it was, he said, it was news to him.

Statement on China Discussed

"You made a statement on China in December, 1945, advocating a broadening of the base of the Chinese government."

Mr. Truman agreed that he had and added that the statement was as good now as it was then.

"You mean the broadening of the base does not include taking Communists into the [illegible]onal government?"

It did not, Mr. Truman said with emphasis.

"What was the purpose of Secretary Marshall going to China?"

He went there, Mr. Truman said, in an endeavor to assist the Chiang Kai-shek government to meet the situation with which it was confronted.

"Secretary Marshall, just before he became Secretary of State, did recommend broadening the base so that Communists could be admitted?"

Meant 'Chinese Liberals'

The President said he didn't think that Marshall would want any Communists in the Chinese government. He added that we don't want a Communist government in China or anywhere else if we can help it.

There followed a discussion about the meaning of the word Communist as used in China.

Mr. Truman said that, when it came to broadening the base of government in China, this Government had in mind the inclusion of Chinese liberals. He said there was a great difference between the liberal element and the Communist element in China. The Communists, he said, believed in government from the top—a totalitarian state.

He said that there were a great many American-educated liberals in China. They are the intelligentsia of China, he said, and they are the people we are primarily interested in and would like to see included in the government.

"The distinction between a liberal and a Communist would apply in this country?" a reporter asked.

Mr. Truman said that this was a very good definition, that it fitted exactly.

Churchill Still Alive

London, March 11 (U.P.).—Scotland Yard said today an anonymous telephone caller warned police last night that Winston Churchill "will be murdered by midday" today, but the noon hour passed with no attempt being made on the former Prime Minister's life.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said the call was a "hoax."

Truman Hits Idea Of China Coalition

Denies U. S. Ever Favored Inclusion Of Communists in Government There

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman's declaration at his press conference yesterday that the United States never had favored inclusion of Communists in the Chinese government jolted Washington circles concerned with the Far East.

It had generally been assumed that the purpose of Secretary (then General) Marshall's mission to China in 1946 had been to effect a coalition Nationalist-Communist government.

A reporter inquired whether the official proposal t. "broaden the base" of the Chinese government had not meant bringing in Communists. Emphatically, the President replied it never had, and it did not mean that when the statement was issued from the White House, on December 18, 1945.

Mr. Truman said he stuck to his position that the policy was to broaden the base. But, he said, that meant bringing in liberal elements.

The discussion over this Government's China policy began the previous day, at a press conference of Secretary Marshall. He had made a statement widely interpreted as meaning that the United States still favored inclusion of Communists.

But yesterday, just before the White House conference, the State Department issued a statement referring to "misunderstandings" of Marshall's remarks.

It said that when Marshall was questioned on this point, "he replied that the Communists were now in open rebellion against the government and that this matter (the determination of whether the Communists should be included in the Chinese government) was for the Chinese to decide, not for the United States Government to dictate."

Marshall himself, at the end of his mission to China, issued a report on January 7, 1947, describing repeated efforts to bring the Nationalists and Communists together. He said the "salvation" would be the assumption of leadership by the "liberals" in the Chiang Kai-shek government and "in the minority parties." He also spoke of the fact that there were "liberals" among the Communists and implied that these were not real dyed-in-the-wool doctrinaires.

Finally, he said that it was to be hoped that "the door will remain open for Communists . . . to participate."

But State Department spokesmen indicated last Wednesday that this meant participation only in a parliament, not in cabinet status or executive powers.

As recently as last February 21, however, U.S. Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart said the best solution of the problem was the resumption of negotiations between the Nationalists and the Communists.

Defense Chiefs Talk Strategy

cannot be cut. The Administration's defense budget may have to be raised, he indicated.

Two reasons account for the failure to date of defense chiefs to come forward with a new military security program — admittedly needed in the light of the shaky condition of world peace.

One Reason Tactical

One is tactical—to permit the political and economic phases of the security program—the Marshall plan—to be acted on by Congress first. The big outlays required by the military phase would greatly complicate that issue.

The other is that the Army, Navy and Air Force have been unable to agree within the Joint Chiefs of Staff on their roles and missions. That was one of the main aims of unification—the elimination of duplication of forces between the Army and Navy.

Until it was determined "who did what with what," the three services could not prepare accurate estimates of their needs that Congress would accept. No one could say how many warplanes the Air Force and Naval Aviation should have until a firm decision was made of the wartime missions of the two.

Similarly, the size of the Army depends on a ruling on the exact role and strength of the Marine Corps.

Vital Rulings Being Made

Such decisions—among the most vital in the history of the armed services—are now being made at the "Little White House" at Key West. With civilian heads of the forces not present, Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal is sitting down with the military heads of the Army, Navy and Air Forces. If they cannot agree, he says he will make the decisions himself.

Present are: Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the President; Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army chief of staff; Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, chief of naval operations; Gen. Carl Spaatz, Air Force chief of staff; Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, director of plans and operations, Army general staff; Lieut. Gen. Lauris Norstad, deputy chief of the USAF staff; Vice Admiral Arthur W. Radford, vice chief of naval operations; Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, director of the joint staff; Mr. W. J. McNeil, special assistant to Secretary Forrestal, and Capt. Charles A. Buchanan, USN, Forrestal's aide.

Marshall Says Aid Is Urgent

christian principles which underlie our civilization," Marshall said.

"This faith in our ideals is particularly important when we are forced to be realistic in face of an extremely serious world situation."

U. S. Misunderstood Abroad

Marshall said that virtually every current action of the United States "is misunderstood by some abroad."

"In the midst of this turmoil, complicated by the distractions of an election campaign, it is important to express one's feelings on the situation in moderate terms," Marshall said, adding:

"In the midst of this clamor of propaganda and some times reckless statements, I personally, in my responsibility as Secretary of State, have tried to keep a level head."

The meeting was arranged by Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council and brother of Senator Taft (R., Ohio).

Another speaker, John Foster Dulles, said Soviet leaders, in their European offensive, "are creating a terrible future danger, for people who have known freedom will not always be docile under despotism."

ERP Can Aid U. S., Too

Dulles, an adviser to the United States delegation in the United Nations, said the European recovery program can be made an American recovery program as well.

"It will be that if it evokes vision and sacrificial effort such as enabled our founders to make our nation great," Dulles said.

Dulles, a native Washingtonian who was one of Woodrow Wilson's legal advisers at the Versailles Peace Table, is chairman of the policy committee of the Federal Council's department of international justice and good will.

President Truman came to the service accompanied by his naval aide, Captain Robert L. Dennison. Wearing a light gray suit, hat and topcoat, the President was greeted at the North Transept entrance by Bishop Angus Dun, of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, and Bishop John S. Stamm, Federal Council vice-president and a prelate of the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Bishop Dun, in his address, said:

"God forbid that we should be so niggardly, so guarding of our abundance that we delay until it is too late and do half-heartedly what needs to be done whole-heartedly. We have been whole-hearted in the terrible works of war. Shall we be half-hearted in the rebuilding of our broken world?

Bishops, moderators and other officials of various denominations marched in the procession, in which Dulles and Marshall walked together. Before the service, Dulles startled a Cathedral choir boy, 10-year-old Jonathan Rickert, by asking him to get in the picture that photographers were "shooting" of him and Marshall. Jonathan, a student at St. Alban's School, stood blushingly between the two personages while flash bulbs popped.

House Plans Single Aid Bill

Vandenberg warned the Senate that "we cannot wait much longer, for the hour of 12 is about to strike." And Senator Lodge pointed to the coming test at the Italian polls, saying "we are being crowded all over the world by conspiratorial activities coming out of Moscow."

The Senate itself spent seven hours disposing of amendments to ERP, and will be ready today to tackle a crucial amendment by Senator Taft to cut the first year's authorization to $4,000,000,000. To satisfy Senators Brooks (R., Ill.), Ball (R., Minn.), and other sponsors of lost amendment, Vandenberg offered to put new language into several sections of the bill, and the Senate agreed.

Aid for Private Relief

One addition was a provision that ERP funds may be used to pay for the ocean transportation of private gift packages or private relief supplies to countries receiving relief grants. By agreement with the recipient governments, local currencies may be used to pay for the postage of gift packages within the European countries.

This will make it cheaper for individual Americans to send gift packages, which Vandenberg called "the finest missionary work being done" to build good will for the United States abroad.

Another new provision specifies that the proposed Special Ambassador to the Marshall Plan countries will be "the representative of the Administrator" and will get his instructions from the Administrator in Washington, under procedures to be worked out with the Secretary of State.

Brooks' Amendment Defeated

This was inserted in place of Senator Brooks' amendment, defeated by a 52-to-25 rollcall, to make the Special Ambassador a mere "agent-general" without diplomatic title or political status.

Still another change directed the administrator, among his other duties and powers, to allocate supplies to "specific projects" submitted by the European countries. This was one of two amendments proposed by Senator Ball; the other, rejected by voice vote, would have separated relief from recovery items in the appropriating of funds.

What gave the bill's sponsors the most trouble yesterday—more than two hours of it—was a sweeping proposal by Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) to turn all recovery aspects of ERP over to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on a "private enterprise" basis. Vandenberg firmly opposed the plan, saying it would undo eight months of intensive work on ERP. Capehart was willing to have it come up for a vote today, and there was every prospect of its overwhelming rejection.

Straight Opposes Wallace on Europe Aid

New York, March 11 (AP).—Michael Straight, who succeeded Henry A. Wallace as editor of the New Republic magazine, today indorsed the European recovery program as proposed by Secretary George C. Marshall.

Writing in the current issue of the magazine, Straight took a position directly opposed to that of Wallace.

The European recovery program, Straight said, "is one positive aspect of our policy that is based on world unity and that can lead America and the United Nations back to one world. As such, it deserves support."

Another Balkan Diplomat Quits

The list of Balkan diplomats who have cut themselves away from their Soviet-dominated governments grew again yesterday with the resignation of Mircea M. Vasiliu, third secretary of the Romanian Legation.

Vasiliu resigned at 6 p. m. Wednesday in a cable to Bucharest and yesterday morning placed a letter in the State Department in which he gave his reasons for the step. The State Department had not released the letter last night and Vasiliu would not discuss its contents.

"I hope to be able to stay in this country," he told The Washington Post. "I love the country and like the people and here are the things I believe in. It is a free country."

The former diplomat is a bachelor and has no relatives in the United States. He said he did not know what work he would follow and had no definite plans for the future.

Western European Pact Near Reality

Brussels, Belgium, March 11 (AP).—The delegates of France, Britain and the Benelux countries expect to put the finishing touches tomorrow to the completed draft of a pact binding them to united action for 50 years.

Except for the approval of two minor points and the formal signing, the dream of British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Belgian Premier Paul Henri Spaak of a western European union balancing the eastern bloc is a reality.

The Luxembourg delegate, Pierre Elvinger, said he considered the treaty "completed for all practical purposes."

The pact will be stronger than the original plans of Britain and France, and broader and more inclusive than originally contemplated by Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, the Benelux countries.

Militarily, the pact binds its five members to mutual defense and mutual consultation if the peace of Europe is threatened.

Politically, it commits them unequivocally to western ideas of democracy.

Economically, it groups them into a great sphere of mutual profit and development, and includes the world's greatest colonial possessions.

Socially and culturally, it pledges them to improve the standards of living.

It will be open to other nations whose applications are approved by the original members.

A British delegate said it "covers everything from the spiritual to the realistic."

The formel signing of the document by the five Foreign Ministers probably will take place late next week.

GI Wounded By 'Dum-Dum'

trians girls were walking on the sidewalk in the middle of a boulevard on which two hotels used by the Russians and Americans as billets face.

A Russian soldier with a bandaged head came out of the Soviet hotel and intercepted them, said Keyes. He made "a filthy remark" which was understood by the girls, but the Americans "attempted to proceed, disregarding the Russian."

The latter grabbed Private Harper, Keyes went on; a scuffle ensued, and Grunden attempted to separate them. The Red soldier then grabbed Grunden, and during this second scuffle pulled a pistol from his pocket and fired in the air. Grunden was thrown to the ground and kicked.

A Russian sentry, with fixed bayonet, rushed over, prodded the fallen American soldier with his bayonet, hit him with the butt of the rifle and then shot him in the back, said the report.

The first Russian fired his pistol at one of the Austrian girls as she and the others ran for protection of the American billet, declared the report. There they phoned for military police.

An unidentified American doctor and an Austrian civilian doctor gave first aid, said Keyes, but at no time during the 45 minutes Grunden lay on the street "did the Russians give any assistance or first aid."

"The Criminal Investigation Division arriving on the scene to investigate were completely encircled by Russian bayonets and not permitted to move," Keyes went on. "They were informed that the Russian Kommandatura would provide information later in the day."

The Russian account of the incident claimed that "three drunk American soldiers" attempted to disarm the Soviet sentry at the hotel. In the fight, they declared, one of the Americans hit the Russian with a bottle.

According to the Soviet commandant, the sentry then fired "in self defense" and wounded the American. First aid was rendered on the spot, it was said, and "he was turned over to the American element."

Grunden's condition was reported as "improved" and that the doctors "have high hopes of saving his arm." However, he is still receiving blood transfusions and is not in condition for much questioning, it was said.

Keyes said that a preliminary protest was made to the Soviet commander and that at yesterday's meeting of the Vienna Interallied Commission, he presented a reply to the Soviet letter of protest, "requesting the Soviet member to take action to prevent such incidents."

French Back Foreign Policy

Paris, March 11 (NYHT).—The French National Assembly approved the government's foreign policy by 419 votes to 183 after a debate this afternoon during which Foreign Minister Georges Bidault defended the right of western Europe to organize for its own defense.

The negative votes were cast by the Communist group, which protested the organization of a "western bloc" of European states. Bidault rejected the protest.

"We want to live in freedom," said Bidault, "and we are going to say so all together."

hand-tailored suits in slate gray Flannel

Because a gray flannel suit is so important in your wardrobe, it should be chosen with especial care. These are soft and rich flannels. The slate gray color is a bit different from the usual, somewhat lighter in tone and infinitely smart. The three-button coat hangs with casual grace, and like the trousers and vest, is hand-tailored with custom detailing. Really fine suits, rendered ideal by the perfection of Saltz F Street fitting.

Swiss Assembly Denounces Reds

Resolution Cites Peril to Democratic State; Dutch Plan Special Police Force

London, March 11 (AP).—The death plunge of Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk and other events in his country had their effect all over Europe today.

The Swiss National Assembly in Bern voted 187 to 7 for a resolution condemning Switzerland's Communists and recommending the government act vigilantly "for the protection of the state."

The resolution, supported by all parties except the Communists, said "the past weeks show with frightening clarity what dangers threaten a democratic state not determined to defend itself against attacks from within."

The noisy debate was set off by a congratulatory telegram sent to Czechoslovak Premier Klement Gottwald by the Swiss Communist leader Leon Nicole.

Dutch Justice Minister J. M. Maaseveen said at the Hague the government would announce within two days the formation of a special police force "to combat extremist activities from whatever side they may come."

The Australian opposition leader, R. G. Menzies, said in Canberra his (Liberal) party will "advocate and support a complete ban upon the Communist Party and all other organizations which are Communist in aim or method, or are in substance controlled by the Communists."

Menzies said "recent events have made quite clear that Australian communism is treasonable, anti-democratic and destructive."

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault in a speech to the National Assembly mentioned Communist actions in recent months and said:

"Time presses to organize what remains of Europe."

His foreign policies were upheld by a vote of 419 to 183, with the Communists voting in opposition.

Several more Czechoslovak officials resigned abroad. Jan Novotny, Social Democrat member of the Czech Parliament, left his plane at Rome while en route home from India and said he was resigning. He left his baggage aboard the plane. A Communist minority had seized power in a coup long prepared, he said.

The Czechoslovak Legation at the Vatican announced the resignation of its first secretary, wealthy Prince Frantisek Schwarzenberg, leader of Czech youth in the underground resistance to the Nazis during the war.

The Czechoslovak Minister to Norway, Emile Walter, resigned his post, declaring "I do not find it possible to cooperate" with the Prague government."

Nicholas Viest, Czechoslovak trade representative attached to the London Embassy, announced his resignation.

Russia Orders Improvement In Industries

Moscow, March 11 (U.P.).—Vast improvements in the food and consumer goods industries of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic were ordered today and the Ministry of Housing and Construction was rebuked for failing to fulfill its quota during the last two years.

Ministry of Finance A. M. Safonov told the republic's Supreme Soviet last night the government expected a 15 per cent increase in tax revenue from industry this year.

The Russian republic is the largest of 16 that make up the USSR.

Safonov mentioned briefly that 590 million rubles (73 million dollars) had been alloted for scientific research in the republic for 1948.

Safonov delivered a stinging rebuke to the housing ministry, although he pointed out that over 885,000 new homes had been built and four million collective farmers had been moved into them.

He said one of the building trusts had fulfilled only 32 per cent of its construction and completed only 16 per cent of the quota.

U. S. Report

Greeks Hit For Failure To Attack

Athens, Greece, March 11 (U.P.).—The American Aid Mission said in a blunt and critical report tonight that the Greek army had failed to take the offensive against the Communist-led guerillas despite its great superiority in size and weapons.

As a result, the report said, rebel forces were "enabled not only to increase their marauding activities but also to increase their strength through forcible recruitment."

The report, prepared by Dwight P. Griswold was to be published in all Athens newspapers, with the United States bearing the cost.

It answered the Greek argument that the army was not sufficiently equipped, by declaring:

"It is an indisputable fact proved in every engagement that the firepower of the Greek army has been overwhelmingly superior to that of the bandits (guerillas)."

The report praised the Greek army's "magnificent fighting men" and said the United States mission was still anticipating a "brilliant offensive action."

[The report, revealed the 300-million-dollar aid program is barely holding the line against the Communist-led rebellion the New York Herald-Tribune said.

[The funds, which were to have lasted until June 30, will have been spent by April. In addition, the Greeks have received 38 million dollars in post-UNRRA shipments and a 25-million-dollar credit for surplus supplies. Altogether, American aid to Greece since the end o fthe war amounts to $814,500,000.

[The major result of this expenditure has been the containment of Communist rule to the mountain areas of Greece the report indicated.]

Meeting Set Tonight

Arab Masks Bomb Attack With U. S. Flag; Kills 12 and Injures 100 at Jewish Agency

Jerusalem, March 11 (AP).—An Arab who masked his attack behind a stolen American flag bombed the heavily guarded Jewish Agency Building today, killing 12 persons and wounding nearly 100 others, an agency spokesman said.

Several of the injured were in a critical condition.

Driving an automobile from the United States consulate, the attacker entered the agency compound, ignited the explosives and walked away.

Seconds later a terrific blast ripped the structure.

Had Proper Credentials

(The person who drove the car was "in uniform with proper credentials," MacAtee said. He added neither the consulate driver nor whoever was operating the car had been located.)

The Jewish Agency said: "The driver was said by the guards to be well known to them as one of the consulate drivers. For that reason, the car was allowed in without the usual further check."

An Arab source said the consulate driver delivered the car to Arabs involved in the attack and then went into hiding.

Reprisal Talk Spreads

Talk of a possible Jewish reprisal attack spread through Jerusalem.

Leib Jaffe, 72-year-old director of the Keren Hayessod (National Colonization Fund), was reported killed. His son, Benjamin, was injured.

Elsewhere Arab snipers killed a British soldier and wounded five others.

2 New Disputes

U. S., Russia Clash Again On Palestine

Lake Success, March 11.—(NYHT).—Russia and the United States clashed twice today over Palestine, with the second attack exploding in the Economic and Social Council when Russia charged in effect that the United States was shrinking from partition enforcement because of political considerations and oil interests in Arab countries.

Earlier today, sticking to the stand that parition must be carried out and contending that efforts to conciliate Arabs and Jews probably would fail, Russia threatened to walk out of the big power talks on Palestine if the United States insisted on bringing Arabs and Jews into the meetings for consultation.

A third development was the British disclosure that the Palestine treasury will show a big deficit on May 15, and that from six to seven thousand armed Arabs have already slipped into Palestine.

Meanwhile, the United States issued a 39-word statement asserting the American position on Palestine has not changed. It was intended as a denial of the Russian charges.

Built-In Suspenders

Ipswich, England, March 11 (U.P.).—John White, a tailor, announced today that he had invented a man's shirt with built-in suspenders. No details were given.

Jewish Recruiter Here Voices Faith in Palestine Defenders

A leader of a group that supports Palestine's Jewish extremists yesterday said he seeks aid for Palestine's defense, "but we do not want American soldiers to die there."

Wartime British Army Maj. Samuel Weiser, who is recruiting a Hebrew Legion to fight in Palestine, spoke to reporters in the offices of the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation, 2315 Massachusetts ave. nw.

The committee is not a part of such official groups as the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Major Weiser, heavy-set, mustached and a prewar English textile producer, said, "It must be emphasized that we are capable of defending ourselves if we are not prevented from procuring the necessary arms and if the British Empire withdraws its lavish military support from the Arab and Nazi bands in the Middle East."

"We do need certain technical and specialized military skills," said Weiser, "and there is every indication that such assistance can be obtained on a volunteer basis from the thousands of earnest supporters of Hebrew liberation in all lands."

No "direct attempts" are being made to do any recruiting here," said Peter H. Bergson, spokesman for the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation.

"Of course," said Bergson, "if there are volunteers who can get to Palestine and participate in the defense, that's up to them."

The committee, he said, is listing names of those who volunteer, while efforts are being concentrated on passage of a bill introduced by Representative Andrew L. Somers (D., N. Y.) which would amend the 1940 Neutrality Act to preserve citizenship for Americans who go to Palestine in a defense force to maintain peace.

Major Weiser said, the Hebrew Legion, which he now commands, has 4000 former servicemen members in England pledged to relinquish British citizenship to become citizens of a Hebrew Republic, and 4000 more in France and South Africa.

Truman Hits 'Vicious Lie'

President Truman yesterday denounced as a "vicious . . . lie" a published report that he had said that New York Jews were disloyal to their country.

Columnist Drew Pearson printed a story earlier this week that the President had told a New York editor that the Jews of New York were disloyal to their country.

Without mentioning Pearson's name, the President said, and he permitted direct quotation:

"I thought I would not have to add another liar's star to that fellow's crown, . . . but it was a lie out of the whole cloth."

FCC Probes Charge Radio Slanted News Against Jews

The Federal Communications Commission disclosed yesterday that it is studying evidence on an allegation that a Los Angeles radio station ordered its news broadcasts to be "slanted," particularly in an anti-Semitic direction.

An FCC spokesman said the agency's secretary, T. J. Slowie, had telegraphed a Hollywood radio news writers' group for information on charges they made against station KMPC. The data, in the form of sworn statements by former KMPC news room personnel, was returned and is now under study.

Meantime, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, yesterday petitioned the FCC to revoke KMPC's license. He said it had ordered news comments "slanted in a manner which would stir up religious and racial hatred."

The Billboard, weekly amusement news magazine, first brought the story to light, by publishing the charges of the radio writers' group. In its latest edition. Billboard reported that three KMPC employes had resigned or been dismissed over differences concerning the alleged policy of the 50,000-watt station.

They are Clete Roberts, director of news and special events; George E. Lewin, news room manager, and Maurie Starrels, news editor.

The Billboard quoted a sworn statement of Starrels, and said the charges it contained were similar to those of the other two.

Starrels was quoted as swearing he was instructed by KMPC Owner G. A. Richards:

1. To emphasize, after the murder of gangster Bugsy Siegel, that Siegel was Jewish.

2. To be critical of Atomic Energy Commission Chairman David Lilienthal in newscasts; to play up his religion and foreign extraction; to emphasize statements critical of him and play down or not use incidents favorable to him.

3. To "go easy" on President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Act, "because nobody cares what he has to say."

4. To "ridicule on all possible occasions Henry Wallace," and link him to communism.

5. To give prominence in newscasts to the scandals involving Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, "emphasizing the fact that he was a Jew."

6. To play up unfavorable testimony regarding airplane builder Howard Hughes.

7. To use "very little" on the Palestine situation.

8. To "concoct a rumor that Edwin Pauley had Cabinet aspirations."

9. To show Gen. Douglas MacArthur "to advantage at all times possible."

In reply, Robert O. Reynolds, KMPC general manager and vice president, declared that the dismissals had nothing to do with "differences in viewpoint in the treatment of the news."

"Our complete file of newscasts," the station official continued, "is open for inspection and I am satisfied that, even with the closest of scrutiny, no bias or indication of slanting of news will be found in any of them."

Now's the time to Serve MORE FISH
Here's the Way to Prepare It...

Use your favorite fish fillets or steaks. Remember, fish lends itself particularly to frying. If the fish you select comes in large pieces, cut diagonally... about a fifth of a pound makes an average serving.

Rinse in water, cover with Golden Dipt. Shake off the loose particles and fry in deep fat, or pan fry until crisp and golden brown.

Golden Dipt is the complete breading mixture, containing milk, eggs and seasoning. It seals out the frying fats and seals in the delicate flavor.

Garssons Indicted With 3 Associates

Munitions Firm's Accounts Juggled To Effect Big Swindle, U. S. Charges

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—The Garsson brothers and three associates in a wartime Illinois munitions combine were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of swindling the Government of "large amounts" of money.

They did it, the Government charged, with a complex system of juggled accounts, kickbacks, and fictitious expense statements designed to hide excess war profits that were subject to partial recovery by the United States.

Named as defendants were the Erie Basin Metal Products Co. of Elgin, Ill., Henry M. and Murray W. Garsson, Allen B. Gellman, Joseph T. Weiss and Harry S. Glick, all of Chicago.

Gellman was president of Erie. The others were officers and directors, the three-count, 18-page indictment said.

It gave no total figure for the alleged fraud. But Frank H. Patton, special Justice Department prosecutor, said the Government expected to prove it lost "well over a million dollars."

The syndicate, started on a shoestring, held 78 million dollars in war contracts, Patton reported.

The Garsson brothers and former Representative Andrew J. May, wartime chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, were convicted last July of passing bribes. All have appealed their sentences.

Required under the Wartime Renegotiation Act to file profit and cost statements for Erie operations, the indictment said, the defendants had agreed to put Erie funds into new buildings for Illinois Watch Case Co. at Elgin and charge it to the Government.

The indictment charged the defendants agreed that Henry Garsson was to receive a loan from the Interstate Machinery Co., Inc., owned by Weiss and Gellman and their families, and pay it back with a $50,000 overcharge on machinery sold to Interstate.

There was also agreement, the Government said, that the Garssons and certain of their friends and relatives would get money from Erie Basin and Interstate by false claims for salaries and expenses.

In order to "conceal" and reduce the combine's profits, the indictment said, items totaling $136,230 had been improperly charged to Erie expenses over the fiscal years ended November 30, 1944, and November 30, 1945.

Immigration Warrant Served On New Eisler

New York, March 11 (AP).—Mrs. Gerhart Eisler appeared voluntarily today at the offices of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service and was served with an immigration warrant of arrest.

She was charged with "being illegally in the United States, on the ground that she had failed to maintain the exempt status of a visitor." She is a native of Poland.

Her husband has been described by a House committee as the Nation's No. 1 Communist. He is awaiting deportation proceedings.

26 Below in Minneapolis As Blizzard Hits Midwest

The mercury dropped to 26 degrees below zero in Minneapolis yesterday as the worst March blizzard in history hit the Midwest.

It was 36 below zero in Bemidji, Minn., and 30 below at Sibley, Iowa.

Heavy snows and cold disrupted highway, rail and air travel, closed schools and forced industry to suspend because of a shortage of gas supplies.

Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma were hardest hit with many cities reporting lowest March temperatures in history—with a range of from 10 below to 26 below.

Chicago had 9 inches of snow. Cleveland, Ohio, had 7 inches and the gas company shut off supplies to 600 industrial firms, forcing 5000 out of work.

Swirling snows swept northern Ohio, then blanketed western Pennsylvania.

The biting cold stretched from New Mexico to the Canadian border. Amarillo, Tex., had its coldest March day in 55 years—3 below zero.

Six men, snowbound for three days in an isolated oil well shack in central Kansas, made their way to Great Bend, Kans., with the help of a farmer and a tractor.

Author's Widow, 8 Dead in Asylum Fire

Asheville, N. C., March 11 (AP).—Fire roared through a mental hospital here early today and snuffed out the lives of nine women patients including the widow of Novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald.

They died as 20 others, some screaming, some calm, were led to safety.

Flames quickly engulfed the four-story Highland Hospital for Nervous Diseases. Wailing of some of the 29 women echoed over the spacious grounds. Firemen, police, nurses, doctors and townspeople rushed to the rescue.

But seven women were trapped on the upper floors. Two others removed by firemen died in a short while.

[The United Press said firemen were hampered in their rescue work because the hospital windows were chained to keep the patients from escaping. Several who got out were rounded up by townspeople.]

Some of those saved sat silently, some prayed and others were in hysterics.

It was the third fire in the hospital in less than a year.

Parole Board To Take Time

have denied the story in previous testimony.

Calls Sources Reliable

The committee is investigating whether any "bribery or corruption" was involved in the Federal Parole Board's release last August of Louis Campagna, Philip D'Andrea, Paul Ricca and Charles Gioe.

They served about one third of the 10 year sentences they received for a conspiracy to extort one million dollars from the movie industry by threats of violence.

Link said he obtained his information from three sources. He declined to name them. He described them as "underworld characters" who have supplied him with information on other occasions that "stood up 100 per cent."

The money was paid, he testified, "for Brady's efforts to obtain the transfer of these men" (the four parolees) from the Atlanta penitentiary to the Leavenworth prison.

Sheriff Named

Committee Chairman Hoffman (R., Mich.) remarked "I recall that Warden Sanford (of the Atlanta prison) objected to these transfers and made the statement he'd heard money had been paid."

Brady died in October, 1945. Link said St. Louis Sheriff John Dougherty went with Dillon when the lawyer gave the $20,000 in cash to Brady's widow.

Link said he was informed that Heeney brought $25,000 down from Chicago but that he didn't know what happened to the other $5000.

When Link refused to name his informants, Hoffman said "I don't believe as a matter of law that reporters have any such privilege." But he added, "I am not inclined to press the matter."

Link said he tried to persuade his informants to testify but that they were unwilling "mostly because of fear."

Recalled later, Link also testified that another St. Louis informant had told him that Dillon "had made a strenuous effort to get his own man appointed to the parole board." The appointment never was made, Link said.

Lawyer's Mother Heard

Another witness was Mrs. Mary Eben, a secretarial assistant at the White House and the mother of A. Bradley Eben, one of the defense lawyers in the gangsters' trial.

She said her son had never discussed the paroles with her. She also said "I don't believe the President knows me," explaining she is an assistant to an assistant to an assistant to the President.

Louis Greenberg, Chicago brewery owner, said he has known all four of the parolees for 10 years or more. He denied he had any part in obtaining their paroles or their transfer from Atlanta to Leavenworth.

Representative Busbey (R., Ill.) adjourned the committee hearings indefinitely, but said that in the absence of Chairman Hoffman (R., Mich.), he was unable to say whether they were finished. Other members said they knew of no more witnesses to be called.

4.7 Billion Tax Cut Urged

70.5 per cent of the bill's individual tax concessions would go to persons having income of $5000 or less, and the balance to higher bracket individuals.

Led by Senate Minority Leader Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.), the committee's Democrats first voted as a body for their own four billion dollar substitute. This would have retained the $100 increase in exemptions and split income privileges for married couples while holding the percentage cut to one billion dollars. This failed, 7 to 6, by a party line vote.

AWAIT VERDICT—Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers and his wife look from a taxicab after leaving United States District Court yesterday. The former Army Air Forces officer is charged with having induced a former business associate to lie to a Senate War Investigating Subcommittee. The case is expected to go to the jury today.

Bay to Be Resuryeyed For Fish-Net Locations

Annapolis, Md., March 11 (AP).—A resurvey of the Chesapeake Bay to locate pound, gill and fyke nets for catching fish will begin March 29.

The Tidewater Fisheries Department will make the survey, the first in eight years.

Violations of net setting regulations may be found as a result of the resurvey. Violators will be given 10 days to correct their settings in keeping with their licenses or they will be prosecuted.

De Valera Party Taken On 'Preview' Flight

Nashville, Tenn., March 11 (AP). A DC-6 on a "preview passenger flight" to San Francisco, landed here today to pick up former Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire.

The De Valera party flew here from Washington.

Today's "preview" flight is preliminary to the big planes' return to regular service next Monday.

The DC-6's were grounded voluntarily last fall after two fires.

'Williamsburg' Use Barred to Decorator

By The Associated Press

An Abingdon, Va., china decorator was told yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission that she can't use the word "Williamsburg" on her dishes unless she explains they are not authentic reproductions of the old Williamsburg pattern.

Mabel Cumbow Ruskin is operator of the Cumbow China Decorating Co. She also was forbidden to use the name of the historic town unless she says her dinnerware is not a reproduction of the dinnerware of Lieut. Gov. Alexander Spottswood.

Spottswood was a lieutenant governor of Virginia from about 1710 to 1722.

Bridge Names Proposed

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) proposed yesterday in a House bill that Washington's twin 14th st. bridges over the Potomac be named for Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Number of Priests Named To Offices in Archdiocese of St. Patrick's Church; the Rev. Joseph M. Moran, pastor of St. Thomas the Apostle Church; the Rev. Henry F. Graebenstein, pastor of the Holy Comforter Church, and the Rev. Joseph T. Kennedy, pastor of St. John's Church of Forest Glen, Md.

Bishop McNamara, Msgr. Buckey, Msgr. Dowling and Msgr. McAdams all served as consultors under the late Archbishop Michael J. Curley in the Archdioceses of Baltimore and Washington.

Rural leans for five Maryland counties also were among the appointments.

Named to these posts were: Father Kennedy of Forest Glen, for Montgomery County; the Rev. Edward H. Roach, pastor of St. Jerome's Church at Hyattsville, for Prince Georges County; the Rev. Francis G. Driscoll of St. Mary's Church, Bryantown, for St. Mary's, Charles and Calvert Counties.

Father Driscoll had been serving as dean for the last three counties under the Archioceses of Baltimore and Washington.

Father Cowhig, the new chancellor of the archdiocese, studied at St. Peter's Parochial School here and later attended St. John's College High School and Gonzaga High School here, taking his undergraduate studies at St. Charles College at Catonsvile, Md. He studied philosophy at St. Mary's Seminary in Balitmore and theology at the North American College in Rome, where he was ordained in 1935 by Francis Cardinal Machetti-Selvagiani.

Upon his return to the United States, he was first assigned to Our Lady of Victory Church here and in 1939 was transferred to St. Patrick's Church as assistant pastor and secretary of the tribunal. In 1945, he was made vice officialis.

The archdiocese's vice chancellor, Father Coady, was ordained by Bishop McNamara in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University in 1945 and is now second assistant at St. Francis de Sales Church.

45 Restaurant Operators Given Awards of Merit

Approximately 45 operators of food establishments here yesterday received certificates of merit from the Food Inspection Division of the District of Columbia Health Department.

The awards were accompanied Ashworth, director of the inspection division, citing tremendous advances here during the past five years in sanitation in food establishments.

To receive a certificate, a food handler must score 80 or more on weekly health inspections over a year's period and pass the Health Department's glass bacteria tests every week.

Ashworth said, when the inspections started five years ago, a routine glass inspection showed glasses containing as many as 520,000 bacteria, including those of tuberculosis and trench mouth. Now, he said, inspections show 84 per cent of the establishments have glasses with less than 500 bacteria per glass and 50 per cent show completely sterile glasses.

Mother Only Survivor in Crash Killing Son And 11 Others on Chicago-Miami Airliner

Chicago, March 11 (AP).—A badly burned 33-year-old mother—the lone survivor—remained in critical condition today unaware her son met flaming death in the crash of a Miami-bound airliner that killed 12 persons.

The Delta Airline's DC-4 plane, carrying some of its nine passengers to a Florida vacation, plunged from a few hundred feet and burned explosively last night one minute after it took off from the Chicago Municipal Airport.

Badly burned and both her arms and legs fractured, Mrs. Tripolino Meo, of suburban Oak Lawn, has not been told of her 9-year-old son, Alfred, jr., perished in the crash. Firemen found the boy's body clasped in the arms of stewardess Sue Young, who apparently tried unsuccessfully to save him. Both bodies were badly charred.

Mrs. Meo, who has been given opiates to dull her pain, said there was a "big flash" and then a "bump."

"I don't know which happened first, she said. "Then there was fire everywhere. My whole face was on fire. Everything was on fire.

"People were yelling. It was terrible. Where's Pudgy? Where's my baby?"

Pudgy was her only son. Doctors said that the information that her son died might jeopardize the "50-50" chance she has of pulling through.

Rescuers pulled Mrs. Meo and one other passenger from the fire alive. However, Ralph R. Levy, Chicago insurance broker, died a short time later. Mrs. Meo was on her way to Miami for her health.

The big four-engine plane, which has a capacity of 44 passengers, was "in trouble" shortly after the takeoff. The crew at the airport control tower said the plane went into a very steep climb. They called the fire department before the plane crashed.

Navy Plane Crash-Lands, 19 Aboard Escape Hurt

New Orleans, March 11 (AP).—A Wave's coolness was credited tonight with helping to save 19 aboard a naval transport plane as it crashed and burned near Donaldsonville, La., early today.

The passengers said that Wave Chief Specialist Rubinie Pappan of Pasadena, Calif., awaked them and guided them to safety after the plane struck. After the crash she reentered the blazing wreckage to make sure the pilot and co-pilots had escaped.

The Navy said Seaman First Class G. M. Copeland of Suffolk, Va., and Seaman First Class W. F. Radd, Bayonne, N. J. suffered slight shock in the crash, but no one was injured.

The plane was en route from Washington to Corpus Christi, Tex., when a mechanical trouble caused the crash. The crew consisted of Lieut. J. L. Scoggin, Dallas, Tex., pilot, Lieut. John Rue, California, Md., and Ensign Joe Lauback, co-pilots, and WAVE Chief Specialist Rubinie Pappan, Pasadena, Calif., and Seaman First Class Anthony N. Jembrysek, Plainfield, N. J., all stationed at Patuxent River, Md.

Among the passengers was Sergt. W. A. Ruff, USMC, Palo Alto, Calif., attached to the Quantico, Va., Marine Base.

Plane With 24 Aboard Makes Forced Landing

Dallas, March 11 (AP).—An American Airlines passenger liner bound for Los Angeles made an emergency landing here last night and its 20 passengers resumed the trip today in another plane.

Twenty-four persons, including a crew of four, were aboard the DC-4, which damaged a nosewheel in a take-off at Tulsa, Okla. The passengers learned after they were on the ground that five ambulances had been rushed to the field.

Democrats Warned Of 'Vicious Attacks'

Super Effort to 'Discourage' Voters, With Truman as Target, McGrath Says

By The Associated Press

Democratic Chairman McGrath said yesterday the party is under vicious attack, and must strike back hard.

He told a rally of Democratic leaders that critics have centered on President Truman and have "a supereffort under way to discourage Democrats."

"It is being viciously pursued," he added.

McGrath's words at the closed-door session of the executive committee were relayed to newsmen by Publicity Director John M. Redding. He said McGrath, in naming sources of opposition, was referring to Communists and Republicans, not Southern Democrats.

"He told them," Redding said, "that we are in the middle of a world crisis, a struggle for leadership, and the stakes are high. He told them to get out and tell the people about it and the attempts to discourage party members."

Some Civil Rights Talk

Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh and Frank McHale of Indianapolis reported there was "some discussion" of the President's civil rights program, which has angered many in the South.

Also, Mrs. Lennard Thomas of Montgomery, Ala., told a reporter she expects "to bring it up for full discussion later."

"I'm against it," she said. "I'm for the South."

The conference is to run through tomorrow; it was called to discuss convention plans.

Some Southern political leaders are talking of pulling their delegations out of the convention if it nominates Mr. Truman on a platform backing his civil rights program.

Wallace Menace Seen

McHale and Lawrence saw Henry A. Wallace and his third party as a positive menace. Both recommended that the Democrats "go after" the former vice president.

As for civil rights, McHale said he thought most of those at the conference felt that "civil rights have been a part of the Constitution for a long time, and if we're going to hold ourselves up to the rest of the world, it's time we did something about it."

Chairman Leon Henderson of Americans for Democratic Action urged meanwhile that there be no soft-pedaling of the civil rights program.

Henderson, head of the self-described progressive group, reminded McGrath in a letter that:

"The major battles of the 1948 campaign will be fought out in the large industrial States of the North where the liberal-labor-independent vote is decisive."

Truman Silent on Plans

President Truman would not discuss his political campaign plans when reporters asked questions about them yesterday.

He did tell a news conference that Senator McGrath stated his position correctly when he announced Monday that Mr. Truman is willing to accept nomination. He added that McGrath had quoted him thoroughly.

The President also said it is up to Congress to write its own legislation on civil rights.

He would be glad to make suggestions, he said, if called upon, but it is customary for Congress to write its own legislation.

His remarks replied to a question whether he planned to send bills to Capitol Hill carrying out his 10-point program.

Meanwhile, Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) said a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee has begun to redraft an antilynching bill "to make it effective and legal."

Ferguson wouldn't go into details. But he indicated the measure may be less sweeping than a similar bill approved by the House Judiciary Committee.

The House bill contains provisions to punish individuals, negligent officials and lax communities where lynchings occur. Ferguson told reporters:

"We want to get an effective and legal bill which will make lynching a Federal crime. There is no use passing something and then having it declared unconstitutional."

Man Found in Burned Home Called Suicide

Fredericksburg, Va., March 11 (Spl.).—A coroner's verdict of suicide has been returned in the death of A. W. Whiteway, 69, of Stafford County.

The body of Whiteway was found in the ashes of his burned home near Boswell's Corner February 28 by Quantico Marine firefighters. A note found outside the dwelling indicate suicide and a shotgun was discovered in the ashes of the house.

X-Ray Worker Electrocuted

A 23-year-old X-ray man was killed almost instantly yesterday when his body came in contact with an 80,000-volt, 4-milliampere wire in an X-ray machine in the Washington Medical Building.

Electrocuted was Edward G. Kellett of Baltimore, a World War II Navy veteran and father of a 2-month-old son.

An employe of Picker X-Ray Corp., helping out the firm's Washington office for the day, Kellett was checking an X-ray machine for a short circuit in the laboratory of Dr. D. H. Rosenfeld and Dr. I. Lattman, on the third floor of the building at 1801 I st. nw.

Calvin Horvath, jr., X-ray technician, said as he was entering the room he saw Kellett's face twitch and started t ohim. If Horovath had touched Kettett, Horvath also might have been electrocuted, police said.

Mattress Fire Victim Dies in Freedmen's

A 40-year-old man, burned when his mattress caught fire January 11, died Wednesday in Freedmen's Hospital.

The victim is Joseph Johnson, a roomer at 1021 Park rd. nw., who suffered first and second degree burns.

Army Engineer to Sell Buildings at Aberdeen

Aberdeen, March 11 (AP).—The Army's district engineer today announced it would sell a number of buildings and miscellaneous equipment at Aberdeen Proving Ground.

Included will be barracks, mess halls, administration buildings, latrines, a farm dwelling and barn, heating equipment, water storage tanks, boilers, laundry trays and toilet fixtures.

Sealed bids will be opened at 1:30 p. m. on March 31 at the district engineer's office here and the buildings and equipment may be inspected at Aberdeen.

U.S. Comments On MacArthur Sifted for Japs

New York, March 11 (AP).—The New York Times in a special dispatch from Tokyo today said occupation authorities are giving careful screening to material the Japanese are allowed to read about American reaction to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's announcement of his availability as a presidential candidate.

The dispatch said a partial survey indicated Allied censors already had deleted from the Japanese press at least one comment and had held up for about 24 hours other dispatches containing editorial expressions by some major United States newspapers.

Although the censors killed some comments on General MacArthur's candidacy, others furnished by United States news agencies met no objection, the dispatch said.

"The dispatches killed or delayed," the dispatch said, "include one from Tokyo for dissemination both in the United States and locally, stating MacArthur left the door open for his withdrawal unless adequate support seemed forthcoming.

"Also delayed was an article . . . saying General MacArthur would not return to take part in the Republican National Convention and pointing out his earlier support by the Hearst newspapers and the Chicago Tribune.

"A third article that up to now is held to be objectionable for Japanese readers . . . quotes editorials . . . questioning the volume of support for the commander at home, terming him an enigmatic candidate whose views were unknown, and referring to the general as a dark horse."

"One Japanese editor," the dispatch said, "told the Times correspondent that he believed a difficult situation was certain to arise when a man whose accumulated prestige in the occupied country as the commander of victorious Allies became a potential candidate in the home arena where 'face' was as often lost as gained."

Senate Beckons?

Anderson Doubts if He'll Resign

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson will decide today about resigning from the Cabinet to run for the Senate from New Mexico. He predicted last night that he will stay in his present post.

Anderson returned from a stumping tour of the West last night, that took him from his present home at Albuquerque, N. Mex., to the vicinity of his boyhood home in South Dakota. When a reporter told him that President Truman had told his news conference that he hoped Anderson would stay in the Cabinet, Anderson promptly indicated that such would be his decision.

"That's what Mrs. Anderson wants me to do, too," he remarked. "After all, President Truman has been mighty nice to me."

Anderson said he had a special appointment with the President after the Cabinet meeting today, at which a decision will be reached.

President Truman told newsmen that he hoped Anderson would remain on his present job, that he is a good secretary and has done a good job.

Earlier Anderson told reporters at Fargo, N. Dak., that he was considering "very seriously" running for the Senate to succeed Carl A. Hatch, who announced last week he would not be a candidate for reelection, but hoped for an appointment to the Federal Court.

Ga. Shifts 3 Negroes

Albany, Ga., March 11 (AP).—A 40-year-old Negro mother and her two 'teen-age sons, under death sentence in the slaying of a white farmer last November 4, have been removed from the Dougherty County jail to an undisclosed place.

Sheriff D. C. Campbell said he requested the transfer of Rosa Lee Ingram and her sons, Sammie, 14, and Wallace, 17, because of interference "night and day by Northern newspapermen and magazines."

Dental Research Appropriation of $2,730,000 Urged

By The Associated Press

Congress was urged yesterday to appropriate $2,730,000 for a national institute of dental research.

Spokesmen for the American Dental Association and other dental and public health groups appeared before the House Commerce Committee as it opened hearings on the proposal.

Dr. Harold Hillenbrand of Chicago said in a prepared statement that "more than 95 per cent of the people now have dental decay." The secretary of the American Dental Association told the committee present dental research is financed in a "primitive fashion."

Dr. Harold C. Hodge, president of the International Association of Dental Research, said the research institute program would speed production of technical information and the training of scientists for teaching careers in dental schools.

Dr. Walter H. Wright, dean of the College of Dentistry, New York University, said that to "rehabilitate the mouths of adults" with dental diseases it would require an estimated five billion dollars and the services of almost half a million dentists for one year.

2 Fliers Freed In Illegal Arms Flight to Cuba

Jacksonville, Fla., March 11 (AP). Two aviators were acquitted in Federal Court here today of charges of illegal exportation of munitions to Cuba for use in a Dominican revolution.

The two had admitted flying a plane load of war implements to Cuba last October but said they were told "the flight must be secret;" that it had the backing of the United States and Cuba, and that they did not realize they were violating the law.

They were Chester Miller, 25, pilot, who holds a captaincy in the Army Air Forces Reserve and Percy Cyr, 28, co-pilot, reserve major in the AAF. Both are from Hasbrouck, N. J.

Prisoner Leads Agents To Counterfeit Money

Secret Service agents were led yesterday to $70,000 in buried counterfeit money. Their guide was a prisoner who decided to talk one year after being sentenced on counterfeiting charges.

Chief James J. Maloney said agents of the Newark, N. J., office found the cache of counterfeit $20 bills in a 5-gallon can buried in a vacant lot in Teaneck, N. J. The prisoner is Joseph A. Giarrusso, sentenced to five years.

Albany, March 11 (U.P.)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's office announced today that State police have broken up a five million dollar lottery ring and arrested 15 persons.

Walton Dinner Set

The annual dinner dance of the Alexandria chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America will be held tomorrow at 7 p. m. at the Hangar Room of the National Airport.

Hootchie Kootchie Dance Upheld

New York, March 11 (U.P.)—"What," asked Supreme Court Justice, Morris Eder, "is a bump"?

"Thrusting the middle portion of the torso forward in a violent manner," said Lawyer Leonard Katlin.

"And what is a grind?" asked the judge.

"Moving the middle section in a circular motion."

Judge Eder glanced at red-headed Georgia Sothern, who was seeking to retain her license to dance in a nightclub.

"Why, that's the old hootchie-kootchie dance, isn't it?" asked Eder.

"Exactly," said the lawyer.

"Well, I don't see how it can spoil people who go to nightclubs to see it," the judge said.

Miss Sothern can go on bumping and grinding until a ruling is made.

Traffic Rerouted For Dupont Circle

Area to Be Closed to Through Travel For One Year Beginning Monday

Dupont Circle will be closed to through traffic for a year starting Monday, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District director of highways, said last night.

The District Department of Vehicles and Traffic announced simultaneously that vehicles entering the quadrangle bounded by N, R, 18th and 20th sts. nw. starting 9:30 a. m. Monday will proceed in a counter-clockwise path around the area.

Capital Transit Co. vehicles also will be rerouted as the construction phase of the three-million-dollar underpass projects gets underway. Upon completion, expected in 1950, all Connecticut ave. auto traffic will pass through an underground tube at the circle's center, while streetcars will be routed through tunnels under the circle's outer edge.

Other Regulations

Motorists will be permitted to enter the quadrangle only to reach residences or business places within the area. Traffic will be rerouted periodically as construction progresses and announced in the newspapers, the Motor Vehicle Department announced. Other regulations are:

North and northeast bound traffic will be detoured via 18th st., which will be one-way northbound.

Westbound traffic will be sent down R st., which will be one-way westbound.

South and southeastbound traffic will be detoured via 20th st., which will be one-way southbound.

Eastbound traffic will be sent down N st., which will be one-way eastbound.

L st. will remain open to one-way eastbound traffic.

Parking will be prohibited on both sides of N st. from 20th to 18th st.; on both sides of Q st. in the same area; on both sides of R st. from 18th st. to Florida ave.; on both sides of 20th st. from Connecticut ave. to N st., and on both sides of 18th st. from Connecticut ave. to R st.

Standing will be prohibited from 7 to 9:30 a. m. and from 4 to 6:30 p. m. on both sides of these streets.

The Capital Transit reroutings follow:

D2-D4, Glover Park—Westbound over regular route to 20th and K sts. nw., then west on st., north on 21st st. to Massachusetts ave. and continue on usual route.

G2, P st.—Eastbound over regular route on P st. to 22d and P sts. nw., north on 22d st. to Q st., east on Q st. to 2d st. and then over the regular route. Westbound over regular route on 3d st. nw. to Rhode Island, R st. and Florida ave. to P st. and then on usual route.

L2, Connecticut ave. via Calvert Bridge—Southbound over regular route to 18th and T sts. nw., then east on T st., south on 17th st. to I st. and then on usual route.

L2, Connecticut ave.—Northbound over regular route to 18th and I sts. nw., then north on 18th, west on Calvert st. to Connecticut ave. and then over regular route.

L4, Connecticut ave. via Taft Bridge—Northbound over regular route to 18th and I sts. nw., then north on 18th st. to R st., west on R st. to Connecticut ave. and then over the regular route.

N2-N3, Massachusetts ave.—Eastbound over regular route to 20th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw., south on 20th st., east on N st. to Connecticut ave. and then over the regular route. Westbound on regular route to 18th st. and Connecticut ave. nw., then north on 18th st. to R st., west on R st. to Massachusetts ave. and then over the regular route.

Gov. Folsom Feted By Modeling School

Mitchel Field, N. Y., March 11. Gov. James E. (Big Jim) Folsom of Alabama arrived in a National Guard plane from Birmingham today to be feted by a modeling school as "the nation's No. 1 leap year bachelor."

Two beautiful models—one blonde and one brunette—were kissed by the governor.

Also present to greet him were Lieut. Gen George E. Stratemeyer, commanding general of the air defense command, and Col. Roger V. Williams, commanding Mitchel Field. Later Folsom kissed an estimated 200 girls during a "parade" down Fifth ave.

Fierst Held In Baltimore Gang Murder

Mack Wilson Fierst, 37-year-old former convict identified in four District holdups, yesterday was charged with the gangland-like murder of an accomplice.

Held in Baltimore, Fierst had the law's finger on him as likely leader of the three-man gang since his arrest Monday.

The murder warrant, issued at Ellicott City, Md., yesterday afternoon by Magistrate T. Hunt Mayfield, charges him with the slaying of Hunter T. Lewis, 45, robbery parolee.

Lewis' decomposed body was found in underbrush off a little-used road near Laurel, Md., Tuesday.

Also held in Baltimore and identified in at least one of the District payroll robberies is Bronislous Matuszak, 41, alias Robert Melton, a paroled bandit. A 32-year-old blonde woman suspected of having treated Fierst's wounds is held in Baltimore.

Police there said Matuszak has signed a statement, describing the shooting of Lewis and the wounding of Fierst.

They quoted him as saying Lewis was shot in the car in which there were four men planning a robbery of the Rockaway Towers tavern on Washington blvd. last January 18. Lewis' brother reported him missing about that time.

Name of the "fourth man" in the car was not disclosed by Baltimore police.

Fierst has been incorrectly listed as a parolee from a District robbery sentence, but actually he was given a conditional release after serving a part of the 6 to 12 year term handed him in District Court, parole authorities said yesterday.

Curtain Goes Up Tonight on Play Tourney Finals

A possible Barrymore or future Bernhardt may stride the boards of Coolidge High School auditorium at 8 p. m. today.

The curtain will then go up on the first of three one-act plays staged by juniors (12 to 18 years old) of the Children's Theater of Washington.

The youngsters, all from District playgrounds, will be competing in the finals of the annual competition sponsored by the District Recreation Department.

The sub-juniors (8 to 12 years old) will have their day at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow when their three one-act plays will be presented in finals at Coolidge.

Arlington Woman Dies During Movie at F Street Theater

As the movie thriller at the Palace reached its double-death climax yesterday, Head Usher Elmer Van Ness heard a real-life "gurgle and a gasp."

A man approached Van Ness and said a woman sitting in front of his apparently had fainted. Investigating, Van Ness found an elderly woman slumped in her seat, dead.

She was identified as Mrs. Irma L. Kegler, widowed business woman, about 60 years old, of 1516 N. 16th rd., Arlington.

Mrs. Kegler collapsed about 12:20 p. m. as the first showing of "Sleep My Love" ended with scenes of the fatal shooting of the murder-minded husband and the death plunge through a skylight of another villain in the piece.

Mrs. Kegler owned the apartment house where she lived. She moved to Arlington eight years ago, after her husband's death.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Maurine Larson, 3510 S. Wakefield st., Fairlington; a son, Vern L. Kegler of Laredo, Tex., and two sisters in California.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete pending location of the son, who is traveling in Mexico.

Whole Wheat
Completely
Good to eat

Some folks eat to keep in trim—
For bounce, vitality and vim.
While others eat because their food
Is just so doggoned, downright good.

For either health or appetite
We make a bread that, first, tastes right.
It's never scratchy, dry as hay,
Because we just don't bake that way.

Molasses, butter, eggs and milk
And honey keep it
s-m-o-o-t-h as silk.
If you want bread that's good to eat,
Try Whole Wheat Plus—it's sure a treat.

Those who know... use B&O!

To hundreds of cities and towns, Baltimore & Ohio offers Washington travelers complete through service . . . and to many of them, the fastest time over the shortest route. Below are listed the leaving times to some of the many cities served by the Baltimore & Ohio from Washington.

There are good reasons why so many people think first of the B&O when the time comes to travel. They know they will get friendly, courteous service . . . that the meals will be delightful . . . that they can depend upon arriving "on time".

And there are other big reasons, too!

They've discovered that no matter where they wish to go or at what time they wish to leave, the chances are that there will be a Baltimore & Ohio Diesel-Electric train ready to take them. And on many feature trains, they will have the helpful assistance of a Stewardess-Nurse. No other railroad offers such complete service for Washington travelers. Keep this in mind the next time you travel, and always go B&O!

Schools Continue Prayer Recitation

D. C. Board Doubts This and Bible Selections Violate High Court Ruling

Washington's public schools will continue the daily reading of Bible selections and recitation of the Lord's Prayer, despite the Supreme Court ban on religious instruction in public schools.

The Board of Education's rules committee voted this action yesterday, at least until legal advice can be obtained on the legality of the traditional practices.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning said committee members felt it was "very doubtful that these things could be regarded as religious instruction." He said both the Bible reading and prayer were presented each morning without comment from the teachers.

One of the board's lawyer members, Robert A. Maurer, already is studying the Supreme Court ruling handed down on Monday to see if the District schools are in violation, Corning said.

Jap Woman Tried For Assisting in 'Surgery' Crimes

Yokohama, March 11 (U.P.).—The first Japanese woman accused of war crimes went on trial today, charged with assisting in "experimental operations" on captured United States B-29 fliers.

Shizuko Tsutsui, 31-year-old former head nurse at Kyushu Imperial University, Fukuoka, sat tight-lipped in the dock with 29 male defendants as the charges against her were read.

The prosecution charged that none of the repeated "operations" in which she assisted was necessary and none was intended to be successful. Frequent experiments were made to determine how long victims could live with sea water in their veins instead of blood, the prosecution said.

Police Retirement Unit Views 9 Cases

The Police Retirement Board met yesterday to consider the cases of nine men who are seeking retirement.

Included were three high police officials. The decisions will be rendered to the District Commissioners.

The cases were those of:

Assistant Superintendent and Executive Officer Walter H. Thomas, Inspector Clement Cox, Capt. Benjamin F. Kuehling; Detective Sergt. Roland Kirby, Corpl. Page Robinson of the Second Precinct, and Pvt. William Truesdell of the Fifth Precinct, Pvt. Charles S. Kalin of the Third Precinct, Pvt. Ralph S. Warner of the Eleventh Precinct, Pvt. Bryan R. White of the Fifth Precinct.

Meanwhile, Major and Superintendent Robert J. Barrett said he was expecting momentarily the promotion eligibility list from the Civil Service Commission. This long-expected list will determine who will be promoted to vacancies now existing between the ranks of corporal and captain. Vacancies in the rank of inspector are not filled from the civil service list.

According to most sources at police headquarters, high on the list for captain are Lieuts. Thomas E. Edwards, Anthony Richitt and Howard V. Covell. Ranking highest in seniority for the inspectorship posts is Capt. William J. Cunningham.

Inspector Milton D. Smith, veteran assistant superintendent, is not contemplating retirement at this time, according to officials.

McCabe Hearing To Be Limited To Qualifications

Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) of the Senate Banking Committee, yesterday agreed to limit future hearings into the appointment of Thomas B. McCabe to the Federal Reserve Board to a study of McCabe's personal qualifications.

Committee members objected to Tobey's drawn-out investigation of irregularities alleged to have taken place in surplus property disposal in China when McCabe was Foreign Liquidation Commissioner.

Tobey said he would turn over the charges to the Senate's new super-investigating committee headed by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) He then recessed the committee after a stormy session in which he clashed with both Republican and Democratic colleagues.

Tobey charged that Brig. Gen. Bernhard A. Johnson, McCabe's deputy in China, had been ordered court-martialed but had never been tried. Johnson is now en route to this country from Japan, it was stated.

More Gadgets

Washington's energetic traffic department has installed a new experimental traffic signal at 14th and F sts. This device, which resembles a railway signal board and is a wonder to behold, contains not only arrows for left and right turns, but also an arrow indicating when traffic may proceed straight ahead and small red lights to show when turns are prohibited. All this may sound confusing, but for once we think an additional gadget actually helps drivers know what is expected of them. This cannot be said, however, for the great majority of the traffic arrows on which the department seems to dote. They are useful, no doubt, in directing traffic in orderly fashion at complex intersections when motorists are familiar with them. But the tiny instruction signs adjoining the arrows, illegible from any distance, do not reflect much consideration for transient drivers who have come in contact with the Washington traffic system for the first time.

Moreover, the dilemma of the out-of-town driver is increased at night when the direction signs are completely obscured. Unless the visitor has been forewarned, he does not know whether to go ahead, turn right or left or try a compromise. If Washington's fortune is to be traffic arrows, then we think in all seriousness that the traffic department ought literally to throw more light on the subject.

Scatteration

Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault escaped questioning in the House Foreign Affairs Committee about his present affiliations. He is now running in behalf of the Chinese government an air transport system which was set up with UNRRA funds. Objectively he may believe what he said on China aid, for he is a man of character and integrity, yet the fact remains he is an interested party. The committee had the same blank spot when it was faced with Mr. Wallace's verbal thesis of a world divided between America and Russia.

The latest witness in behalf of military aid to China is a whole-hogger. From General Wedemeyer and others the committee failed to gather whether military aid meant military participation with American troops. But there was no cloud left over General Chennault's meaning. He wants participation down "to the company level," together with a two-billion-dollar program, with the object of "containing" the Communist forces. In this respect his evidence has the merit of both honesty and logic. Military aid without military participation would be worse than useless in the present crisis of military leadership and organization in Nationalist China. It is fantastic to think that in the subcontinent of China anything could be effective short of big-scale intervention with men and weapons. This General Chennault would provide, for he shares with Representative Judd the view that China is more important to the United States than is Europe.

With this thesis we (and the front pages of the world's newspapers) profoundly disagree. Surely a holding operation in China would divert resources that are already limited for the stop-Russia activity that is getting closer with every step that Russia takes in Europe. In Europe lies the menace to both the United States and the civilization of which we are cocustodians with western Europe. In western Europe there are friends who, if we show resolution and single-minded interest, will band together and create, as only unity in Europe can create, a coalition of opposition forces to Soviet expansionism. To go off chasing Communists in China when Italy is perhaps in extremis would be to make the gallant knight in Don Quixote seem a model of sanity.

There is no such obvious Soviet momentum in sight on the Asian continent, no such available coalition. Even General Wedemeyer when he was leaving China spoke about the "apathy and lethargy" he encountered. "Recovery," he said, "awaits inspirational leadership and moral and spiritual resurgence which can only come from within China." This may come when Soviet Russia is stopped in Europe. Certainly, if defeat of Hitler helped the Chinese cause against Japan, the stopping of Russia in Europe would have a similar reaction. To scatter our resources at the eleventh hour would be to scatter our brains and give a green light to the Soviet to overrun Europe. The Russians must be getting encouragement enough from the very talk about scatteration, for this is delaying the thing that counts, viz, the prompt passage of the European Recovery Program.

Palestine Muddle

While the clock ticks away to the May 15 deadline, the U. N. stalemate on Palestine continues. This week it has been marked by a slight tiff between the American and Soviet delegates. Mr. Gromyko actually sought to give the impression that the United States had turned its back on partition. Mr. Austin, with some asperity, corrected him, though the only mistake that Mr. Gromyko made was anatomical. The United States has turned its side on partition, not its back. And Micawber-like, it hopes that something will turn up (now that the Soviet has put its foot down on formal conciliation) to make its sideways service to partition acceptable to Arab and Jew without strife.

Nothing is in sight that looks like providing this hoped-for result. The Jews are going ahead with their plans for setting up a state in conformity with the Assembly's recommendation. And the Arabs are preparing to stop them. It is said that at Lake Success the Lebanese have suggested a federal Arab-Jew state—a solution that conforms with the minority report of the Palestine Commission. Till a matter of minutes before the Assembly vote on partition was taken, the Arabs would have nothing to do with either the majority (i. e. partition) or minority report, and then gave a word of support for federation in principle. It was then too late to consider it. It is even later now. The Jews won't listen to federation, and we doubt whether the Arabs in Palestine will. For Arab moderates have either fled or been killed by the Nazi-minded Mufti gang, and any independence of the Arab League that might have been expected of Emir Abdullah in adjacent Trans-Jordan appears to be ruled out by the lack of outside leadership and encouragement.

Nor is there any sign that the British will remain in Palestine in case nothing has turned up to solve the Palestine dilemma. If the United States is acting the part of Micawber, Britain is an inverted Micawber, waiting to turn something down. Implementation of partition with economic union has been denied by British obstruction, as, for instance, in the opening of a port, as recommended, so that the Jews can get supplies and weapons. Even the London Times, in commenting on the British order that the partition commission will not be allowed to land until 14 days before the dropping of the mandate, viz, May 1, is constrained to say, "The ban seems to be unnecessarily restrictive." More of this criticism is bound to be heard during the Commons debate on Palestine which started yesterday.

During this debate memories may go back to the debate of 1937, when the British government at first espoused the partition of the Peel Commission. Mr. Churchill wrote, "Even this scheme, had it been put into force vigorously and promptly, would have been better than the hopeless indecision which followed. His Majesty's government showed themselves unable to make up their minds." And Mr. Amery indicted the British government for allowing partition "to peter out in the shoals and sands of hesitation." The same shoals have engulfed action in implementing partition with economic union (which, incidentally, was a feasible route to federation), with the United States Government in the same state of vacillation as the British were in 1937, and the British refusing to cooperate in carrying out the Assembly recommendation. Some action must come soon. At least it should take the form of a resolution at Lake Success that arms must be made available to Jews as well as Arabs, so that, when the showdown comes, the nations will not be accused of actually helping the Arabs to defy an Assembly recommendation.

Road To Moscow

The Finns who have been sent to Moscow to discuss a mutual assistance pact similar to the one that is an iron chain around the necks of the Balkan states are representatives of the Left parties in Finland. They will doubtless be amenable to the Muscovite. But this does not mean that the people will accept the pact without creating a lot of trouble for the signatories. The tension prior to the despatch of the emissaries may be an indication of post-pact disturbance. It persuaded the government that, of the choices offered by Stalin, Finnish emissaries in Moscow would be less dangerous than Russian emissaries in Helskini. Certainly the passion for independence in the Finnish make-up will be affronted by a treaty on the Balkan model. And beware an affronted Finn! However, they have been bled by two wars in the last 10 years, and this, coupled with the undoing of everything that had been done in the previous 20 years, must have created a great weariness in Finland.

Doubtless the final factor that made the government consent to what at best will be the sacrifice of a formal neutrality was the influence of President Paasikivi. Paasikivi, who is in his late 70s and is said to be ailing, is sometimes called a Russophile. Actually he is a conservative in politics with a willow-like and un-Finnish sense of compromise. No Finn has had more dealings with the Russians than he, and his experience goes back to the negotiations of the independence treaty of Dorpat in 1919. He was the chief delegate on the unsuccessful mission to Moscow that ended in the first of the republic's wars with Russia, in 1939. It was he who received from Stalin's hands the demands which eventually were exacted by war and which included a mutual assistance pact such as is now requested. Mr. Paasikivi declined. "There would have been less left of Finnish sovereignty under this arrangement," he said, "than we had when we were a grand duchy." Stalin, evidently, never forgets, and is now returning to the only point remaining unfulfilled in the 1939 negotiations, though he has since had every reason to know that the sturdy Finns, whom he thought in 1939 would be grateful for his protection, are not enamoured of being Stalin's wards. In their travail the Finns have reawakened American sympathy and the "forced option" that Stalin is about to require of them is strengthening the "stop-Russia" movement.

Danger Of Too Little

In some quarters there is an impression that the total carried in the ERP bill, which is based on Administration estimates of rock-bottom needs, is excessive. We do not believe any warrant exists for jumping to such conclusions. The official total is based on data supplied by the nations participating in the Paris Conference as screened by the Harriman Committee and Government experts. They have studied and revised the estimates in detail, and the results represent an informed authoritative opinion as to the minimum amount of assistance required to launch the European Recovery Program.

Perhaps the best answer to the question of "how much?" came from the witness at the Senate hearings who likened the recovery program to an atomic pile. "As our scientists discovered," he said, "that pile—the amount of uranium put in one place—had to be of a sufficient size or else it would not operate; there would be no reaction at all. Too many of the neutron bullets which were supposed to smash into other nuclei and thus create still other atomic projectiles escaped into space, outside of the system, unless the whole agglomeration was built up to a point known as the critical size."

Now it may turn out that $5,300,000,000 is not precisely the critical size required, but it is the best estimate obtainable. If it should prove to be an overgenerous estimate of the amount needed to get the program off to a good start, a responsible administrator will presumably take steps to prevent dissipation of excess funds. On the other hand, if available funds are below the critical size at the start, we risk dissipation of our resources without achieving our objectives. The obviously wise thing to do, therefore, is to take no chances on losing our investment in Europe's recovery by substituting lower cost estimates for the experts' figures as proposed by Senator Taft.

Some would-be economizers cite recent declines in grain prices as a reason for cutting the cost of the program. But such arguments are extremely weak. For many things may happen between now and harvest time in the Northern Hemisphere. Furthermore, inflationary forces are still dominant in various sectors of the economy so far as the United States is concerned.

There is also a growing tendency to criticize the trading agreements entered into by countries expecting to obtain Marshall Plan aid. The agreement recently concluded between Great Britain and Argentina constitutes a case in point. It is extremely intricate, and we do not profess to know whether it is a good or bad bargain from the British viewpoint.

At any rate, the agreement will afford the British an opportunity to obtain some 130 million pounds sterling of Argentine exports such as meats, coarse grains and linseed oil in exchange for about 45 or 50 million pounds sterling of British exports. Payments due from Argentina for the purchase of British-owned railways, totaling 150 million pounds, will much more than offset the 80-million-pound trade deficit incurred by the British under this agreement. Transactions are in sterling, and the so-called gold guarantee accorded Argentina on her sterling balances is not a guarantee to pay in gold, but merely to adjust the value of her sterling balances to allow for any revaluation of sterling in terms of gold. In short, the agreement involves no drain on British gold and dollar reserves and at the same time supplies the British with essential foodstuffs and raw materials.

Star Chamber

Representative Thomas' Un-American Activities Subcommittee, having last week made extravagant charges about Dr. Edward U. Condon, is now engaged in a desperate scramble to find some shreds of substantiating evidence. To this end, it has grilled the members of the Commerce Department Loyalty Board in secret session, has accused them of "laxity" because they came to the conclusion that "no reasonable grounds exist for believing that Dr. Condon is disloyal to the Government of the United States," and has sought to obtain and publish a report submitted to the Secretary of Commerce by the director of the FBI in absolute confidence. Secretary Harriman is altogether justified in characterizing this conduct as "un-American."

Mr. Harriman's assertion that "from my own knowledge of the situation, I can say that the subcommittee's statement is misleading," is bolstered no less by the House Committee's notorious irresponsibility than by his own known probity. Perhaps the most obvious revelation of the committee's bias lies in the announcement just made that two or three weeks from now public hearings will be held and Dr. Condon, the man the committee has condemned, will be afforded an opportunity for the first time to appear before it as he long ago requested and to answer any questions its members may care to put to him.

Hull on Germany

Twice within the last few weeks The Washington Post has run an editorial tending to emphasize that Mr. Cordell Hull was as vindictive toward the Germans as was Mr. Henry Morgenthau, jr. Each time you quoted from a passage to this effect in Mr. Henry L. Stimson's memoirs, as they appear in the Ladies' Home Journal.

I wonder if you saw Mr. Stimson's footnote to that passage. It reads: "This later seemed to Stimson an overstatement of Hull's position; in any event, the latter soon took a quite different view."

State Department records show that Mr. Hull, well before the Cabinet meeting to which Mr. Stimson refers, opposed Mr. Morgenthau's recommendation to wreck industrial Germany and turn her into an agricultural country.

Civil Rights Football

To my mind the proposal of Congressman Clare Hoffman that the Republicans nominate somebody for President who would be acceptable to Southerners, and ease up on the civil rights, is one of the most hopeful ideas to come out of Washington in some time.

Democrats and Republicans have used the civil rights issue through a string of decades for a political football. In 1948 the Communists have picked it up and are playing it as their game of lacrosse. We know what they are up to. And we can block them—if we will.

The Republican Party has the chance of its lifetime if it follows the advice of Congressman Hoffman—and Booker T. Washington. Speaking in 1884 before the National Education Association in Madison, Wis., the great Negro leader said:

"Brains, property and character for the Negro will settle the question of civil rights. The best course to pursue in regard to the civil rights bill in the South is to let it alone. Let it alone and it will settle itself.

"Good school teachers and plenty of money to pay them will be more potent in settling the race question than many civil rights and investigating committees."

I hope that Mr. Hoffman will keep right on pounding away with his ideas. It is the way! Postpone coercion; and offer a candidate acceptable to the South, preferably Vandenberg, with a strong program of Federal aid for basic education. Intolerance breeds unendingly in the swamps of ignorance. Coercive Federal laws are impotent, except to make the mire deeper. Education—an all-out program of basic education for both whites and Negroes—will ditch and drain off the source of injustices and danger.

Catholic Schools

It was with much personal distaste that I read the March 8 account of the latest doings of the Protestants and others united for separation of church and state. The action seems to me to be extremely short-sighted when read in the context of your front page. With the Communist threat to Europe increasing every day why is it that here at home there is so much sniping at the only group which is really united against the threat?

In fact it seems almost diabolical that the target is religious education which is our strongest bulwark against atheistic communism. The POAU is attempting to make it harder for Catholics to give their children an education in which God is the central figure; something sadly lacking in our public schools just as in those in Russia.

The POAU says five sixths of the country doesn't want to pay taxes to support the Catholic Church but it seems to me the Catholic answer to that is that the other one sixth doesn't want to pay taxes to support public schools they don't use. Aid to the Catholic school children seems to be only a fair return for those taxes.

Latin Field Day

Your editorial page of March 7 contained the phrase, "Quam paucis sapienta mundi regitur."

What language is this? Can there be here a faint recollection of the writer's high school days? Or even of what the Swedish Chancellor Oxenstierna is reported to have stated as his purpose in sending his son off to make the grand tour of Europe, that he might observe "quantilla sapientia homines regantur?" Is there not a dictionary of familiar quotations in other languages than English?

CHARLES L. CARHART.
Chevy Chase.

Editor's Note: By some error in transcription the "i" that belonged in sapientia was lodged instead in pauca. By another error, not so easy to explain, the wrong case-ending was given to mundus. Thus the quotation should have read: "Quam pauca sapientia mundus regitur"—"with what small wisdom the world is governed." Our apologies to Mr. Carhart and to all other Latinists whose sensibilities may have been lacerated.

Lincoln's Church

Some people deplore the "loss" of a beloved historical landmark, the church that Lincoln attended while he was President.

We of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church have not lightly made this decision. But buildings grow old and, like the human body, outlive their usefulness. Are we of this beloved old church to stand still while progress and growth are evident on every hand? No. While we honor those who have gone before, we would not worship them. In short, the sanctuary is too small, the Sunday school rooms inadequate, and patching will not suffice.

If Lincoln were with us again, I am sure he would say, with the poet, "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul as the swift seasons roll. Let each new temple, nobler than the last, shut thee from Heaven with a dome more vast."

Margarine Laws

Until recently I have given little thought to the oleomargarine laws, but I find the debate in Congress absorbing, to say the least.

One fact that has struck me is that margarine made from soybean and cotton oil is naturally yellow, but in order to conform to the prohibitive tax laws it must be bleached at the factory. Thereafter the housewife must go through a messy and wearying routine putting in artificial coloring.

Meanwhile, we are told, the butter factories add artificial coloring in order to give their butter the "natural butter" color, but without any tax penalty.

The mind falters and reels under the logic of such legislation.

Loyalty In The Atomic Age

The prospective inquisition of Dr. Edward U. Condon by the House Un-American Activities Committee poses all elements of the terrible challenge. According to the Un-American Committee this scientist's loyalty is suspect. If validated, their method of proof will open the door to the police state.

The Un-American Committee insists that association or propinquity in respect to an undesirable should be admissible as evidence of disloyalty. Validate this rule of evidence and the police state is here. All that is left is for the political party in power to identify undesirables with whom association is considered subversive. Today it is a Communist. Tomorrow it can be a Negro, a Jew or a Catholic. Imagine Representative Rankin having the power to define one who is Un-American.

But like Dr. Guillotine the Un-American Committee may find its self beheaded by its own invention. If an ex post facto definition of treasonable association is to be a valid loyalty test, some of these hypocritical flag-wavers may die as a result of their own acts. Should we have another Pearl Harbor it is not impossible that the betrayed electorate may be in a lynching mood. It is conceivable that the betrayed may examine the voting records of Congressmen who softened us up for easy conquest and mass misery beyond human description.

Should Dr. Condon be the first witch of the Atomic Age to be burned by the Un-American Committee the stupidity might not be without its compensations. If you validly may prove disloyalty by undesirable association or propinquity some Congressmen may not live to die of stomach ulcers. Blind justice may decree that they die hoisted on their own petard.

THOMAS E. MATTINGLY, M.D.
Washington.

. . . I, too, am inclined to believe that the House Committee on Un-American Activities should formally present its evidence, and then make its charges, but I find it difficult to shake off the impression that The Washington Post is equally as impetuous and irresponsible as the committee, in its unseemly haste to defend reputations which have no more been proved "innocent" than they have been proved guilty.

DOUBTING THOMAS.
Coral Hills, Md.

While it is quite probable that Mr. Condon did not disclose information to these people he met, and while I am inclined to agree with you that the Un-American Activities Committee is not faultless in its handling of these problems, there is a problem involved which does warrant consideration.

Does any official of the Government think that these invitations are extended for "sociability?" As soon as any official has a function which involves decisions or which gives him information wanted by someone else he will be asked out. Anybody who made decisions during the war or who had information knows that. Also, there is little or nothing about 99 per cent of such positions which actually requires such associations.

I have many times considered it to be rank carelessness of one's own reputation to venture into contact outside of work with persons whose matters one is handling, or who may want to know what one knows. Mr. Condon is far from being the only official who thus left himself open to suspicion. There is, I think, altogether too much laxity on this point, not only in the executive department but also in Congress itself.

I do not believe that Mr. Condon should be singled out, but I do hope for the future that both the Congress and the executive department will adopt a code of conduct which precludes the cheapening of one's public trust by misusing one's position for "social" purposes.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Pattern Of Persecution

THE JOINT Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee the other day went over the material which the House Un-American Activities Committee had assembled against Dr. Edward U. Condon and had used as the basis of a public charge that the head of the National Bureau of Standards was the "weakest link" in the chain of atomic security. One of the Senators, when the session was ended, said privately:

"I wouldn't convict a mongrel dog on the basis of what was shown to us."

The "evidence" consisted of a mass of hearsay gossip, second-hand reports of Condon's association with alleged foreign agents, and accounts of political opinions expressed by Dr. and Mrs. Condon. Part of it was dredged out of that bane of Washington life, the cocktail party.

Most of the members present at the session of the joint committee seemed to agree that the "case" was pretty flimsy. What it got down to was that the Condons are people with unconventional opinions. Some might consider them radical.

Senator John W. Bricker of Ohio was one of two or three committee members to be upset by the "evidence." Why, he wanted to know, couldn't scientists be found who were "loyal" beyond any question? What he seemed to be asking for was scientists who would forswear opinion and dedicate themselves to their work with a more-than-human consecration.

At this, another committee member suggested that perhaps it might be a good idea to turn all the atomic scientific work over to the Women's Christian Temperance Union since no one could question their loyalty. Bricker was not amused. Another nervous member was Representative Charles H. Elston of Ohio.

ONE TANGIBLE gain came out of the session. The chairman, Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, obtained a pledge from the Un-American Activities Committee that in future anything pertaining to atomic energy would be checked in advance with the Senate-House group set up to deal with that subject. This might not save individual scientists from the persecution to which Dr. Condon has been subjected, but it could possibly check the kind of mass attack on scientists, as such, which serves to alienate and intimidate the very men on whom the future security of this country depends.

Anyone doubting the effect of the Condon case on science has only to note the mass meetings at which scientists are rallying to his defense. A meeting is being held in New York this week, and one is planned for Washington in the near future.

An interesting question now is whether Dr. Condon will be allowed to face his accusers in an open hearing. Thus far he has had no word whatsoever about a hearing which he requested nearly a year ago. That was after Representative J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, Un-American activities chairman, had published two magazine articles making the same charges released eight months later by his committee.

[Editor's Note: It has just been announced that Dr. Condon will be accorded a public hearing by the Un-American Activities Committee.]

AT THAT time—the date was July 7, 1947—Condon wrote to Thomas asking to be heard. He received no reply. Shortly afterward, he sent copies of that letter to all members of the Un-American Committee. The only answer he received was from Representative Karl Mundt of South Dakota, who said he agreed that Condon should have an opportunity to answer the accusations.

Inquirers at the Un-American Committee are told that there is no news about a public hearing. The suspicion is growing that the intention is to let this dud be forgotten.

But this is not the attitude of those who believe that the Bureau of Standards chief has been subjected to a thoroughly un-American persecution. Representative Chet Holifield of California, who in a speech on the floor of the House answered the "charges" in detail, will press for a public hearing. A member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, Holifield would prefer that the hearing be held before that group, since the accused would presumably have a better chance to present his story there than before a body which has tried him in absentia and found him guilty.

A sad commentary is the House vote of 337 to 37 giving the Un-American Committee $200,000—more than ever before. Surely, now that this has been done, responsible leadership will see to it that procedures are in accord with elementary rules of justice.

Most disturbing sign—and most un-American—is this business of guilt by association. Perhaps that explains Senator Bricker's nervousness. At a dinner in Pittsburgh 2½ years ago, Dr. Condon was given an award by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Senator Bricker was the principal speaker at the dinner and sat side by side with the subject.

"Posting The Books"

Of the many features of your excellent paper, the one which I think is best is the book review column by Mr. Lalley. It is outstanding, and undoubtedly the best book review I have ever read. These reviews are far better than those in Harpers, the New York Times, or Saturday Review of Literature.

May I suggest that the weekly column include a suggested reading list, perhaps five books each week? These should be worthwhile books, not current best sellers.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Time Bomb

THE BLASTS and counter-blasts being issued by Andrei Gromyko and Warren R. Austin, Soviet and American delegates to the United Nations Security Council, hardly indicate that the current consultations on Palestine will lead to any positive result. Thus the question is being even more urgently posed: What is American policy on Palestine? On the basis of available evidence, the answer appears to be simple. There is no American policy on Palestine.

One important decision has indeed been made, and approved by President Truman. That is that American troops will not be sent to Palestine under any now forseeable circumstances to enforce partition or for any other purpose. But such a wholly negative decision can hardly be called a policy. Rather, the American reaction to the terrible Palestine dilemma has amounted to little more than a kind of desperate thrashing about.

Thus hopes are now being expressed that the British can somehow be persuaded to stay for another six months, to delay a full-scale explosion for at least that long. The British have so far given no grounds whatsoever for believing that these hopes can be fulfilled.

In the same way, various despairing attempts have been made to persuade the Arab leaders to accept the United Nations recommemndation. The most important of these attempts has been a recent series of letters, dispatched in President Truman's name to a number of Arab heads of state, including Saudi Arabia's Ibn Saud. The Truman letters stated in substance that it was believed that Arab opposition to a sovereign Jewish state in Palestine sprung from a fear that such a state would be used as a base for Jewish expansion into Arab territory. To allay such fears, Truman offered to press for a United States and United Nations guaranty of the borders of the proposed Jewish state.

IBN SAUD'S response was typical of the rest. He pointed out that Presidents of the United States changed and so did American policy. He asserted further that the United Nations, having proposed one Jewish state, could later propose a larger one. He thus intimated that the Truman letter was meaningless.

Certain counter-feelers, unofficial and of doubtful real significance, have been received from the Arabs. Azzam Pasha, the clever and influential secretary of the Arab League, has intimated unofficially that the Arabs will lay down arms, if the Jews will do likewise, for a period of reconsideration. Such a truce would at least have the merit of postponing the Palestinian blood-bath which so clearly threatens. But it seems unlikely that the offer has much substance. Azzam Pasha could hardly control effectively the armed bands of the bloodthirsty Mufti of Jerusalem, any more than the Jewish Agency could control the Irgun and Stern Gangs.

There have been other Arab hints. Representatives of three Arab nations have intimated unofficially that the Arabs would accept further Jewish immigration into Palestine on a fairly large scale—up to 100,000—on condition that partition be abandoned. This would never be accepted by the Zionists.

OTHER HOPES have gone glimmering. France, Norway, Belgium, Denmark, the Netherlands and a number of South American nations have let it be known that they will have no part of a "small nations force" to impose partition. The hope that clownish King Abdullah of Transjordan might somehow provide a way out has been blasted by Abdullah himself, who has no wish to expose himself to the Mufti's assassins. A United Nations trusteeship for Palestine has been considered. But if the United States were to be the trustee—and no other Western nation would take the job—that would mean American troops in Palestine, inheriting all the miseries of the British troops now leaving, and solving nothing.

Moreover, it might mean Soviet troops in Palestine, as Gromyko's present stand seems to hint. The Soviets would demand a Soviet zone in Palestine. This would shortly become an inclosed Soviet colony, complete with lines of supply back to the Soviet Union through the Dardanelles or Iran and Iraq. Past history has demonstrated that nations through which Soviet lines of supply pass have little chance of long maintaining their independence.

That is one reason why it is not unlikely that the United States will shortly press for a special session of the General Assembly to reconsider partition. If that happens it will mean not only the final abandonment of partition, but an abysmal failure to deal with the Palestine tragedy. Meanwhile, the Palestinian time bomb, due to explode May 15, when the British leave, ticks away, and the United States, having hoped for the best while failing to prepare for the worst, has no real policy whatsoever for dealing with the explosion.

Tale of Daring and Tragedy Told on 600-Year-Old Stone

A history story nearly 600 years old, one telling a cryptic tale of great daring and greater tragedy, is carved on a large slab of stone now on exhibit in the foyer of the National Museum.

This tablet-shaped bulk of stone, imprinted with Norse runes, is now believed by most archeologists to be proof that a party of Swedish and Norwegian explorers penetrated this continent as far as central Minnesota in 1362.

This was 130 years before Columbus's day.

Discovered in 1898 near Alexandria, Minn., and now known as the "Kensington Stone," the slab tells a story of blood and death. It relates how a small band of Vikings reached what is now Minnesota and then encountered death, presumably from Indians.

Smithsonian Institution archeologists regard the relic as one of the most significant historical objects ever found in the New World.

The inscription on the stone, as translated with some reconstruction, reads:

"(We are) eight Goths (Swedes) and 22 Norwegians on (an) exploration journey from Vineland through (or across) the West. We had camp by (a lake with) 2 skerries one day's journey north from this stone. We were out and fished one day. After we came home (we) found ten (of our) men red with blood and dead. AVM. (Presumably Hail Mary.) Save us from evil. (We) have ten of our party by the sea to look after our ships 14 days' journey from this island. Year, 1362."

The stone, property of the Alexandria (Minn.) Chamber of Commerce, has been transferred on a loan basis to the National Museum "for safe keeping" and public exhibit.

The stone is of a rock called graywacke and measures 31 inches long, 16 inches wide and 6 inches thick. It weighs 202 pounds. The inscription is on the face and one edge.

When the stone was first discovered by a farmer in 1898 it was believed to be a hoax. Scandinavian scholars doubted its authenticity, declaring the runes or markings on the stone were not those of Norse scribes.

But through the years since the discovery evidence has piled up which has convinced most scholars the stone is genuine.

Strongest evidence is the fact that a Norwegian expedition actually might have been in North America at this time.

It is now known that about the year 1355 Magnus Erickson, the King of Sweden and Norway, sent an expedition under Paul Knutson to Greenland to visit the settlement there.

It is supposed that when Knutson's expedition reached Greenland it found no people there and went on to Vineland which was located in what is now the Cape Cod area of Massachusetts.

Still unable to locate the settlers, even after proceeding to Vineland, it is presumed that Knutson's expedition made search for them on the shores of Hudson's Bay and from there came down to where the stone was found.

It is known that some members of the Knutson expedition returned to Norway in 1363 or 1364. The only explanation of the fate of the rest of the party is the story told by the markings on the strange slab found in Minnesota. turned the men and wom anuanp

According to Smithsonian Institution, much of the evidence which has been unearthed to prove the stone genuine has been through the efforts of H. R. Holand of Ephrain, Wisc., prominent Norse-American historian.

Smithsonian said yesterday that its archeologists "reserve judgment" on the stone's authenticity but declare it difficult to imagine a combination of an advanced runic scholar, an expert geologist and a specialist in history of fourteenth Century Norway combined in one man with a mind "so perverted as to perpetrate such a hoax."

House Group Wants More Funds for VA

By The Associated Press

The pruning hook Congress gets out to trim Government expenses was turned into a spear yesterday by a House committee prodding the Veterans' Administration to ask for more money.

And some committee members became so serious about it that President Truman was asked to give a hand in getting six million dollars more for VA. The money would be used to prevent discharge of 8500 employes by midsummer.

It all began in January when Carl R. Gray, Veterans' Administrator, ordered the staff cuts. That was because he said VA's 1949 appropriation requests, as reduced by the Budget Bureau, are not large enough to support its existing personnel.

Committee Opposes Cuts

Chairman Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.) and her House Veterans Committee didn't like the idea of the cuts. Yesterday she said the "dishonest policy of the Government" prevents the VA from telling Congress how much money it really needs.

Congress only sees the requests for money made up by the Budget Bureau. The Budget Bureau gets requests from the agencies and makes up the estimate of needs. Congress doesn't see the agencies' requests.

Yesterday Mrs. Rogers and her committee tried to get H. V. Stirling, VA's chief of education and rehabilitation, to say the cuts would hurt service to veterans.

Truman's Help Asked

All they got for their trouble was this comment from Stirling: "These cuts certainly will reduce our service but it will not seriously impair our work."

Mrs. Rogers and Representative McCormack (D., Mass.) headed a group of New England Congress members who hied off to the White House to ask Mr. Truman's help.

They said Mr. Truman promised to have VA Administrator Gray make a survey and determine whether an emergency appropriation of $6,000,000 should be asked by the Budget Bureau to help keep the employes on the payroll.

Garner Assails Speculation by Officeholders

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporters

Market speculation by public officials "tends to break down the people's confidence in democratic government," former Vice President John N. Garner believes.

In the final installment of a series in Collier's Weekly, he is quoted by Bascom N. Timmons as declaring he never speculated while he held office. Furthermore, he told Timmons, no public official should speculate since congressional or other Government action could affect the prices of commodities or stocks.

"There usually is nothing dishonest in such dealings," he said, "but it is a mistake in judgment and shocks public opinion . . . When the average citizen reads of an officeholder making money through such dealing it disgusts him and tends to break down the people's confidence in democratic government."

Opposes 2/3 Rule, Tax Cuts

The Texan also described the two-thirds rule for nomination in Democratic conventions, abolished under pressure from the late President Roosevelt, which Southern Democrats now are clamoring to have restored. We felt the rule gave the South "negative" power, while the South should take an affirmative stand for what it conceives to be its rights.

Neither does Garner favor tax reduction in the face of a huge national debt. Any Treasury surplus, he told Timmons, should be used to reduce the debt rather than cut taxes. But, said he:

"The only trouble is that with a great tax yield the Government looks around for new ways to spend money instead of reducing the debt."

With progressive debt reduction, he declared, the country would be better able to withstand another depression, though "I see no reason why there should be depression at any time in the near future."

Glad to Shake D. C. Dust

Presidential and vice presidential nominees, he said, should be of the same political philosophy, but the Vice President never should be selected by presidential nominee.

Congress should be able, he said, to override a presidential veto by a majority of its total membership rather than by two thirds as now provided in the Constitution. The two-thirds system, Garner feels, requires a popular majority behind legislation greater than any ever seen in the Nation's history.

Although the bushy-browed Texan spent 38 of his 79 years in Washington as Representative and Vice President, he doesn't think much of the city. There were people, he conceded, who would live in Washington "if they had to live in trees." But as for himself:

"I always took the last train that would get me there for whatever business there was, and I took the first train out when it was finished."

Even so, he hastened to say, none of his days here was "lamented."

4 Firms, Army Credited for Jeep Origin

The Federal Trade Commission ruled yesterday that four companies, along with the Army, deserve credit for developing the "jeep." It also said the name probably came from a comic strip.

The commission ordered Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., Toledo, Ohio, to stop advertising that it alone created the famous World War II vehicle or that it originated it in collaboration with the Army.

The commission said a "detailed review" of the jeep's origin showed:

1. That "great credit is due the Army" for originating the idea and for its "tireless efforts" to perfect it.

2. The American Bantam Car Co. "contributed greatly" by helping during the early stages of the project and by building the first pilot model.

3. That Willys-Overland made "an outstanding contribution" by developing the jeep's "powerful engine" and other features.

4. That the Ford Motor Co., "also made valuable contributions."

5. That the Spicer Manufacturing Co. "is likewise deserving of credit" for working out the jeep's four-wheel drive.

Gypsy Rose Lee to Wed

"Borsalino" means "hat"

Well-dressed men of London, Paris, Washington — and every cosmopolitan center in the world — know the individual qualities of Borsalino hats. No other domestic or foreign hat is quite comparable with this Italian masterpiece. Years of wear are nothing to a Borsalino. Clean and block one after innumerable seasons — and you have a new hat. So original price means little.

Treasury-P. O. Bill Passed Despite Threat

The House late yesterday passed the $1,981,722,350 Treasury-Post-office Bill after learning of an anonymous threat to "blow the head off" an Appropriations Committee investigator.

Passed by voice vote, the bill provides funds for the two departments for fiscal 1949. It carried two last minute amendments, both mildly relaxing previous restrictions against purchase of new typewriters.

When the House opened debate on the measure, Chairman Canfield (R., N. J.) of an Appropriations Subcommittee, took the floor to say a subcommittee investigator, Robert Lee, had received a telephone call threatening "to blow his brains out." Lee, last Tuesday, made public results of his investigation of the Internal Revenue Bureau, charging laxity and inefficiency.

Lee, himself, said he felt the telephone call was the work of "a screwball."

Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.) of the full committee said he knew of the threats against Lee and added "they even threatened his wife with death." Neither Taber nor Canfield speculated on who "they" might be.

Voters Favor Strengthening Of U. N. by Charter Revision

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 11.—More than six out of 10 American voters today favor a rewriting of the United Nations charter to make the organization a stronger force for peace.

Harold E. Stassen, contender for the Republican presidential nomination, has recommended that a convention of nations be held in 1950 to amend and rewrite the charter. He said a major objective would be the elimination of the single nation veto.

An Institute survey recently asked this question of representative voters in all sections of the country:

It has been suggested that a world convention of the United Nations be called in 1950 to amend and rewrite the United Nations Charter to make it a stronger organization. Do you approve or disapprove of this idea?

The answers:

Hold Convention	63%
Don't Hold Convention	13
No Opinion	24

Horace Mops Up Maggie's Tears

By Richard L. Coe

IT'S HORACE HEIDT across the board at the Capitol this week. The radio showman's putting on a good, lively stage show.

On the screen, Margaret O'Brien is suffering again, this time in a teary little number called "Tenth Avenue Angel."

Heidt, though, has a cheerful, easy-going offering. He even delves into the political scene for a "Wintergreen for President" number that hauls in the two most prominent Trumans, the recent candidate from the Far Pacific and several others.

But the big features of the Heidt offering are two of his discoveries, both of whom are swell entertainers. With showmanly skill, Heidt limits their offerings to the point of the audience wanting more than they get; how both the youngsters would stand up on their own is up to the future.

Surprise of the duo, so far as this haphazard radio listener is concerned, is Richard Melari. Dick's an 18-year-old Cleveland schoolboy and has a big, booming voice which he uses with remarkable skill for a series of impersonations of the band leaders you hear on the air. Even if you're fed up with vocal impersonators, you'll still find this youngster is welcome. He's got good enough of a voice and stage presence to work on his own merits, and yesterday, at first house, he stopped the show.

No surprise, to be sure, is another 18-year-old, the rapidly celebrated Dick Contino. The accordionist who's won the Heidt contests for 14 straight weeks has an assured style with his huff-n-puff instrument, and being tall, dark and handsome doesn't hurt his stage presence, either.

Two Washington aspirants for the talent hunt will take part in each stage show up to Sunday night's broadcast. First show yesterday brought forth Ray Hawke, who sang "Danny Boy," and Joby Reynolds, who offered a cozy "Coax Me."

"TENTH AVENUE ANGEL." M-G-M release of Ralph Wheelwright production. Screen play by Harry Ruskin and Eleanore Griffin from a story by Angna Enters and a sketch by Craig Rice. Camera work by Robert Surtees. Directed by Roy Rowland. At the Capitol.

Heidt's own Musical Knights get to work on "The Green Grass Grows All Around," a toy symphony and mild banter. Harold Parr, Grant Williams, Jerry Rothans, Stewart Gordon (a local pianist who has the good taste, if questionable showmanship, to play a little-heart MacDowell) and Harold Peck are other members of the Musical Knights.

About "Tenth Avenue Angel," I find little to say that will not arouse the S. P. C. A., and too many organizations are already aroused today about one thing or another.

It seems rather astonishing to find this story was constructed from two pieces by such darlings of the sophisticates as Angna Enters and Craig Rice. Margaret O'Brien plays a child of the New York slums who is always elbowing her sweetness and light into the lives of those around her. Her aunt's suitor, George Murphy, is just out of jail, she collects pennies in a little cow bank, she thinks mice turn into money, her pregnant mother falls downstairs and Christmas comes.

That's about all there is to this flick. Nobody worked too hard on it. All they wanted to do was create situations for Margaret to hold back her tears, and that's what they've done, that's what they've done.

Film Study of Divorce in U. S., 'Saigon' Share Warner Screen

By Orval Hopkins

THE Warner Theater yesterday opened a "March of Time" short subject on marriage and divorce in this country which, while not completely satisfactory, was thought-provoking, brisk, and competently handled throughout.

The piece looks thoroughly into the major causes of divorce and cites figures on its incidence: 8 per cent of all marriages failed in 1900, 31 per cent in 1947. It shows in newsy style how the housing problem (inadequate quarters, people living with in-laws), differing temperaments (a very good shot here of a man bending the bartender's ear), money troubles and the burgeoning "independence" of women (one in four now is capable of making her own living) contribute, each in its way, to divorce.

The subject touches only momentarily on possible cures (marriage counselors, etc.), and it seems to me this is understandable considering the almost insuperable proportions of the problem. I thought the piece ended on a rather fatuous note of urging everybody to get in there and pitch and let's make marriage work, but on the whole it's well worth while.

There's also a Warner cartoon on the bill which is made amusing by the vocal antics of Mel Blank. Blanc is indubitably a man apart. The newsreel contained some interesting shots of General MacArthur, upon seeing which a lot of people in the theater applauded, and President Truman—one person clapped. I struggled mightily to milk something significant from this occurrence, but all I could think of was how they cheered Al Smith in the theaters 20 years ago.

The movie at the Warner is "Saigon," with Alan Ladd and Veronica Lake. I couldn't possibly say anything to recommend it. Good photography, smoky Oriental taverns with native girls slinking up to people, Lake and Ladd yipping at each other right to the very end, but not fooling anybody, and a thin plot which is cleared up at the conclusion by some gun play, just about make up this one.

Ladd is unbelievable and it is quite beyond my understanding how so untalented a person couid attain any stature as an actor. Miss Lake is nearly as bad, as is a player named Donald Dick, who probably will scale great heights in the movies.

Luther Adler, the actor, strolls through the film as a Eurasian lieutenant of police and, since he does his work thoroughly and well, stands out to an almost uncomfortable degree.

Leslie Fenton directed this number, but he must have been away somewhere when it was made. Fenton was a pretty good actor in his day. He apparently took great care that none of it rubbed off these people.

"SAIGON." Paramount release produced by P. J. Wolfson. Screen play by Wolfson and Arthur Sheekman from a story directed by Julian Zimet. Photography by John F. Seitz. Directed by Leslie Fenton. Music by Robert Emmett Dolan. At the Warner.

Philadelphia Adopts Race Bar Prohibition

Philadelphia, March 11 (AP).—An ordinance prohibiting discrimination in employment because of race, color, religion or national origin today was adopted by the Philadelphia city council.

The ordinance also provides for a commission of five members to administer the law. It provides a penalty of $100 fine for each violation with the alternative of 30 days in jail.

The law applies to all employers who employ one or more persons, labor unions, city and employment agencies, but does not apply to fraternal, sectarian, charitable or religious organizations.

Motion to Drop Best Treason Charge Denied

Boston, March 11 (AP).—A motion for dismissal of the indictment charging Robert H. Best of Sumter, S. C., with treason was denied today by Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford.

Best is scheduled to face trial March 29, on charges of broadcasting Nazi propaganda from Berlin during the war.

Falls Church Asks Separate District For Schools

The Falls Church school board last night agreed to meet informally with Fairfax School Superintendent W. T. Woodson to discuss plans for a separate Falls Church school district.

The meeting time, not yet specified, will be before the next town school board meeting on April 8, at which time action on the proposal may be taken. Town schools now are a part of the Fairfax system.

During last night's meeting at the Madison School, it was pointed out that the town's new Oak st. school is scheduled to open next fall.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Drop in Milk Prices Seen in Oleo Parity

But Farmers Would Cut Herds and Costs Would Rise Again, Dairy Spokesman Says

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Milk prices will go down if margarine is allowed to compete on equal terms with butter, Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Cooperative Milk Producers, told Congress yesterday.

Holman added, however, that removing the protected market from butter would cause dairy farmers to sell their cows, bringing about a milk scarcity later.

Holman appeared before the House Agriculture Committee, which is studying 18 bills, designed in varying ways toward removing (1) special license taxes on margarine manufacturers; (2) special license taxes, ranging from $480 a year up, on margarine wholesalers; (3) special licenses for retailers, ranging up to $48 a year, and (4) a special tax of ½-cent a pound on uncolored and 10 cents on yellow margarine.

Sees Threat to Nordic Culture

The movement to remove margarine taxes and licenses was started by "some bright young economists who got active in the Government during the war," Holman said. He charged they "would revolutionize our diets" and, if permitted, he added "take away our Nordic civilization" which he indicated is based on present diets.

He said they wished to provide a "technocratic diet" with butter and other milk products replaced by substitutes made out of grain.

Holman frankly admitted that the special tax of 10 cents a pound on colored margarine was intended to drive it out of the market. He boasted that only 512 food stores out of "more than 500,000" in the country pay the high license necessary to retail colored margarine, he said.

Cudahy Position Reversed

Only 176 wholesale grocers pay the $480-dollar-a-year license to sell colored margarine, out of a total of 2202.

Another witness for the butter men, Wilson F. Douglass, director of laboratories for Cudahy Packing Co., of Omaha, spent a bad three hours on the stand.

Committee members from cotton States—much margarine is made of cottonseed oil—got Douglass to admit that his company used to fight to get taxes removed from margarine.

Now it wants the status quo, Douglass said, because Cudahy has a special, patented package that makes it easier to color its Delrich margarine at home. He boasted that the new package gave Cudahy an advantage over other margarine manufacturers. He denied it was a monopoly, however—six other manufacturers have licensed the package, he said, since Cudahy first started it.

Food Commodities Drop to Lowest Since Last July

Food commodities went down yesterday, until at the close the average price level was the lowest since last July.

The Associated Press weigthed Index of 35 wholesale foodstuffs and industrial raw materials fell to 185.10, lowest since July 31. (Price level of 1926 equals 100.)

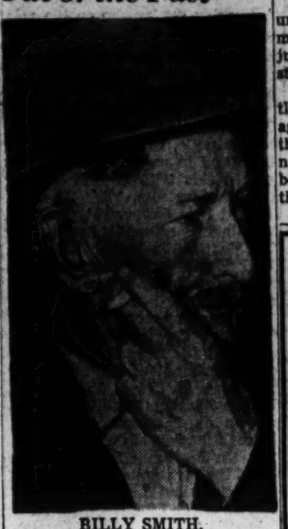
Commodities that were lower yesterday included wheat (1¼ to 2 cents) corn (2 to 4¼ cents), oats, rye, hogs, cocoa, rubber and burlap. Flour, butter and cotton advanced.

7 Rescued as Trawler Burns Off Hatteras

Manteo, N. C., March 11 (AP).—The Ocean Breeze,, a trawler out of Seaford, Va., caught fire shortly after dawn today off Cape Hatteras and all seven crewmen were rescued by a sister ship.

The Ocean Breeze's captain was William Riley of Tide Mills, Va., and she was owned by W. W. Mills of Newport News, Va.

General's Brother Out of the Past



BILLY SMITH,
as he was known in Marysville, Calif., was identified yesterday by retired Gen. Patrick J. Hurley as his brother, William, believed killed in a Mexican bandit raid 37 years ago. General Hurley, one-time Secretary of War and a troubleshooter for President Roosevelt during the war, made the announcement at his home in Santa Fe, N. Mex.

Russia Bootleggers Caught in Moscow Area

Moscow, March 11 (AP).—Three Russian bootleggers have been apprehended in the Moscow area and will be brought to justice, the trade union newspaper Trud reported today.

The paper said one man was taken into custody in Noginsk for using sugar from state stores to make "Samogon"—which comes out "moonshine" in a loose translation.

Two others were arrested at Volokolansk for distilling Samogon from bread.

19 Unions Ban Jurisdictional Strike

By the United Press

Nineteen AFL building trades unions yesterday ratified an agreement with contractors banning jurisdictional strikes in the construction industry.

It permits local attempts at settlement of such disputes, but if no agreement is reached in 10 days the issues are turned over to a national labor-industry board. The board will make awards of work that are binding on both labor and management.

Approval of the agreement was voted at a meeting of the presidents of the 19 unions. It covers nearly all of the unionized industry, which employs some two million persons.

Richard Gray, president of the AFL building trades department, said union and contractor representatives would meet soon to pick members of the national board and select a chairman.

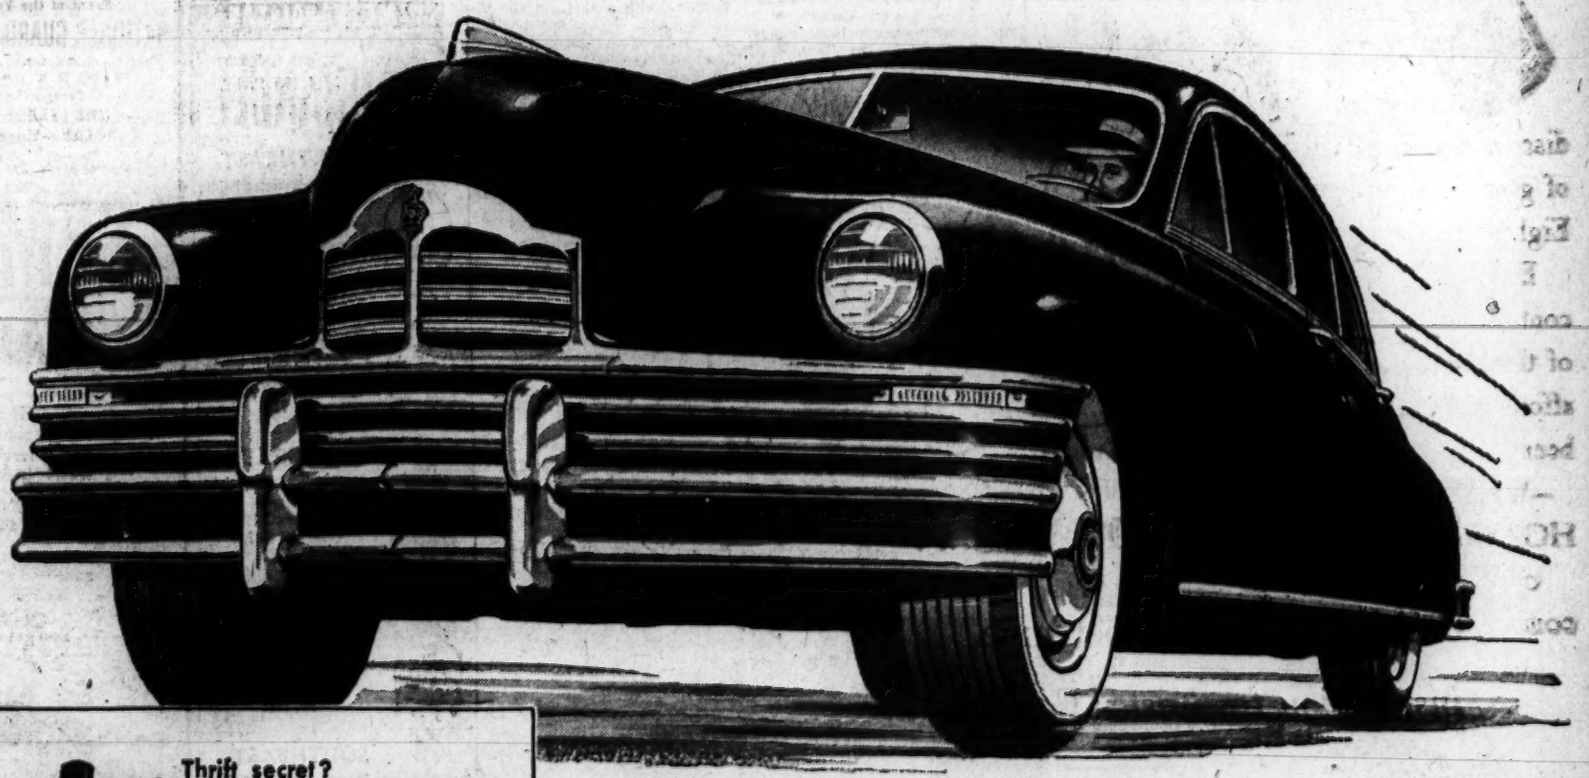
Power story of the year

(told in a whisper!)

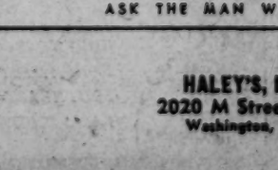


Thrift secret? "Free-breathing" design

Higher engine efficiency gets more power out of each gallon of gasoline, permits more economical rear axle ratios—pays off in up to 10% greater fuel economy!

Tops in durability, too!

Packard power is famous for trouble-free performance that lasts. Countless Packard engines have turned up more than 400,000 miles of faithful service.



It's the pride of America's Master Motor Builders

Behind the '48 Packard are 48 years of precision power experience—including wartime production of supermarine power for all the PT boats . . . and power for America's fastest planes.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Come in and hear how this silent, super-smooth Packard delivers more power . . . with amazing new economy!

PACKARD calls it "Safety-sprint" power . . . and when you drive this great new eight you'll agree—it's out of this world!

Here's the biggest news in Packard's 48 years of historic power experience. Here's power to thrill you in three important ways:

New smoothness! Smoother than any of the famous Packards of the past. Reasons? Slower piston speeds . . . streamlined fuel distribution.

New responsiveness! Instant-responsive reserve power that breezes you around other cars, and around fast highway trucks and busses . . . into the clear.

New economy! Result of new "free-breathing" design and higher compression ratios. Here's new efficiency that means more power per gallon — efficiency that gives you up to 10% more economy!

Don't miss seeing the most efficient Packard ever built! Visit your Packard dealer now!

Out of this world . . . . into your heart

ITU Head Denies Penalizing Locals

Indianapolis, March 11 (AP).—Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union, testified in Federal Court today that he knows of no cases where the union has taken action against its locals for signing contracts which were not approved by headquarters.

He said that since the Taft-Hartley Act took effect last summer he knows of only one such contract—at Akron, Ohio—although there have been many in the past.

When asked whether the ITU executive council has taken any action by way of "reprisal or penalty" against the Akron local Randolph replied, "No, they have not."

Judge Luther M. Swygert listened closely as the gray-haired union leader told how the customs of the union have grown up.

Swygert must decide whether to grant a Government petition to issue a Taft-Hartley Act injunction against Randolph and the ITU.

The general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board has charged the AFL union with illegally insisting on renewal of closed shop conditions on the Nation's newspapers, and of imposing its policies on union locals engaged in negotiations with publishers.

Randolph made these points:

1. That the international union has no power to "direct or force" a local to go on strike or to operate under a contract. (He said that perhaps between 50 and 70 locals had been operating without contracts prior to enactment of the Taft-Hartley Act.)

2. That it takes a three-fourth vote at a local union meeting before a strike can begin, and that, "so far as I know, no other union has ever given the employer the right to have his proposals voted on by the membership."

3. That approval of the executive council is required before such a strike vote can be held.

4. That ITU laws require a local union to submit to the ITU president any proposed contract, both before submission to the employer and again before signing, to insure that it is in compliance with ITU laws. (He said this has been the practice for at least 36 years.)

5. That the general laws of the ITU, relating to the operation of composing rooms, have grown up over a long period of years and the union has always insisted that they be "minimum basis" for collective bargaining.

6. That "our uniformity is one of the greatest assets we have and undoubtedly of great value to the employers. Our members can go from Canada to the Gulf and always perform the duties expected of them."

Darneille Case

Jail Term Suspended in Auto Death

Rodney G. Darneille, 39, convicted of negligent homicide last November in the traffic death of his wife, Ruth, yesterday received a suspended jail sentence of 120 days.

Mrs. Darneille, 38, was injured fatally in a head-on auto crash on Memorial Bridge April 20, 1947, on the eve of her thirteenth wedding anniversary. She died four days later in Emergency Hospital.

Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn, in suspending sentence, placed Darneille on six months' probation. He told the defendant he was not imposing a fine because that would deprive Darneille's two children of the necessities of life.

Several complications entered the case of Darneille, whose wife was by his side when his car collided with one driven by Bryce Douglas Stone, jr., 19, of Fairfax, Va.

Prosecution evidence to support a claim that Darneille was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the crash was ruled out on the defense plea that Darneille was unconscious when blood samples were taken for tests. The defense attorney contended this was "unreasonable search and seizure."

Then, after Darneille's conviction last December 2, Judge Nathan R. Margold, who had heard the case, died. The defense filed a motion for a new trial, claiming other judges of Municipal Court lacked jurisdiction to impose sentence.

Judge Quinn denied this motion yesterday and sentencing followed.

Newspaper Man Plunges to Death At Baltimore

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—John H. Lancaster, 32-year-old newspaper man, was killed last night apparently in a plunge from a sixth floor window of a downtown office building.

His father, a Johns Hopkins professor, was an acquaintance of the late Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia.

Lancaster was said to have taken a position this week as assistant to Joseph L. Stanton, executive director of the Maryland Public Expenditures Council.

When informed of the death, the victim's father, Dr. H. Carrington Lancaster, inquired whether the room had contained newspapers reporting the death of Masaryk, the Czech Foreign Minister.

The elder Lancaster is a former president of the Modern Language Association of America.

Postlude

Enesco Leads National in His First

From Yesterday's Late Editions

By Paul Hume

Greatness stood framed in humility last night as Georges Enesco led the National Symphony Orchestra in a beautiful program.

Such is the magnetism of Enesco's absolute musicianship that a slight gesture, a pleading look, and he draws from those who play for him tones, phrases, and music that is clear, undistorted, beautiful. The orchestra's appreciation in playing under him was evident in their faces and their applause, which continued with that of the audience.

Three works made up the evening's music. Beethoven's Egmont Overture, which received dramatic stress to match Goethe's poem; Brahms' third symphony, and Enesco's own first symphony, a work not heard here previously. Enesco is a violinist, composer, and conductor, and a man at home in every school of music from the time of Bach to our own day. His own writings reach far into the realm of dissonance and intricate rhythms.

His first symphony, however, is 40 years old and, as the composer frankly states, derives much from Brahms and Wagner, gods to many who were composing at the turn of the century.

Its chief influences, to our ears, were those of the Russian mystics Scriabin and Gliere in the first movement, French masters in the scoring of the second, and Brahms himself, in the final section. The work is notable for subtle scoring throughout, a masterful handling of every orchestral choir in outer and inner voices, and a steady melodic flow forming its unifying element. The second movement is one of the most beautiful symphonic passages we know.

The orchestra played the conductor's music with obvious affection, and a skill and sumptuous tone indicative of their desire to give their best. Enesco in turn rewarded their fine efforts with constant gestures of approval following each movement.

His reading of Brahms' third symphony equaled that of his own symphony, possessing those qualities of incisive phrasing and singing line which show Brahms at his best.

Such visitors as Georges Enesco, in his single-minded devotion to his art show us the kind of music we should have here at every concert.

Conference Set At Sweet Briar

Sweet Briar, Va., March 11 (Spl.).—A two-day conference on the role of the college in promoting international understanding will open at Sweet Briar College here tomorrow evening.

At the opening session, John W. Taylor, president of the University of Louisville, will speak on higher education in postwar Europe. As part of his talk, he will show a documentary film, "The Rise and Fall of Nazi Germany." Fred M. Hechinger, columnist with The Washington Post and the New York Herald Tribune, will discuss the responsibility of the American College.

On Saturday morning, Counselor Chih-Mai, Dr. Renede Messieres, and Dr. Eddy Asirvatham will talk on experiments in international education in China, France, and India. Speakers at the windup session on Saturday will be Sir Alfred Zimmern of Oxford University, Dr. Lawrence Duggan, director of the Institute of International Education, and Luther Evans, librarian of the Library of Congress.

Fowler, Burroughs Elected by Firemen

Mechanicsville, Md., March 11 (Spl.).—Henry J. Fowler has been elected president of the volunteer fire department here and Benjamin H. Burroughs named chief. Other officers are J. Jackson Raley, Herbert Wise, Hilary Copsey, Ralph Russell, Eugene Copsey, Dr. Joseph Roy Guyther and Holmes L. Fowler.

Maryland Ruling Ousts Girl, 4, From Opera Role

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—Anita DiRocco, 4, won't be able to play the part of Norma's daughter in the opera tomorrow night—and nobody dares tell Anita.

Her appearance with the La Scala Opera Co. has had to be canceled because of a State Labor Department regulation.

No children under 16 can appear on the Maryland stage unless they are regularly employed in the theater and are out-of-Staters.

Anita speaks Italian fluently and earlier this winter appeared in La Scala's presentation of Madame Butterfly. The State Labor Department didn't hear about it until afterwards.

Tomorrow, two non-Maryland children will be imported to play Anita's and another child's role in the opera.

Fashion Show Scheduled

A spring fashion show will be featured at a luncheon at the Catholic Daughters Clubhouse, 2 Scott cir., tomorrow at 1 p. m. Miss Ethyl Sweet is general chairman, and Mrs. Ileene D. Fisher, grand regent of Court 212, Catholic Daughters of America, will speak.

"Dirt, smudges, fingerprints wash right off!"

Wonderful... greatest paint yet... for kitchens, bathrooms, nursery, and wherever walls must take hard wear! Sherwin-Williams Semi-Lustre dries to a hard, satin-smooth finish that dirt just can't get a toehold on. Whenever splashes, stains or spots occur, simple soap and water remove the soil ... restore the surface to its original beauty.
You get the grand combination of rich beauty, durability and economy! Semi-Lustre's cheerful, handsome colors are decorator-blended... designed to suit your newest schemes. Its surface, satin-smooth yet tough, gives you happy years of wear. And this is one paint that stretches... gives grand coverage. Save money! Earn compliments! Paint with Sherwin-Williams SEMI-LUSTRE Wall Finish!
$5.15 GAL.
So easy to clean with soap and water!
GREASE! With most paints, cooking grease and grime penetrate the surface. Not with Semi-Lustre! Plain soap and water take grime right off!

FINGER MARKS! No need for excitement when the youngster's grimy hands smear the wall. Ordinary soap and water restore Semi-Lustre's freshness.
INK! Ordinary paints are permanently discolored wherever ink touches. Tests prove that Semi-Lustre is easily washed spotlessly clean.

PENCIL MARKS! Let the small fry doodle to their heart's content! They don't harm a wall painted with Semi-Lustre. Soap and water clean it easily!

Flanders-Baldwin Pay Bill Tentatively Approved in Senate

PAY PROGRESS: A subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday tentatively agreed to support the Flanders-Baldwin omnibus bill to adjust Federal salaries. Official approval is expected today and the full committee will meet on it Monday. The bill provides:

An average increase of $517 to each of the 800,000 employes whose jobs are under the Classification Act. The pay raises would range from $306 to $877;

A boost of a flat $700, or 35 per cent, whichever is smaller, to each of the 450,000 postal employes;

A flat increase of $500 to each employe in the legislative and judicial branches;

The Classification Act ceiling would be lifted from $10,000 to $12,500, and the employes in the $10,000 bracket would be given regular $500 promotions until they reached $12,500;

The salaries of Cabinet members would be raised from $15,000 to $20,500; undersecretaries to $18,000, and the President would be given descretion to fix the salaries of members of independent boards, commissions and corporations at either $13,000, $15,500 or $18,000 after evaluating their duties and responsibilities;

A minimum of $2000 was fixed as the salary of a full-time adult Federal worker,

And the bill would go into effect in about two weeks after it became law. However, there is committee sentiment to make it retroactive to January 1.

By all odds, the bill is the most important development in the long campaign for higher Federal salaries. No one spoke against it during the subcommitte session yesterday. Several members sought additional information of technical points and Civil Service officials will be brought into the closed meeting today to explain them.

The pay rates proposed in the Flanders-Baldwin bill were printed here Wednesday. The bill, as reported here, proposed a merger of the five different services in the act and their 45 different grades to a single service with only 11 grades. For example, the 15 CAF grades are merged into 10. The grades carried here Wednesday were the "proposed new grades.'

The only real complaint made about the Flanders-Chavez bill centered around the different treatment of Classification Act and postal workers. "Why," several Senators asked, "should postal employes be treated more generously than other Federal workers?"

The only explanation was this—that postal people carry a political wallop—that they are well organized—and that members of Congress respect power and influence, particularly in an election year. However, it's an open secret that a growing bloc of legislators are becoming irked by the driving tactics of some postal groups.

Meantime, the House Civil Service Committee suspended hearings yesterday after hearing half a dozen witnesses plead for higher Federal salaries.

L. F. Kneipp, executive officer of Agriculture's professional employes, told the committee that the average salary of Agriculture employes is only $122 a year more than that paid by Capital Transit. And Agriculture has extensive research and scientific operations that has made it possible for this country to share its food with the world. Kneipp said that about a fifth of the department's 66,000 employes had resigned since 1946.

Clarence Adamy of the American Veterans of World War II, urged a flat $1000 increase for postal employes.

UPWA Local 191 in that State called on Abram Flaxer, UPWA president, to either sign the NLRB anti-Communist affidavit or else resign. It also opposes the CIO-condemned Wallace third party.

Flaxer sent two of his paid lieutenants, Mort Ruray and Yale Stuart, to investigate the local. The local's leaders were called "scabs, stoolpigeons" and all the other ugly words by the paid pair. The executive council of the local has now voted to withdraw from UPWA and to ask CIO for a separate charter.

Commenting on the charges and counter-charges, August Scholle, president of the Michigan CIO Council, wrote in the Michigan CIO News:

The Furay-Stuart coterie have proved themselves true believers in the Red 'messiah' by consistently and constantly following the Communist Party dictates without the slightest deviation, while the officers of Local 191 have as consistently opposed the Communists.

"There just isn't any basis for the mudslinging. But facts never bother the faithful disciples of communism who are taught to assassinate the good character of anyone who opposes them, no matter how assinine or fictitious the charge may be."

(The break in Michigan is important. It will put the left-wing UPWA's problem squarely up to CIO's national officers for a decision.

Montgomery Acts to Boost Credit Rating

Sanitary Commission And County Officials To Discuss Problem

Montgomery County officials took steps yesterday to improve the county's credit rating.

Action was prompted, county officials said, by the fact that bond experts persist in giving the county relatively low credit ratings. This causes bond buyers to demand larger purchase premiums.

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr and County Comptroller Alex Hancock met in Rockville with a four-man committee of the County Bankers' Association to discuss plans for a "closer financial liaison" between the county governments and the bi-county Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, which is regarded as a main source of the county's credit troubles.

Montgomery County, as well as Prince Georges, is secondarily liable for all bonds of the bi-county sanitary commission. Of the 33-million-dollar bonded indebtedness of the sanitary commission, Montgomery County is liable for the greater portion because of its higher property values on which liability is based, McNayr pointed out.

In addition to the rapidly expanding bond ssuances of the commission for water and sewer connections in the growing county, officials pointed out they have their own "16-million-dollar headache" to worry about.

It was agreed that it would be "more sensible" for the three groups to meet at intervals to work out a long-range plan of capital outlay so that all three would be familiar with each other's plans.

Representing the Bankers' Association at the parley were Chairman Fred Lutes, Suburban National Bank; S. Walter Bogley, Bank of Bethesda; Thomas Anderson, Montgomery County National Bank, and Winship Green, Farmers Banking & Trust Co.

A meeting between representatives of the sanitary commission, the banking committee and commissioners of both counties is tentatively scheduled for 2 p. m. Monday at the sanitary commission offices in Hyattsville.

Of four top credit divisions, Montgomery County and the WSSC are rated in the second grade, while Prince Georges has top rating.

Tent Couple Offered Log House, Work

Washington area neighbors have opened their hearts—and one a home—to the elderly couple, forced to make their home in the outdoors, whose plight yesterday was described by The Washington Post.

Heber C. Henderson, Washington real-estate man, called this newspaper at 8 a. m. and arranged to have the couple take over a six-room log house he recently purchased.

George Sachs, 67, and his wife, Martha, 65, who had been living unsheltered, on a wooded patch of land off Lee blvd., in Fairfax County, Va., last night were bubbling with new hope for a warmer, kinder future. They said they felt 20 years younger, at least.

Food Sent, Clothing Offered

Meanwhile, The Washington Post received scores of calls from folks who offered all manner of suggestions and aid.

For example, Kenneth Harvey, War Assets Administration official, reading that the elderly couple has only one overcoat between them, offered a warm topcoat and good mattress.

A Washington housewife, who asked that her name not be disclosed, sent a carton crammed with canned foods and groceries for the couple.

Gets Promise of Odd Jobs

Mrs. Bertha Krieg, who lives near where the couple camped, served up a steaming hot breakfast for the Sachs, whom she has fed before.

Countless other persons offered a temporary haven.

Henderson, who lives at 2308 Ashmead pl. nw., introduced Sachs to his new neighbors who assured him there would be odd jobs available for him.

Sachs has enthusiastic plans for cutting lumber for Henderson, fixing up the place and planting a garden.

"If he God-blessed me once, he did a thousand times," said Henderson.

Petitions Useless

Paterson, N. J., March 11 (AP).—Nominating petitions for New Jersey Assembly posts, filed yesterday by four Paterson men under Socialist labor party designations, were found to be all in order with one exception. There is no State assembly election this year.

Slum Planning Gets $50,000 In Committee

Senators Rule Out Purchase of Land At Least Until 1949

A Senate Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday voted $50,000 for slum-clearance planning in Washington but joined with the House in refusing flatly to give any money for slum clearance land purchases.

Subcommittee Chairman Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) said the $50,000 would let the National Capital Park and Planning Commission complete its master plan for District redevelopment—this plan is the first legal step in the slum-clearance program.

"They can't do anything else until they finish the plans," said Senator Reed. "Next year—the plans being made—it will be time to talk about what to do next."

The $50,000 for planning was a compromise between the $61,500 which the planning agency said was needed and the no-money-at-all decision of the House.

The House also chopped from the Independent Offices appropriation bill the $3,400,000 which the District Land Redevelopment Agency asked for the first land purchases in its program, mainly in the Marshall Heights and Barry Farms communities. The Senate subcommittee left all these funds out of the bill.

To Full Committee Today

Senator Reed said the bill would be presented today to the full Senate Appropriations Committee for action in an executive meeting at 2:30 p. m. He said it has been scheduled for floor action after Senate debate is finished on the Marshall Plan.

The subcommittee also restored to the bill $159,000 of the $1,494,000 asked by the NCPPC for park land purchases in near-by Maryland. The House had voted $241,000 for park land purchases within the District.

Also written into the bill was one million dollars for the Public Roads Administration to complete a research and testing plant on the Virginia side of the Potomac about 2 miles above Chain Bridge. Senator Reed said the plant was left partly finished during the war.

Howard U., Gallinger Setup Agreed

Negro Physicians To Start Work There in Fall Under Tentative Accord

Faculty members of Howard University Medical School will begin treating patients at Gallinger Hospital this fall under tentative agreements reached yesterday.

In addition, internes from Howard are evpected to enter the hospital for the first time inJuly, 1949.

Accord on these points resulted, The Washington Post learned, from a meeting held in the office of Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer.

Those attending included deans of the medical schools of George Washington, Georgetown and Howard universities.

Ruhland Surprised at Leak

The agreement reached yesterday, it was learned, is subject to approval by the presidents of the three universities and confirmation by the District Commissioners.

Asked about the meeting Dr. Ruhland told The Washington Post he had no comment to make, although he admitted there had been a meeting. He expressed surprise that news of it leaked out. He said a report prepared at the meeting would be forwarded to the presidents of the three universities and any announcement would be made after that date.

Not many hours after the meeting, Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, called for "free and equitable" opportunities for qualified Negroes in the country's medical schools.

There is a "serious" shortage of doctors throughout the Nation, but among the Negro community alone the "deficit is dire," he told several hundred hospital administrators at a meeting at Howard University.

Conference Ends Today

Ewing's address highlighted the opening day session of the National Conference of Hospital Administrators. The two-day conference at Freedmen's Hospital, which has drawn officials from more than 30 Negro hospitals, will end today with panel discussions at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

At the meeting held yesterday in Dr. Ruhland's office, it was reported that no specific figures were cited but that it was agreed that Negro physicians will eventually become residents at Gallinger, depending upon how soon the various services at the hospital can be staffed.

The agreement provided, it was reported, that members of the Howard medical faculty begin treating patients this fall in pediatrics, dermatology and communicable diseases. They will be assisted by senior students at the medical school as part of the training they must receive before graduation into interneships.

Interneship contracts for the year starting this July at Gallinger where about 70 per cent of the patients are Negroes, were signed last November.

The agreement culminated long weeks of discussion on the project which was first made known last month by Ewing.

Child Care Centers In Major Cities Checked by Miller

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) said yesterday his House District subcommittee is surveying child day care center programs in other major cities in preparation for review of a bill to make Washington's centers a permanent setup.

Miller, chairman of the House District subcommittee in charge of health, school, and welfare bills, made a surprise visit yesterday to the D street center, 314 D st. se. He commented that there was room for many more children there than are now using it.

He also inspected the 3-floor auditorium of the Hine Junior High School, at 7th and C sts. se. He said he believed the auditorium could be usde, but only with ample fire and police guards. School officials said orders have been issued not to use the auditorium until it is cleared by the Fire Marshal. They said the Fire Department objection s that the auditorium does not conform with new fire regulations requiring assembly halls to be on the ground floor.

The Washington Post

IT'S A TOOTHY SUBJECT—Monica Mulvey (right) central figure in a $10,000 lawsuit in District Court, is shown with her "star witness" Mary Lee Wilhelm, also 10. Monica, accused of swinging a lunchbox and chipping a schoolmate's front tooth, says it was done accidentally when she was pushed from the edge of a sandbox

Two Girls Tell Court Tale of Chipped Tooth

A tiny, pigtailed 9-year-old girl shyly told a District Court jury yesterday how her front tooth was chipped by a lunch box swung by a schoolmate November 10, 1945.

Wearing a fluffy, blue frock, Janet Gamer, daughter of Department of Justice Attorney Saul Gamer, 2939 McKinley st. nw., said the permanent front tooth was chipped when she was struck by the box swung by 10-year-old Monica Mulvey, 6359 31st st. nw., in the playground of the Lafayette School, Northampton st. and Broad Branch rd. nw.

Gamer is suing Monica, daughter of Fred Mulvey, Western High School football coach, for $5000 each for Janet and himself. The suit alleges negligence in the schoolyard on the part of Monica.

Monica, taller and more composed than Janet, and wearing a tan and green plaid dress, told the jury that she was pushed by a passing child while walking on the edge of a sandpile box and was forced to throw out her arms to keep her balance. Janet was hit, she said, by the lunchbox held in her outflung hand. Monica's account was supported by a schoolmate, Mary Lee Wilhelm, 10, 6350 31st st. nw.

Justice James M. Morris recessed the hearing late yesterday afternoon until 10 a. m. today.

District Hospital Fund Plan Backed By Health Service

The United States Public Health Service has approved the District's plan for selecting projects for Federal aid under the Hospital Construction Act, Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday.

The plan set top priorities for projects to provide health centers and beds for convalescent patients.

Under the program, the District is entitled to $298,350 Federal funds annually for the next five years. The District must match the Federal funds on a 2-to-1 basis.

Dr. Ruhland said applications for project approval under the act are being received by the Health Department. Requests will be considered by a special hospital construction, then sent to the Commissioners for approval before final submission to USPHS.

Congress has been asked to appropriate "matching" funds for the District, Ruhland said.

Tall Cedar Lodge To Hold Initiation For 40 Tomorrow

The regular monthly meeting of Capital Forest, No. 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in Northeast Masonic Temple, 528 8th st ne., Grand Tall Cedar Elmer Stein, announced last night.

Plans concerning the caravan to West Chester, Pa., April 27, and the convention at Asbury Park, N. J., in May will be discussed.

A class of 40 candidates will be initiated in a full dress ceremonial by Past Grand Tall Cedar William Heider. A refreshment period will follow the initiation.

Dr. Peckham Acquitted in Abortion Case

Charge Was Outgrowth Of Recent Trial of James J. Laughlin

Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., 40-year-old Southeast Washington physician, yesterday was acquitted on two counts of performing an abortion.

A District Court jury deliberated 12 hours before bringing in the not guilty verdict.

Dr. Peckham was charged with performing illegal operations January 3 and January 5, 1947, on Mrs. Hubert Stottlemyer, a former resident of Washington. The acquittal for Dr. Peckham yesterday was the second time this year a jury has freed him.

Charges against him were an outgrowth of the recent trial of Attorney James J. Laughlin. Both men were cleared.

The jury received the Peckham case at 3:45 p. m. Wednesday, deliberated until midnight and was then sent home. It resumed deliberations at 10 a. m. yesterday; brought in its verdict at 2 p. m.

None of the jury—nine men and three women—would discuss the balloting, but another source hinted that the question of whether an abortion actually had been performed was the main barrier to an early decision.

Dr. Peckham was defended by Attorneys H. Mason Welch and Dorsey Offutt and prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Charles Murray.

Hearing Set Today On Transfer of Halls to Howard U.

Representative J. Harry McGregor (R., Ohio) has called an open hearing before his House Public Buildings Subcommittee for 10 a. m. today on a bill to transfer the Lucy Digges Slowe Hall and George Washington Carver Hall to Howard University.

The hearing will be in room 1302, New House Office Building. Slowe Hall is at 1919 3d st. nw. and Carver Hall is at 211 Elm st. nw.

Senate District Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) announced his District Public Utilities Subcommittee will meet in executive session at 10 a. m. Monday to discuss another year of District rent control and a bill to revise the District insurance regulation law. At 11:30 a. m. the subcommittee will hear testimony on a bill to fix District poundmaster's salary at $5000 a year.

Ex-Suitor Found Guilty On 3 Counts In Assault

Harding Cleared of 3 Other Charges, Including Kidnap; Sentencing Held Up

A District Court jury yesterday convicted George P. Harding, 36, of two charges of simple assault and one of carrying a deadly weapon but acquitted him of three more serious charges, including kidnaping.

Harding a former convict, was originally charged with six counts in an indictment which claimed he abducted and beat Mrs. Alsace Lorraine McCormick, 28, his former girl friend, last September 26.

During the trial, the prosecution told the jury that Harding in the early morning hours of September 26 surprised Mrs. McCormick, a divorcee, while she was sitting in a car in front of her home, at 24 8th st. ne., with a former schoolmate, Leon Guervitz, 28, of 221 15th st. ne.

Two Beatings Charged

The prosecution said Harding forced the brunette secretary at gunpoint to move from Guervtiz's car to his own, then drove her into Maryland where he beat her with the butt of his gun and his fists until she promised to marry him. The Government further charged that Harding visited the woman in Providence Hospital a day later and beat her because she had complained to police.

The jury, out for three hours and 20 minutes, reduced a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon on Mrs. McCormick on September 26 to simple assault. The jury also found Harding guilty of simple assault on Mrs. McCormick September 27 in Providence Hospital.

Before finding him guilty of carrying a pistol without a permit, the jury adjourned its deliberations briefly to return to the courtroom and obtain from the bench a definition of the phrase "on or about his person."

New Trial to Be Asked

The jury found Harding innocent of kidnaping Mrs. McCormick, assault with intent to kill her (this at the instruction of the visiting Federal Judge Ben Moore of West Virginia), and assault with a dangerous weapon on Guervitz, the escort.

Each conviction of simple assault provides a possible maximum sentence of a year in jail, a $500 fine, or both. The maximum sentence for carrying a deadly weapon is a year in jail, a $1000 fine, or both. Thus, Harding faces a possible maximum sentence of three years in jail and fines totaling $2000.

No date was set for sentencing because the defense announced it would file a motion for a new trial on the grounds that in the fifth count of the indictment, which charged kidnaping, Harding was not served with a list of witinesses and jurors as is required in capital offenses.

Harding, who has a record of 15 arrests and served a term in Lorton for manslaughter, was ordered held without bond by Judge Moore pending action on the defense motion.

Truman Proposes $29,578 More For D. C. Guard

President Truman yesterday asked Congress to appropriate $29,578 for additional expenses of the District National Guard for the year ending June 30.

Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general of the District guard, said the money was needed partly as the result of extraordinary recruiting activity, partly to pay for athletic equipment which the guard had expected to finance out of income from nonmilitary uses of the Armory.

This income has been set aside pending congressional action to decide how nonmilitary uses of the armory would be controlled and where the money would go.

Mason Says He Originated Idea for Hospital Agency

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday said he originated the idea of shifting control of Gallinger Hospital to a separate agency.

He said he made the suggestion at a private conference with George Washington University doctors, which he scheduled to get their advice on the hospital situation.

Dr. Brian Blades of George Washington University joined Dr. Robert J. Coffey of Georgetown University Medical School in proposing the idea several days after the meeting. Both Blades and Coffey are also medical officers of Gallinger Hospital.

The question of Health Officer George C. Ruhland's retirement this coming summer also was discussed at the closed session, and one of the doctors said "we want to name the health officer," Mason revealed.

"I told them 'nothing doing'... that the Board of Commissioners were going to make the appointment because it was their job," Mason said.

He later discovered that Ruhland, although he will reach the legal retirement age of 70 next May 30, would have to serve until March 1, 1950, in order to complete 15 years of service and be eligible for retirement benefits, he revealed.

Ruhland said last night he "definitely" would not retire May 30.

The meeting took place on the night of February 27 in the office of Dr. Paul F. Dickens, his personal physician, Mason said. It was arranged "because I wanted advice about the hospital problems."

Present were: Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, dean of GWU's Medical School; Dr. Blades, chief surgeon at Gallinger and also head of GW's surgical staff; and Dr. Donald B. Effler, former chief of surgery at Gallinger, Mason said.

Without Consultation

Drs. Blades and Coffey's statement condemning Gallinger's administration and calling for a separate hospital department, was made without consultation with Mason and had a "bad effect" on morale at Gallinger, Mason added.

"If they really were interested in helping the hospital," Mason declared, "they would have come to me first. They knew I was studying the idea."

Questioned about the meeting, Dr. Bloedorn said:

"I have no comment to make. None whatever."

Dr. Effler confirmed his presence at the meeting along with Dr. Bloedorn and Dr. Blades. He said the separate hospital agency idea was "the topic of conversation."

Several days after the meeting, Mason said, a representative of the Metropolitan Health Council "called on the phone and said he understood Dr. Ruhland would retire."

"He said his group wanted a voice in naming Ruhland's successor," Mason stated. Mason said he repeated that the Commissioners would name a successor.

At the same time, Mason said, he told the health councilman there would be no need for a hurried appointment because Assistant Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger could be named acting health officer.

"He replied: 'Oh, he'll never do'—meaning Seckinger," Mason declared.

Mason Thursday accused Seckinger of giving him distorted information about an alleged attempt by Dr. Blades to "sneak in" a nonresident tuberculosis patient at Gallinger. Mason admitted he was in error after receiving a report from Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, and said he would apologize for his attack on Blades.

A copy of Dr. Marvin's report has been forwarded to Seckinger for comment, Mason said. He has not decided whether disciplinary action will be taken against Seckinger, he added.

Mason said he intended to pursue his study of the separate agency plan. He has asked Budget Officer Walter Fowler for a report on the system used at Bellevue Hospital in New York.

Meanwhile, Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.), chairman of the House District Health Subcommittee, voiced opposition to the independent agency idea. "It is very unwise," he told reporters, "to set up another board to handle health problems. It ought to be handled by persons on whom responsibility can be fixed."

'Phony' 'Phone Man Works Racket Here

Residents who placed their orders for telephones with a dapper tatooed man in recent weeks still want their telephones—and their $20.

Lieut. Dewey L. Guest, of the police check and fraud squad, said the phony phone man has called on residents asking if telephones were on order. If not, he accepted $15 to $20 fees, posted a printed notice on the wall just where the "subscriber" wanted the telephone and walked out.

The "operator" was described as a well-dressed man, 5 feet 11 inches tall, 157 pounds, ruddy faced, brown hair and blue eyes and wearing a small mustache. He has a dagger and the word "Hawaii" tatooed on his arm.

Game Too Realistic

Playing "cowboys and Indians" with a cousin yesterday was almost too realistic for 4-year-old Mary Palmer, who escaped hanging in the nick of time.

Mary was rescued by her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Jones, who found her hanging from a gas pipe in the basement of her home, 134 D st. se. The "cowboy," Robert Palmer, also 4, called for help after he had hung the "Indian" with a piece of ironing cord looped about her neck.

X-Ray Survey to End

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase portion of the Montgomery County X-ray survey, 7330 Wisconsin ave., will end at 3:30 p. m. today rather than 8 p. m. as originally announced. There is no change for the Rockville unit.

WARL to Be FM

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday issued a conditional grant to Arlington's Station WARL to operate an FM broadcast station.

Station Manager Ray Baker said construction of the FM facilities will begin immediately at the station's transmitter at Baileyc Crossroads.

Truman Gets Poppy

The first of 25 million poppies made by disabled veterans was presented to President Truman by Mrs. Lee W. Hutton, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary yesterday. The paper popies will be sold throughout the Nation on May 23 and the proceeds used for rehabilitation and welfare work among disabled vets.

Federal Auto Stolen

Police reported yesterday that a State Department automobile with departmental seals painted on both rear doors was stolen sometime early yesterday from a parking lot at 1139 17th st. nw. The automobile is a four-door black sedan, with United States Government tags, No. 1029.

Md. U. Parking Lot

Parking problems which have harassed both students and officials at the University of Maryland in recent months will be eased soon with completion of a new $40,000 campus parking lot with a 1250-car capacity.

The lot, situated just northwest of Margaret Brent Hall and designated as "Parking Lot B," was started early in December. It will be ready for use in about six weeks, with good weather.

SOMNAMBULIST STEPS OUT—Mrs. Leona Sears comforts her sleep-walking grandson, Yudell McFarland, whom she grabbed by the leg at 5 a. m. yesterday as he was crashing through a second-story window in pursuit of a dream lady. Mrs. Sears prevented the 16-year-old from falling to the porch roof of his home, 261 Rock Creek Church rd. nw. She was awakened when the boy jumped out of bed, shouted "Hey, Lady" and made for the window. Yudell was cut by broken glass and his grandmother's arm was bruised.

Grattan Kerans Rites Today; Ex-Newsman, Commerce Aide

Requiem mass for Grattan Kerans, 72, newspaperman for many years and one-time assistant Secretary of Commerce, will be said at 9 a. m. today at the Church of the Nativity, Georgia ave. and Peabody st. nw. He died Tuesday.

Mr. Kerans, a native of Bismark, Mo., was a reporter on the St. Louis Republic, the Toledo Times, the Chicago Interocean, the St. Louis World, the Columbus Press-Post and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch between 1898 and 1918.

He moved to Washington during World War I to serve with George Creel, director of Government information during that war. Later he serve das directof of publicity for the National Democratic Committee and for the National Catholic Welfare Conference. He was appointed assistnat commerce secretary in 1933 by Secretary Daniel C. Rop erand assigned to the Patent Office. He was an administrative assistant to the patent commissioner when he retired about a year ago.

He remained active in the National Press Club here until shortly before hies death.

He graduated from 1895 from Mount Angele College in Oregon, and before entering newspaper work, was employed by the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co. and the Rock Island Railroad. For a short time he published his own newspaper in the Midwest and edited a magazine in St. Louis.

With the National Catholic Welfare Conference, he directed for some time the Catholic Hour. He also was an active worker in the Holy Name Society.

He is survived by two sons, J. Mark Kerans of Durham, N. C., and Dr. Grattan Kerans, jr., Silver Spring, Md.; and two daughters, Mrs. Helen M. Montague of Washington and Mrs. J. Norton Johnson of Baltimore.

His wife, Mrs. Isabel Kitchell Kerans, died several years ago. He lived for many years at 1305 Kennedy st. nw.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. A nine-man committee will represent the National Press Club at the services: Frank Hall, Sam O'Neal, Henry Flynn, Joseph Flynn, Thomas Dowd, McFall Kirby, Richard Westwood, Charles G. Ross and Diosdado Yap.

Baltimore Seeks Harbor Funds

By The Associated Press

Representative Fallon (D., Md.) asked a House Public Works Subcommittee today to approve Federal funds for the removal of debris in Baltimore Harbor.

Col. Wayne S. Moore, resident member of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, said the Army feels a Federal contribution is justified but the City of Baltimore should pay half the cost.

Moore said the project probably would cost $60,000 the first year and $34,000 a year thereafter.

Chairman Angell (R., Oreg.) and other committee members noted that the Federal Government spends about $300,000 a year for the same purpose in New York Harbor without requiring local matching.

Elisha Flagg

New York, March 11 (AP).—Elisha Flagg, father of James Montgomery Flagg, the artist, died yesterday. He was more than 90 years old.

Roland E. Long

Frederick, Md., March 11.—Funeral services will be held here Saturday at 4 p. m. for Roland E. Long, 50, district manager of the South Penn Power Co., subsidiary of the Potomac Edison Co., who died in Waynesboro, Pa., yesterday.

Mr. Long, a native of Frederick County, had resided in Waynesboro since 1931.

Roger Franklin Heck

Frederick, Md., March 11.—Roger Franklin Heck, Frederick antique dealer, died at Frederick Memorial Hospital last night of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Heck was a bachelor. Surviving are two brothers, Charles K. Heck, and H. Webster Heck, both of this city. Private funeral services will be held Saturday morning, followed by cremation.

Yugoslavia Would Mar Trieste Zone, House Unit Says

By The Associated Press

A House Foreign Aid Committee accused Yugoslavia yesterday of seeking to destroy the free zone of Trieste and swing it into the Communist camp.

The Zone, lying between Italy and Yugoslavia, was created September 15, 1947, in a United Nations move to end age-old conflict over the key area at the top of the Adriatic Sea.

The House Committee, headed by Representative Jenkins (R., Ohio), called for full support of American troops which now occupy the free territory jointly with Yugoslav forces.

"It is now quite clear that Yugoslavia has not in reality accepted the spirit of the decision to establish the free territory and will do everything in its power to subvert it to Communist control," the committee said in a report.

Episcopal Relief Fund of Million Oversubscribed

New York, March 11 (AP).—The million-dollar Fund for World Relief has been oversubscribed.

The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, who appealed to more than 4000 units of his church in a sermon broadcast by 600 radio stations on February 29, said last night:

"With deep gratitude to hundreds of thousands of donors, we have now passed the minimum goal of $1,000,000. However, it should be borne in mind that the need is so great that every additional gift will bring relief to many sufferers throughout the world."

The total amount of this year's subscriptions is not yet determined.

Home Owners, Attention:

You Can't Change to Gas Heat!

Only 14,000 New Heating Units May Be Added . . . And Those for NEW HOMES Only!

We Don't Believe This To Be Fair Distribution!

The Washington Gas Light Company has requested a ruling from the Public Utilities Commission that would limit new users of gas heating equipment to those who purchase new homes . . . with the lone exception of certain hardship cases to be determined by the Gas Company!

We believe that you have more right to obtain gas heating for the home you already occupy than those whose new homes are still in the blueprint stage!

On Monday, March 15, 1948, at 10 A.M. in Room 500 at the District Building, the Public Utilities Commission will hold an open hearing on the temporary limitation order already issued. If you believe with us that such a ruling would be grossly unfair, we urge you to mail this coupon or attend the meeting in person!

Fredericksburg Approves School Ground Purchase

Fredericksburg, Va., March 11 (Spl.).—Months of controversy over a school construction program here ended with the city council authorizing the purchase of a $100,000 site of 30 acres for a new high school to serve Fredericksburg alone or one or more counties. The city already holds an option on the property, which belongs to the George Benoit family.

The counties of Stafford, Spotsylvania and King George have been invited to participate in the consolidated school and to give their replies by May 3.

The council received a resolution from the city school board expressing the belief that Fredericksburg could best solve its school problem by erecting a high school for the city alone, but approving a consolidation if "substantial savings" could be effected.

The council also approved setting aside a portion of Kenmore ave. as the site for a recreation area that would serve as a memorial to the dead of World Wars I and II. No funds were appropriated for the project.

Archbishop Keough To Visit Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., March 11 (AP).—The Most Rev. Frances Patrick Keough, archbishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of Baltimore, will pontificate at a solemn mass of thanksgiving at St. Patrick's Church here Tuesday, May 11.

It will make the first visit to Cumberland of an archbishop in over 10 years and the occasion will commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the Brothers of the Christian Schools teaching in the United States and their fortieth year at LaSalle High School, here.

Assisting at the mass will be clergy from all western Maryland parishes. A dinner is planned for the evening.

Six Injured in Crash

Greenville, Pa., March 11 (AP).—A half-dozen persons were injured today when a fire department squad car loaded with children skidded on a snowy street and crashed into a freight train. About 30 children were aboard.

Removal of Bullet Carried 4 Years Sought

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—Jack Teal, 19, was back in the hospital today for removal of a .32 pistol slug he has been carrying around since he was shot four years ago while playing with a pal.

Doctors decided then the bullet was too deeply imbedded in a pelvic muscle to permit removal and thought it might give Teal little trouble.

Teal has been having persistent backaches and other troubles for the past three months and entered the hospital last night to see if surgery will give him some relief.

Fire Damages News Plant

Suffolk, Va., March 11 (AP).—The plant of the Suffolk News-Herald, an afternoon paper, was severely damaged by fire and water today. Damage was estimated at $12,000.

Held for Slaying Son

Elkton, Md., March 11 (AP).—Mrs. Ruth Ann Knell, 38-year-old divorcee accused of slaying her newborn son, pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge today and was ordered back to the Cecil County jail to await trial. She had been indicted on a murder charge March 2.

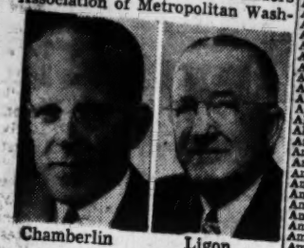
Chevy Chase B. & L. Elects Two Directors

By S. Oliver Goodman

Two new directors have been elected by the Chevy Chase Building and Loan Association, Executive Vice President J. Horace Smithey reported yesterday.

They are Donal L. Chamberlin and John Ligon.



Chamberlin Ligon

Chamberlin, immediate past president of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, is the owner and developer of Kenwood, a residential section.

Ligon, active in Montgomery County civic affairs, is chairman of the Bethesda Retail Merchants Association. He is president of the firm bearing his name.

The Chevy Chase Association, which has assets of $2,700,000 is located at 6940 Wisconsin ave. Other directors are Diller B. Groff, Dr. William B. Holton, Dr. Sidney S. Jaffe, Walter G. Kolb and J. Jerome Lightfoot.

THAT EXTRA DAY: Potomac Electric Power Co., apparently aided in some part by an added day, reported February sales of 166,719,309 kilowatt hours, an increase of 13.2 per cent over the same 1947 month. On the other hand, Capital Transit Co. reported 27,724,312 revenue passengers for last month, a drop of 7.75 per cent under February, 1947.

PURELY LOCAL: Jerome Howell, former naval lieutenant, has become associated with the sales organization of the Washington office of Alex Brown & Sons. Prior to the war, Howell was in the investment banking field here for five years . . . Herbert H. Goodman, manager of Washington office of Remington Rand Systems Division, has been awarded a trip to Mexico in recognition of his office winning first place in a Nation-wide sales contest last year . . . United Air Lines reports that 21,405 passengers were carried in and out of Washington last year on its planes. Air cargo handled here also showed a substantial gain . . . The Bon Vivants, local group of steamship and traveling agents, plan a meeting Tuesday night at Fairfax Hotel.

SIGNIFICANT: Bank merger moves in New York City are viewed as a possible further sign that economic adjustments are under way. Net profits of member banks in the Second Federal Reserve District in 1947 decreased to an average of 8.1 per cent of capital funds from 11.2 per cent in 1946 and a top of 11.6 per cent in 1945.

FINGERPRINTS: The District of Columbia soon will have on file the fingerprints of the four principal officers of the Western Auto Supply Co., Nation-wide chain which operates nearly 2200 stores, including six outlets in Washington. All because the local stores handle 'second-hand' radios—those repossessed and resold. An existing ordinance requires all "second-hand" sellers to file their fingerprints, in triplicate and certified by the police department. Graciously, President P. E. Connor of Western Auto in Kansas City and three other high officers agreed to ink their fingers.

COSMETICS: Armour & Co. has sold trademark and good will of the Luxor cosmetic business to Lever Bros. The latter entered the cosmetic field last July with purchase of Harriet Hubbard Ayer, Inc. . . . Daggett & Ramsdell, cosmetic firm affiliated with Standard Oil Co. (N. J.), has been sold to a firm headed by William J. Perridge, formerly with Conti Products Corp. . . . Allied Home Products Corp., maker of a new line of beauty aids, has arranged to sell them exclusively through grocery stores.

BROKER'S LAMENT: Millard F. West, securities analyst of the Washington investment firm of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, brightened his current market letter with the following threnody:

The poor brokers must stand by and pine,
Without volumes there's no rise or decline.
Annual reports have begun to appear
With earnings which make every stockholder cheer.
But their enthusiasm soon passes
When they put on their glasses
And see headlines about Stalin's new raid,
Or that taxes very soon must be paid.
So they neglect the big yields they can get
And the profits that companies net.
Yes, business in general is doing fine,
While brokers must stand on the sidelines and pine.

Incidentally, West is proud of the above and will brook no criticism of the meter.

EARNINGS: Celanese Corp., of America reported net income of $24,173,417 for 1947, equal to $3.83 a common share, compared with $16,059,416, or $2.36 a share in previous year.

W. Kentucky Eliminates La Salle, 68-61, in NIT

The Washington Post Sports
Friday, March 12, 1948 5B

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA., March 11.—I am curious about the next installment of Babe Ruth's story as told to Bob Considine, now running serially in a national magazine. Thus far, the Babe has come pretty close to confessing all of his trips and falls in what was a hectic and at the same time tremendous baseball career.

POVICH

He started out, you remember, in the first chapter by saying forthrightly, and contritely, that "I was a bad kid." He didn't spare himself, either, in relating his troubles with Miller Huggins, and how he was spanked by the late Colonel Ruppert when he hopped a train to New York to tattle-tale about the $5000 fine Huggins socked him with for failing to get into the hotel three nights in a row.

With it all, it has been an admirable story of a big, overgrown kid who could hit a baseball farther than anybody else in history, and later realized he was being idolized for it by kids who thought he was wonderful. In all his trouble, he managed to keep before himself the picture of Babe Ruth, the hero of boys, and was careful not to let them down. He's now dedicating all his earnings to kid-help, and there never was a more sincere big shot, anyway, when it came to dealing with boys.

His story is getting to the point now, though, where it's 1928, and he could tell the interesting episode in Washington during that presidential election year. The Babe unwittingly projected himself into politics one day at Griffith Stadium because he didn't know how to be polite.

Herbert Hoover, as the Republican nominee, was running against Al Smith, candidate of the Democrats that year. Hoover, a steady customer at Griffith Stadium and a good baseball fan, was in his seat early on a day when the Yankees were in town, and photographers hit upon the idea of asking him to pose with Ruth for a picture. With Hoover's consent gained, the cameramen walked out to Ruth, who was taking pregame practice in right field, and told him of their arrangements.

"Nothing doin'," said the Babe. "I won't pose with Hoover. I'm an Al Smith man." The photographers were first amazed and then sore. The press services carried the story, and the Yankee owners were horrified. They foresaw the Babe's action as alienating the support of Republican fans. His manager, Christy Walsh, hurried to Washington to explain all, as best he could. He issued a statement signed by Ruth saying he had misunderstood the request. But the Babe was merely being polite. Privately he couldn't figure out how an Al Smith man could conscientiously pose with the Republican candidate.

CHRISTY WALSH became wealthy managing the Babe's affairs. He put Ruth in the movies, got him a contract which called for him to indorse underwear, signed him up for ghosted baseball articles and magazine pieces and netted more for Ruth out of his sideline ventures than he was receiving from the Yankees. All of that extra money went into a special annuity fund. Walsh let the Babe keep all of his baseball salary, which the Babe spent lavishly.

Paradoxically enough, the only time Walsh was thwarted in an attempt to capitalize on Ruth's name was when a candy bar company was enjoined from advertising a "Babe Ruth Candy Bar." It seems that another confectionary concern already had put on the market a candy bar known as "Baby Ruth" and the court held that a Babe Ruth candy would be an infringement. Walsh fumed that the Babe wasn't permitted to use his own name to his own advantage.

Ruth's feats of hitting three home runs in a single game in two World Series have been properly told, but his most famous wallop, of course, is the time he called his shot at Chicago in 1932. Baseball historians have let that legend grow, despite the fact that when Ruth is credited with pointing to the spot where he would hit the homer, he was actually waving an angry finger at the pitcher who, the Babe thought, had quick-pitched him on the previous strike.

IN ALL of the comparisons of Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb, it is pointed out by the Cobb supporters that their Tyrus not only could hit, he could run the bases and otherwise outshine the Babe. But on Ruth's side of the debate is the fact that he not only was the greatest home run hitter of all time, but he made good as a World Series pitcher before he turned to the outfield.

In fact, defensively the Babe was a better outfielder than Cobb, the Ruth people say, and they do have evidence. Certainly Cobb possessed no throwing arm like Ruth's. And if the Babe wasn't a fast man, he was not slow, either. They say of the Babe that he never threw to a wrong base from the outfield, and he was, indeed, a smart guy out there. But years ago Bucky Harris exploded the myth that the Babe never made any mistakes.

"He was playing right field one day when I singled to right," related Bucky, "and I faked a break to second. The Babe threw to first, like a busher, and I did go to second. But I was in the league with him for 13 years and that's the only mistake I ever saw him make."

Yanks Blank Cards, 1-0; 3d in Row

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 11 (AP).—The World Champion New York Yankees shut out the St. Louis Cardinals today for the second straight day and won their third exhibition game without a loss. The score was 1 to 0.

The Cards made only three hits—one each off Red Embree, Frank Hiller and Don Johnson.

Second Baseman Vernal Jones' fumble of Cliff Mapes' roller in the fourth developed into the only run. Mapes went to second as Yogi Berra grounded out and scored on a single by Joe Collins, rookie first baseman.

The Yankees collected four hits, two of them off Starter Murry Dickson, who was charged with the defeat.

At St. Petersburg, Fla.:

St. Louis "A" (N)	000 000 000	0	3 1
New York (A)	000 100 00x	1	4 0

Dickson, Burkhart (5), Staley (8) and Garagiola; Embree, Hiller (4), D. Johnson (8) and Berra.

Tigers Maul Reds

Lakeland, Fla., March 11 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers sent 16 men to bat in a 12-run outburst in the fifth inning as they mauled the Cincinnati Reds, 15 to 3, in an exhibition game here today.

At Lakeland, Fla.:

Cincinnati (N)	010 0 0 0 011	3	8 2
Detroit (A)	000 1 12 1 01x	15	15 1

Wehmeier, Perkowski (4), Holcombe (5) and Anderson; Newhouser, Pierce (4), Benton (7) and Swift.

Giant Rally Wins

Phoenix, Ariz., March 11 (AP).—Staging a four-run rally in the ninth inning, the New York Giants today defeated the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League, 4-3.

At Phoenix, Ariz.:

Oakland (PCL)	001 101 000	3	8 1
New York (N)	000 000 004	4	9 2

Hafey, Hayes (4), Conant (7) and Raimondi, Leneve (9); Andrews, McGowan (4), Jones (7), Hansen (9) and Westrum, Grasso (6).

Mack Names Hurlers

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 11 (U.P.).—Saying he plans to rotate five starting pitchers through the season, Connie Mack today named nine hurlers to work three innings each for the Philadelphia Athletics in the three-game series with Washington opening here tomorrow.

Phil Marchildon, Dick Fowler and Bob Savage will pitch the first game; Joe Coleman, Alex Kellner and Carl Scheib, the second, and Russ Christopher, Lou Brissie and Bill Connelly, the third. Kellner and Brissie are rookie lefthanders.

Cubs Beat Bucs, 4-3

Los Angeles, Calif., March 11 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, today in their first meeting against a National League team this exhibition season.

Pittsburgh (N)	010 000 111	3	6 0
Chicago (N)	003 100 00x	4	5 0

Higbe, Gregg (4), Queen (7) and Fitzgerald; Wyse, Rush (4), Erickson (7), Deberale (9) and Walker, McCullough (7).

Bums Top Latins

Ciudad Trujillo, D. R., March 11 (U.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers squeezed through a 4 to 3 victory over the Dominican All-Stars today on the strength of two-run homer in the ninth inning by Pitcher Paul Minner.

Brooklyn (NL)	000 010 012	4	9 0
Dominican All-Star	000 020 001	3	3 1

Navy, Virginia In Title Meet

Bethlehem, Pa., March 11 (AP).—Sixteen colleges come to grips tomorrow in the forty-fourth annual Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association championships.

A record entry of 126 contestants will compete. Army, Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Franklin and Marshall, Harvard, Lehigh, Navy, Pennsylvania, Penn State, Princeton, Syracuse, Virginia and Yale have entered full eight-man teams. Temple has six contestants.

Strong contenders for the team title, won last year by Lehigh, will be Navy's midshipmen, who have won 46 dual meet in the past six years. Navy's John Fletcher at 145 and Wayne Smith at 136 will defend their titles.

Suffolk Named 'Goobers'

Suffolk, Va., March 11 (AP).—The Suffolk entry in the Virginia Baseball League will be known as the "Goobers." The team will be one of six in the new Class D circuit.

VIRGINIANS ARE READY—The University of Virginia boxing team is ready for opening bouts in the twenty-fifth annual Eastern Intercollegiate boxing tournament Friday and Saturday at Charlottesville. Left to right: Allen Hollingsworth of Alexandria, 125; Grover Masterson, Chattanooga, Tenn., 130; James Miragliotta, 135; Basil Miragliotta, 145, and Joseph Miragliotta, 155, all three of Charleston, W. Va.; Bolling Izard, 165, and Ralph Shoaf, 175, both of Roanoke; Lapsley Hamblen, Chattanooga, Tenn., heavyweight, and Coach Albert T. York. Jimmy Miragliotta and Shoaf are unbeaten two straight years

Nats Pleased With Kozar's Early Showing

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.— There's a growing satisfaction among the Washington training camp bosses with the young man for whom they traded Stan Spence last December. Al Kozar is the second baseman they've been wanting, they think.

There was some dismay when Kozar checked into camp, an undersized looking kid with a baby face and a manner so mild he looked out of place in a big league camp. But before his first week in uniform is at an end, Manager Joe Kuhel and Owner Clark Griffith are quite smitten with him.

Actually they've only seen him perform in one mere six-inning intra-squad game, but it was a very authoritative poke that he smacked into right field in his first time at bat. And in the infield workouts he has been the epitome of steadiness on ground balls. He has been roaming wide and making all the plays.

Griff Lauds Rookie

"In uniform, he stacks up a lot bigger than he does in street clothes," commented Kuhel happily. "Look at those powerful legs. He isn't a small man. I'll bet he's bigger than Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox and nobody says Doerr is a little fellow."

Clark Griffith, too, is babbling about Kozar. "Everybody I asked for an opinion on him told me we were getting a fine young ball player," said Griffith. "In baseball, you don't measure players by their size. It's how strong they are. Strength is size in baseball, and Kozar is plenty powerful."

Kuhel and his strategists are pleased, too, with the pair of Texas rookies, Dean Stafford and Larry Drake, who are outfield candidates. Drake's two-run homer the other day was an impressive belt and Stafford, too, has been whaling the ball. Either one or both could break into the regular outfield, Kuhel thinks.

Both Have Power

"This may be an unlooked-for break for us," Kuhel says. They both have power. One hits lefthanded, the other right. It lets me mix up my batting order against any kind of pitching. On a club that needs power as much as we do, we're going to give Drake and Stafford a long look. I'm their best rooter."

The Nats moved into Palm Beach from Orlando today to await their first exhibition game with the Athletics tomorrow, launching a three-game series . . . They got in a workout at Tinker Field be-

Eastern Boxing Opens Tonight at Virginia U.

Charlottesville, Va., March 11 (AP).—Four former champions are among a group of undefeated dual-meet boxers who will be spotlighted in the twenty-fifth annual Eastern Intercollegiate ring tournament which opens tomorrow night at the University of Virginia.

Perfect record holders spread over six of the eight weight classes. The order of their participation in the two-day team championship event will be decided tonight when association officials meet to study the six entry lists and arrange pairings.

Scheduled to arrive today to join Virginia's host Cavaliers are eight-man teams from Penn State, Syracuse, Army, Western Maryland and the Coast Guard Academy. Preliminary bouts will be held tomorrow. Semifinals and finals will be spaced between Saturday afternoon and night sessions.

Gerald Auclair, Syracuse's EIBA and NCAA 125-pound champion will start the parade of undefeated entries and title defenders when he enters the ring for a try at another leg on the Edward J. Neil Memorial Trophy he helped win for his team last year.

Following Auclair will be Penn State's John Benglian, holder of an unbroken string of dual-meet wins at 130 pounds, and Jimmy Miragliotta, Virginia's champion of the 135-pounders, who just wound up his second consecutive undefeated dual-meet season.

Then there's Jack Tighe, Penn State's 155-pound representative, while Virginia's Ralph Shoaf overshadows the light heavyweight field. Shoaf hasn't lost a dual-meet encounter in his two seasons of collegiate scrapping.

In the heavyweight department, with clean dual-meet records, are Joe Carleto of Western Maryland and Walter Ilgenfritz of Coast Guard.

Alexander's 67 Leads Tourney

Jacksonville, Fla., March 11.—Skip Alexander, six foot, two inch, Lexington, N. C., professional, rolled in with a 33—34—67 late this afternoon to take the first day lead in the Jacksonville Invitation Golf Tournament.

He slipped into first place ahead of Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans and Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, who earlier posted 68.

Otto Greiner of Baltimore, Md., and Marty Furgol of Brooklyn were tied at 69, right behind Haas and Kesier. Vic Chezzi of Kansas City, Kans., Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans., Steve Savel of Saratoga, N. Y., and Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., were two-under par at 70.

One stroke better than par at 71 were Charles Harper of Jacksonville, Chick Harbert of Detroit, Jim Milward of Three Lakes, Wis., Sam Snead of Hot Springs Va., Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C., Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., and Jim Turnesa of New York and Ky Laffoon, St. Andrews, Ill.

Ingram Thinks Colts Are Set

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—Commissioner Jones H. Ingram left today for Chicago to submit to the All-America football conference executive committee certain stipulations which Baltimore businessmen say they must have before they will put up the money to keep a franchise here.

The businessmen's requested assurances from the league were not disclosed. But it was assumed they were primarily a promise that the stronger conference members would turn over some of their better players to Baltimore.

Ingram indicated this was the basis of the proposal by reaffirming he would try to get Baltimore two outstanding tackles and at least two other players satisfactory to Coach Cecil Isbell.

"It appears the civic committee cooperating in the matter will have no trouble raising $300,000 to put the club on a sound financial basis," Ingram told a news conference.

Before leaving, Ingram said he was confident "that Baltimore will retain its franchise in the conference."

Cerdan Is 11-5 Tonight Over Roach in N. Y.

By Jack Hand

New York, March 11 (AP).—Give Lavern Roach, 22-year-old Texas ring rookie, a solid chance to upset the 11-to-5 favored Marcel Cerdan of France tomorrow night in the Madison Square Garden battle pit.

This is the big one for the former Marine from Plainview with a possible middleweight title bout at stake for the winner.

Roach has a 10-year youth advantage over the European champ who never has lost in this country. Going into the 10-round bout, Marcel has won 32 fights in a row, four in North America. The Texan, improving with each start and yet to reach his peak, has won his last 19 starts.

Although the trade has established the veteran Cerdan as a stick out choice, the truth of the matter is that both are doubtful factors on the big time. Despite European success, Marcel just squeaked past Georgie Abrams, knocked out Harold Green and Billy Walker and barely decisioned Anton Raadik. In fact Raadik, the hard-punching, Estonian floored the Frenchman three times in the last round at Chicago.

The Texan's real class has yet to be proved, despite his impressive performance against a washed-out Tony Janiro in January. Manager Johnny Abood, assisted by Chris Dundee, has brought him along slowly. He's lost only to Artie Towne, an obscure battler, in 25 fights. The Janiro show proved Nat Fleischer was right when he called him "rookie of the year for 1947."

Abood and Dundee have been criticized freely for rushing Roach. Some think he is not ready for a vet like Cerdan.

Hilltoppers Win Opener With Ease

New York, March 11 (AP).—Favored Western Kentucky rolled into the semifinals of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament tonight with a 68-61 victory over La Salle of Philadelphia before a sellout crowd at Madison Square Garden.

St. Louis and Bowling Green (Ohio) took the floor immediately for the second game of the fast elimination event.

The top-seeded Hilltoppers, who boast a gaudy season's record of 26 victories and 1 defeat, trailed 12-10 after the first 10 minutes. Then, sinking long shots, they pulled away to a 35-27 advantage at the half.

They then coasted home with comparative ease, going ahead by a dozen points in the last half. La Salle tightened the count just before the final gun.

Hamline Ousts Manhattan

Kansas City, March 11 (AP).—The Hamline Pied Pipers from St. Paul ousted Manhattan College, 60-51, tonight in the first quarter-finals game of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball tournament.

Manhattan had only three men on the court at the finish. In a weird ending the New Yorkers fouled 10 times in the last two minutes and four of their nine-man squad went to the sidelines for the five-foul rule. Two had fouled out of the game previously.

With the score 57-50, Hamline attempted to freeze the ball and stall ou the final two minutes. The Manhattan cagers went after the ball, fouling copiously, but Hamline went to the free throw line but twice during the hectic maneuvers. Instead, the Pipers took the ball out of bounds and continued their stalling tactics.

No Question About Morgan's Status At Richmond Now

Richmond, Va., March 11 (AP).—Vernon Thomas Morgan, whose eligibility as a freshman athlete at the University of Richmond last fall was questioned, was in the news again today.

The Emporia, Va., athlete has been asked to withdraw from the university by Dean Raymond D. Pinchbeck, because he failed to meet academic standards. He had entered the university from Fork Union Military Academy, where he was a three-sports star.

Two rulings were handed down last fall by the Southern Conference executive committee on Morgan's eligibility, questioned because at the age of 15 he had been signed by the New York Giants pro baseball team. The first ruling had declared him ineligible, the second made him eligible.

Latest Rules Bring the Bible Up to Date for Court Coach

Duluth, Minn., March 11 (AP).—Reider Lund, sports editor of the Duluth Herald-News Tribune, says he won't vouch for this story, picked up during the recent high school district basketball tournaments, but it's good enough to repeat:

Coach Harry Newby of Cloquet, during a practice session, exhorted his boys to "fight hard."

"Remember," he said, "the Bible says: 'it is better to give than to receive.'"

One of the boys asked:

"But coach, I always thought the Bible said 'love thine enemies.'"

Newby glared.

"That," he said, "is the old version. The ru'es committee changed it."

Okla. Aggies Will Play GW

The Oklahoma Aggies, one of the Nation's top collegiate basketball teams season after season, will play George Washington University in the Armory next winter.

Max Farrington, director of athletics at GW., yesterday scheduled the Oklahomans for an early December game, the exact date of which will be agreed on later.

The Oklahomans, coached by Henry Iba, perfectionist at ballhandling, played George Washington here in prewar years in headline attractions.

This year Iba's team has beaten such high ranking teams as Texas, St. Louis and Temple, and will compete in regional eliminations for the national collegiate championship as winner of the Missouri Valley Conference title.

Iba's team is the country's No. 1 defensive club, holding opponents to an average of approximately 35 points per game.

Aggies Best, Say Owls

Philadelphia, March 11 (AP).—Temple University's basketball squad today voted Oklahoma Aggies the best team met during the 1947-48 season. The Aggies beat Temple, 56-49, here. The Owls also selected an all-opponent team consisting of A. L. Bennett, Okla. Aggies; Bob Cousy, Holy Cross; Adolph Shayes, New York U; Harry Donovan, Muhlenberg and Bill Gabor, Syracuse.

Button Gets Welcome

Englewood, N. J., March 11 (AP).—Dick Button, the 19-year-old wizard of the blades who captured the Olympic, European and world's figure skating championships—the first American to win any of them—took his home town by storm today.

Town officials met Dick in New York. They whisked him across the George Washington Bridge with an escort of New Jersey State police cars, sirens wailing. The parade wended its way along the main street. Even the Erie Railroad, which crossed the street near the mayor's office, had to wait. Traffic was hopelessly snarled, and a freight train was forced to halt at the crossing until it was cleared. The engineer joined the fun and tooted away at his whistle.

2d Army Ringmen Battle April 5-9

Fort Meade, Md., March 11 (AP).—Second Army Boxing championships will be decided at a tournament to be held at the Valley Forge General Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa., April 5-9.

Second Army headquarters here announced that each camp, post or station in Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana may enter a team of eight or individual champions in the eight weight divisions.

No Wonder Hockey Players Love to Be Kept In Stitches—Each One Pays Them 5 Bucks

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

WASHINGTON Lion hockey players don't fret when they receive an injury which requires stitching because the local skaters are covered by insurance which pays them $5 per stitch . . . Wingman Red Raney hit the jackpot recently with a $25 incision . . . Three weeks ago Les Douglas of the Buffalo Bisons received a nasty cut which required nine stitches. The injury didn't seem to bother him until he learned his insurance had lapsed and he had bled for nothing . . . Washington Lightweight Sonny Boy West, who fights Cabey Lewis at Uline's Monday, has received an offer to tour Australia "and other European countries," according to his manager, Mel Stevenson . . . In the interest of "better public relations," N. C. State footed the bill for the families (from Indiana) of its basketball team at the Southern Conference championships . . .

JOHNNY FENLON, under consideration to succeed Skip Stahley at George Washington, quit a college coaching job in 1947 because he felt it didn't offer enough security . . . Since then 21 major colleges, including G. W. have replaced their head football coaches. No wonder Fenlon is happy with his recreation job at Fredericksburg, Va. . . . An enterprising Maryland student could pick up a little side money by hustling programs at the Terps' spring football practice. Of the 100-man squad, less than half can be identified by even George Carroll, Maryland's publicity man . . . Tickets for the Rocky Graziano-Sonny Horne non-title fight here April 5 go on sale next week at the Liberty Athletic Club. Promoter Goldie Ahearn reports that requests for tickets are greater than any Washington fight he can recall.

IT IS highly probable that the Washington Caps will wind up their season in last place in the Western division with a better won-lost record than the winning team in the Eastern division . . . When the electric clock failed in the third quarter of Wednesday's Cap-Chicago Stag game, Stag Coach Harold Olsen sent Sub Gene Rock over to check on Timer Shag Shaughnessey. Olsen didn't get away with it, however, because Coach Red Auerbach of the Caps reminded him that he refused to allow a Cap sub to check on the timer in Chicago recently when the Chicago Stadium clock went on the blink . . . Alabama's Harry Gilmer, whose reputation as a fancy passer earned him a fat contract with the Washington Redskins, wasn't even among the first 15 college flingers last year . . . Since the departure of Doc Lentz, Forward Johnny Norlander has become Cap trainer in charge of Bones McKinney. The other Caps tape themselves while Norlander straps up Bones . . .

Shep Won't Let Baseball Throw Him

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

IT WAS JUST MY LUCK that my only assignment to cover the Nats' spring training came the year they didn't go to Florida. Instead of lolling around in the shade of a sheltering palm, I was up to my neck in Cubans at the University of Maryland.

Haight

But the war year of 1945 wasn't a total loss, for I acquired a number of friends, among them Bert Shepard.

Yesterday, the boss chained me to a typewriter and said, as he usually does, "Write."

I had just about decided which relative to libel when I felt a thump on the back. I squared off in approved John L. Sullivan fashion as I turned. There was Shep—as broad-shouldered, trim-waisted and smile-equipped as ever.

In response to my "How'ya doing?" he replied, "There's one thing I'm not doing and that is looking for publicity. Remember, you fat bum, no write-ups."

I didn't say I wouldn't, so here goes:

For the benefit of any new customers who may be in my store for the first time, former Lieut. Bert Shepard is the pilot who was shot down on his thirty-fifth mission over Germany and lost part of his right leg.

He is the young man who learned to run on a makeshift leg in prison camp and electrified the sports world by joining the Nats in spring training less than a week after he returned to this country.

MOST BASEBALL FANS are familiar with Shep. How he showed he could pitch, caused a sensation when Larry McPhail was believed to have "kidnaped him" and how he signed with the Nats as first coach and then player.

Given little chance to pitch either here or after being sent to Chattanooga, the Nation's No. 1 amputee morale builder, obtained his release. Last spring he tried out with the Browns, but his stump was in poor shape.

"It wasn't until late in the spring that I felt I could play any kind of ball," said Shep yesterday. "I knew I wouldn't be at my best, so I sneaked out in Montana and managed and played with a semipro club."

He didn't know he was talking for the paper when he continued, "I won 18 and lost 3, after I learned how to tape up my leg to prevent bleeding. I made nine assists in one game."

Like all pitchers, Shep appeared more proud when he said, "I got plenty of baseknocks, too."

Is Bert giving up on baseball, just as many experts said would be the case? The answer is a big NO.

"I was too anxious to make good in 1945 with the Nats," he said. "I was supposed to have my leg fixed, but you know how I got caught in that whirlwind at College Park. It was a big chance and I couldn't wait. Then the Army wanted me for hospital morale work."

After my operation last winter, I guess I did the same thing—too eager to make the grade. The Browns gave me every chance, but I just wasn't ready."

"HERE'S ANOTHER YEAR. My stump's been trimmed again and this job looks like a honey. The publicity has worn off and I won't be so much on the spot. I'm not going to try to play this time until I'm absolutely shipshape.

"I still believe I can pitch big league ball and win," he went on. "This time, in addition to having top surgery, I have a new artificial leg. All that I have learned has been placed into its construction."

Shep came down from Walter Reed Hospital on his crutches and will not don his new leg until next week. Then it will be 10 days or so before he will start baseball training.

"After all," he laughed, "I have only one leg to get into condition and, besides, a good pitcher like me can spot those hitters a month's work."

Just where Shep will play he doesn't know. Several minor league clubs, affiliated with the majors, are interested, including Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

"I just want a clause in my contract that calls for me to pitch every fourth day," he said. "I'll do the rest."

When I went into the hall with him, I warned, "You're on crutches, Shep. Those steps are steep. You'd better take the elevator."

He stood at the top, smiled broadly and yelled, "O. K., let's take them six at a time."

With that, he bounded down the flight in five jumps.

How're you going to beat a guy like that?

Rorer Paces Alexandria With 20

Norfolk, Va., March 11.—George Washington of Alexandria defeated E. C. Glass of Lynchburg, 51-49, here today in the first round of the Virginia State Group 1 High School Basketball Tournament.

Top-seeded John Marshall of Richmond eliminated Washington-Lee of Arlington, 57-33, in another first-round game.

Marshall and GW play in the first semifinals tilt tomorrow night.

GW trailed for most of the game against Lynchburg. But Billy Borer scored most of his 20 points in the third and fourth quarters to spark a GW rally. Leading scorer for Marshall against W-L was Paul Gentry with 28 points.

Culberson, happy at the chance to play regularly, declares that his record at Boston shows his average went up the more he played . . . As a utility man for the Red Sox, he was in the game at second base, third base and shortstop last season.

Culberson's dad used to pitch for Atlanta . . . The Nats have an oddity in Pitcher Ramon Garcia, a Joe Cambria importation from Cuba. He switches to a cross-handed grip on the bat when he's ready to hit . . . The two tall rookie right handers, Dick Weik and Joe Jones, will get tomorrow's pitching assignment against the A's because they are the most advanced pitchers in camp, having served as "instructors" at the Nats' baseball school . . . The Nats intend to retain Weik but may send Jones out for further seasoning.

Lions Oppose Ramblers Here

The Washington Lions will seek their fourth straight home victory at 8:30 tonight when they meet the New Haven Ramblers on the Uline Arena ice in an American Hockey League clash.

The Ramblers already have clinched a berth in the Calder Cup playoff series by finishing second to Providence in the Eastern Division.

In seven previous games with New Haven the Washington club has lost six.

The Ramblers bring to town strong candidates for nomination as rookie of the year and most valuable player. Center Buck Davies is the outstanding rookie and Defenseman Ott Heller has been rated a good bet for the most valuable award.

Swim Team Is Coached By Mail!

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

IT'S NO wonder that the St. John's Cadets have the best scholastic swim team in town. They have, by proxy at least, the best coaching of any high school in the Nation.

Swimming coach at St. John's, though he has never visited the school, is Bob Kiphuth, who spends most of his time coaching Yale University and the United States Olympic team.

Go-between for Kiphuth and St. John's has been Danny Callahan, 17-year-old distance swimming star at St. John's. The Kiphuth-Callahan combination succeeded this year in guiding the cadets to the Washington scholastic championship with a 6-0 record, to sixth in the national Catholic Interscholastics at Philadelphia and ninth in the Eastern Interscholastics in Trenton, N. J.

How did the great Kiphuth happen to become St. John's proxy swimming coach?

Three years ago a mutual friend of Callahan and Kiphuth wrote the Yale coach about young Danny's swimming potentialities. Kiphuth, always interested in promising tankmen for Yale, invited Danny up to New Haven for a visit during Christmas, 1945.

They became fast friends. Kiphuth and Jimmy McLane, Yale's national 1500, 800 and 400 meter champ, worked with Danny and taught him new strengthening exercises. Kiphuth invited Callahan up the next two summers, and Danny worked out with the Yale team.

BETWEEN his New Haven visits, Danny swam for St. John's. Then, this season, St. more about this swimming game from the master, Bob Kipbuth.

Danny, who began swimming six years ago on the Shoreham Hotel team, was most experienced boy on the St. John's team. So he got the job. He wrote Kiphuth for instructions.

The result has been St. John's splendid record. Danny, himself, has improved to such an extent that he went through 10 meets this year undefeated in 220-yard freestyle competition. Last September, he won the President's Cup Regatta mile race.

This Saturday's St. John's meet at Baltimore against Loyola, Calvert Hall and Mount St. Joseph's is the last high school competition for the durable 5-foot, 8-inch, 140-pound star. He graduates in June.

North Carolina, And Howard Win Openers

Howard University and North Carolina State College of Durham passed their quarter final tests in the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association's championship basketball tournament yesterday before 1000 spectators at Turner's Arena.

Led by Frank Booth, Win Pollard and George Jett, who scored 14, 13 and 12 points each, Howard defeated Virginia State College of Petersburg, 58-43. N. C. State won an overtime thriller over Delaware State College of Dover, 70-68. Regulation playing time ended with the score tied at 56 all. A layup by Bill Young with seconds left in overtime gave N. C. State the victory.

Howard and N. C. State will participate in the semifinals tonight at Turner's.

A. U. Mittmen Fight Hoyas

American University boxers, winless in six matches, will be host to the Georgetown University team tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. at the Ward Circle gym.

The Eagles' best performance this season resulted in a draw with Patuxent Navy Base. In two outings, the Hoyas licked Bucknell, 6-2, and dropped a 4½ to 3½ decision to John Carroll University of Cleveland, Ohio.

Small Schools Open Tourney In Priory Gym

Priory High opens its invitational basketball tourney tonight at 7 o'clock with hopes that it will result in formation of an intercity athletic league for smaller high schools in and around Washington.

Three games are on tonight's quarterfinals program at the 14th st. and South Dakota ave. ne., gym. Semifinals are slated Saturday night with the finals set for Sunday at 3 p. m.

Paired off in the first game of tonight's triple header are St. Mary's of Hagerstown and St. Paul's of Washington. In the following games, St. John's of Frederick faces St. Anthony's of Washington, and St. Mary's of Annapolis opposes Priory. DeMatha High of Hyattsville draws a bye in the first round.

After the finals Sunday, athletic directors of the participating teams will meet at Priory to discuss formation of an athletic league for smaller schools.

Baseball Fans Called 'Obscene'

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—An injunction suit to evict the Baltimore Orioles from Municipal Stadium continued today after a neighbor testified that "obscene" baseball fans who pass his house are unfit to be viewed by his wife and daughter.

Charles A. Knight testified that persons who attend the International League games have provided the neighborhood with "obscene sights" and loud profanity which make it impossible for his family to remain on the front porch.

D. C. Not to Stop Water in Homes Of 44 Veterans

Water will continue to flow in the homes of 44 veterans in the 1300 block of Dexter ter. se., District officials revealed last night.

Dexter Realty Co., former owner of the housing development has agreed to pay a $600 water bill, thereby averting a scheduled cut off of home water supplies Monday, Assistant Corporation Counsel Hubert Pair said.

He said he company had failed to carry out an agreement to install standard water lines and meters in the homes before selling them. Without individual meters, he said, there is no way of parcelling out the bills.

The District will install lines and meters within 30 days, Pairs said. Meanwhile, the company will receive the bills and attempt to work out a pro rata payment plan with the present owners.

3 Held in Auto Theft After Fast Chase by Police

Three persons, one a 13-year-old girl, weer held by police yesterday in the aftermath of a fast chase for a stolen car.

A fourth person, a Negro, believed to have been the driver of the car, was being sought.

The chase started about 4 a. m. when Police Privates Francis S. Parlon and Francis N. Andruzzi picked up the speeding car. It ended, after speeds up to 70 miles an hour, when the stolen car rammed a parked auto in the 900 block of Kent pl. ne.

None of those held have been charged.

3 Fairfax Board Receives Plans For Annexation

Falls Church town officials have taken their plans to annex a square mile of Fairfax County before the Fairfax Board of Supervisors.

A meeting with the Fairfax body was held Wednesday in the Fairfax Courthouse. Acting Board Chairman Maurice Fox declined, however, to discuss the meeting beyond the fact that the officials "just talked the matter over."

Present, he said, were Supervisors E. C. Sheads, D. W. Buckley, C. B. Runyon and himself.

Representing Falls Church were Town Councilmen Walter B. Follin, J. H. McCarthy, and Town Manager Roy F. Dunn.

Bethesda Operator

Cab Line Upheld on Trade Name

The trade name "Suburban Cab Co." yesterday was awarded to a Bethesda cab operator in a court decision, in spite of the fact that he has been operating under the name for six years.

Owner Richard M. Phelps started the legal fight after 18 drivers pulled out of the company, filed an application for the trade name, and continued using the stand in the bus terminal at the District line. In a seven-page written opinion, Chief Judge Charles W. Woodward of Montgomery County Circuit Court, "strictly enjoined" the faction from using the name "Suburban."

In noting that the defendents had "tried to take business away" from Phelps, Judge Woodward said the plaintiff was not entitled to protection from competition but he was entitled to be protected from "fraud and deceptive practices." Attorney James H. Pugh represented Phelps.

Delegates Pass Bill on Va. Poll Tax

Richmond, Va., March 11 (AP).—As the Virginia General Assembly headed down the final stretch for adjournament Saturday, the Senate ground out 94 House bills and two joint resolutions today. The House did almost as much.

The House of Delegates passed the Senate bill to reimpose the two per cent gross receipts tax on freight-carrying trucks, leaving Governor William M. Tuck and administration leaders "on the spot."

The administration is opposed to the measure and Floor Leader E. Blackburn Moore warned the House that other States, particularly northern States, may retaliate against Virginia trucks.

Other Highlights

Among other highlights:

1. The Senate passed the Adams-Unruh House measure to provide a study of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries and the tidal waters of the State.

2. The Senate also passed the Norris-Minter Senate resolution appointing a commission to make a study of the seafood industry—striking out a provision for the work to be done cooperatively with Maryland.

3. The Senate passed, 35 to 2, the Cooke-McCue fireworks bill, amending it to prevent setting off the noisemakers on anything but private property by owners consent. The bill bans large firecrackers, but a Senate amendment makes it applicable only to localities with antifireworks ordinances.

4. The Senate passed the Murphy House resolution on declaring it the sense of the General Assembly that "it is imperative that the pupils in the public free schools of the State be thoroughly taught and trained in the fundamental subjects and that the school authorities exert every effort to that end."

5. The House approved two studies requested by Governor Tuck—of weight limits on highways and of State insurance laws.

6. The House Roads Committee reported favorably the Senate Baldwin - Richeson - Fitzpatrick bill to provide from the highway fund $300 a mile for certain city streets not in the highway fund and $300 a mile for certain city streets not in the primary highway system. The Senate Counties, Cities and Towns Committee postponed for a day a decision on the Crockett House "anti-annexation" bill.

Would Hike Retirement Pay

A Senate bill passed by the House would increase from $300 to $420 a year the retirement pay of teachers who retired before the present retirement act took effect. The House rejected an amendment proposed by its Appropriations Committee to set the figure at $360 a year.

Among Senate bills, the House also passed the Hillard bill to put license tax of $1 per year per set on coin-operated radios in hotels, hospitals, restaurants and other places.

So speedy was the Senate legislation action on the 90-odd measures that Senator Lloyd C. Bird of Chesterfield arose to remark:

"We are going through these things like lightning. It isn't fair."

Lieut. Gov. L. Preston Collins remarked that any Senator could ask for an explanation of any bill. To which Mr. Bird replied:

"When we do, too often we don't get it, as you know."

Japanese Beetle Curb to Be Discussed

Hagerstown, Md., March 11 (AP).—What to do about how Japanese beetles and diseases attacking the raspberry crop will be discussed Monday at two meetings for Washington and Frederick County farmers.

County Agent Mark Miller said the first will be in the Smithburg High School at 2 p. m., and the second in the Boonsboro High School auditorium at 7:30 p. m.

Symphony Bids Public To Discussion

The general public has been invited to tonight's special meeting of the orchestra association.

The meeting will begin at 8 p. m. in the Department of Commerce auditorium, 14th st. between E st. and Constitution ave. nw.

On the agenda will be discussion of the orchestra's $165,000 sustaining fund drive which is only 75 per cent raised and reported criticism of the orchestra's board of directors and opposition to Conductor Hans Kindler.

Frank R. Jelleff, acting president of the board of directors, said all persons attending the meeting will be encouraged to express opinions on the issues. Voting, however, he said, is legally limited to persons or groups contributing $25 or more to the sustaining funds during the present season.

Remon Names Carrier Boy Contest Entry

The retiring president of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, John A. Remon, yesterday nominated William Saunders, his newsboy, as the most courteous carrier boy of The Washington Post.

Remon, who is vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., wrote that he and Mrs. Remon, have found that Saunders "is a perfect little gentleman, polite and understanding."

In addition, the Remons declared that Saunders, who lives at 2815 39th st. nw., "never misses delivery" and makes "it early enough to suit all our purposes and in inclement weather he is careful to see that the paper is protected against the elements."

Was Carrier Himself

Remon commented on the courtesy contest, "having been a carrier boy himself, I think that what you are doing is a grand idea."

If you would like to nominate your carrier for the special award of a $50 Government bond being offered in the contest to find The Washington Post's most courteous carrier boy, fill out the coupon, adding a sentence or two on why you believe your carrier is courteous. He will be identified from your address.

Send or bring your entry to The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. The contest closes midnight next Thursday.

Judges Named

In the courtesy contest being conducted by the Metropolitan Washington Courtesy Program, James E. Colliflower, chairman, named the following judges:

Commissioner Guy Mason; John Reilly, president of the District Board of Trade, and Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank.

The three will select the most exceptional incidents of courtesy occurring during the campaign as reported by residents. The courteous person and the one reporting the incident will both be in line for merchandise and cash prizes.

League Plans Revival Of Famous Dog Mart

Fredericksburg, Va., March 11 (Spl.).—Fredericksburg's once-famous dog mart may be revived this year by the Rappahannock Chapter of the Izaak Walton League.

The mart was staged annually by the chamber of commerce until interrupted by the recent war. It featured sales of dogs, fox horn blowing contests, a show and other events. The mart originated in pre-Revolutionary days when Indians and white men met to exchange goods.

Jury Indicts Ex-Justice On 3 Counts

Luray, Va., March 11 (AP).—Charles Kenneth Hackley, town councilman and until recently town justice of Stanley, was indicted today on charges of embezzlement and bribery.

A Page County grand jury brought in two indictments charging Hackley with embezzling Stanley town funds. A third indictment charged him with accepting a bribe.

Hackley was arrested on the bribe charge February 18 on a warrant taken out by Commonwealth's Attorney I. R. Dovel. Hackley is out on a $7000 bond.

In addition to the true bill on the original charge that Hackley had accepted a $100 bribe from Loy Huffman in a drunken driving case, the grand jury brought two additional indictments charging Hackley with misusing and misappropriating $90 and $92.50 of funds belonging to the town.

After Hackley's arrest, his fellow town council members voted to remove him as trial justice.

Court to Decide Fate Of James Monroe Home

Richmond, Va., March 11 (AP).—The fate of the old home of President James Monroe was left in the hands of the United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals today.

Judge John J. Parker and his associates were asked to pass on whether the Alexandria District Court was within its rights in ordering "Oak Hill," former home of President Monroe sold after bankruptcy proceedings brought against Frank C. Littleton, Loudoun County, who once owned the property.

Attorney Robert H. McNeill of Washington, representing Littleton, said his client intended to establish a James Monroe foundation and open up "Oak Hill" to the public if he regained control of the estate.

Soldiers Plead Guilty To Theft at Baltimore

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—Three soldiers from Andrews Field, Camp Spring, Md., pleaded guilty today to the theft of equipment last Friday from a motor-sales firm here.

Bail of $5500 apiece was set in Police Court for Privates Eugene Mather, 20, Gale McClure, 20, and Thomas Shoemaker, 21. They were bound over for grand jury action.

Woman Who Had Girl Fire House Given Term

Annapolis, Md., March 11 (AP).—Mrs. Helen J. Lock, 42, of Jessup was sentenced to 10 years in the State Reformatory for Women for having had an 11-year-old girl burn down a neighbor's house.

Judge James Clark, passing sentence in Anne Arundel County Court, said, "there is no doubt whatsoever of Mrs. Lock's guilt."

The 10-year sentence will run concurrently with two 2-year sentences for inducing the child to set fire to the home of Mrs. Rose Sellner.

General's Wife Elected

Fort Meade, Md., March 11 (AP).—Mrs. Edwin H. Randle, wife of Brig. Gen. Randle, has been elected president of the newly organized Fort Meade Woman's Club. Mrs. Leonard T. Gerow, wife of the Second Army's commanding general, is honorary president.

As Strike Goes On

House Group, GSI Blamed By Mediator

George E. Strong, conciliator in the GSI cafeteria dispute, last night blamed GSI and the Hoffman Labor Committee for the breakdown of his efforts to settle the 66-day-old strike.

Strong, an attorney and former Army colonel, announced the complete frustration of his peacemaking attempts in a report to Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming.

Strong was appointed conciliator by Fleming more than three weeks ago, when the White House ordered Fleming to get the dispute settled.

In his report to Fleming—the Government's "landlord" of the Federal building cafeterias—Strong wrote:

"The activities of this committee (the House subcommittee that has been investigating the strike under direction of Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.), have made settlement of the strike almost impossible.

"Just when I thought I had the strike settled, the subcommittee would get in contact with GSI, or issue subpenas, or hold a hearing at which GSI's representatives would make commitments under oath which they could not modify to effect a settlement."

Strong told The Washington Post that GSI's tactics in the last stages of this efforts early this week indicated to him the corporation "is intent on breaking this union."

The union is Local 471 of the CIO Cafeteria Workers (UWPA).

It was GSI's insistence on amending Strong's settlement proposal of March 3, he said, that finally caused the conciliation to bog down. The corporation even turned down a compromise amendment proposed by Strong, which "would have met GSI's objections," Strong said. The union already had accepted the whole proposal.

Fleming, who made no comment on Strong's report, has the power to terminate any of GSI's concessions on 60 days' notice.

About 1000 union members have been picketing the 40 operating cafeterias. They sought a 15-cent hourly raise, and walked out when GSI refused to negotiate until union leaders filed non-Communist affidavits.

On Capitol Hill, Hoffman's committee was preparing a report on its GSI hearings for presentation to the full Education and Labor Committee.

U. S. Urges 31 Exceptions In U. N. Veto

Lake Success, Mach 11 (NYHT). The United States proposed to the United Nations Little Assembly today a sweeping series of restrictions on the big-power veto in the Security Council.

The list, including 21 separate types of decision that should not be subject to the veto, according to American thinking, is the first important step on the veto since Secretary of State George C. Marshall told the General Assembly last fall this country would be willing to accept some limitation.

The American proposals today would have eliminated nearly all of the 21 vetoes exercised by Russia. A United States delegation official conceded it was doubtful the Russians would approve changes in the veto. They may win in the General Assembly, but cannot be put into effect without Soviet agreement.

One American proposal is that a simple majority should decide whether a question is procedural or substantive—whether the veto should apply or not.

None of the proposed changes would affect Security Council voting on inforcement measures. They would, however, remove most veto possibilities on Pacific setttlement of disputes, and make it impossible to veto any U. N. membership application.

Baltimore Groups Urge Defeat of Two Pending Bills

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—The Advertising Club of Baltimore and the Baltimore Association of Commerce today urged the defeat of two proposals now pending in Washington.

President Victor P. Skruck of the Advertising Club said letters had been sent to all members "to oppose" the District of Columbia income tax and licensing law and President Truman's reorganization plan No. 1 of 1948.

The latter would transfer unemployment compensation functions of the Federal Security Agency to the Department of Labor.

The District income tax, Skruck said, "requires business establishments located outside the District to pay a $10 license fee and a net income tax of 5 per cent on income derived from sources within the District."

The Association of Commerce had previously voted to oppose both bills.

Lot for Center Asked

Winchester, Va., March 11 (Spl.). The County Board of Supervisors has been requested to give a portion of a lot on East Boscawen st. as part of a site for the proposed war memorial community center. The land is being used as a public parking lot at present. About $75,000 has been raised by the Winchester-Frederick County War Memorial Association for the building.

Md. Drinking Shows Drop

Annapolis, Md., March 11 (AP).—Maryland alcoholic beverage tax statistics told a tale of temperance again last month showing a drop of 8.64 per cent in State revenue from the drinking set.

James J. Lacy, comptroller, reported today tax receipts from hard liquor for February were $330,610 compared to $365,084 for the same month last year.

Beer tax revenues fell from $117,900 to $93,045, a 21.08 per cent drop.

Wine revenues for February were $35,830 against $19,710 in the same month last year, a gain of 81.78 per cent.

Receipts for the fiscal year so far from all alcoholic beverages have totaled $4,259,131 against $5,900,198 last year, a drop of 16.47 per cent.

Patton Heads VFW

Winchester, Va., March 11 (Spl.).—Harold D. Patton has been elected commander of VFW Post 2123 to succeed Harry W. Butler, jr. Other new officers are Glenn Seabright, A. P. Barnhart, Richard Eddy, Dr. Leon Slavin, George Taylor, and Marshall Kremer.

Aid for a Hospital

Winchester, Va., March 11 (Spl.).—The Women's Auxiliary of Winchester Memorial Hospital has announced that it will present $10,500 for a five-bed ward unit in the proposed enlarged hospital.

Show Ban Lifted

Winchester, Va., March 11 (Spl.).—A ban on traveling shows enacted by the Frederick County Board of Supervisors last year has been lifted. The city council still has an ordinance banning shows within the corporate limits.

Why You Cannot Get Ahead As Your Father Did—

A tax revolution which is jeopardizing our chances of getting ahead—our very jobs—is gripping America today. The text of this editorial—currently appearing in McGraw-Hill publications—may be quoted from, or reprinted with or without credit mention.

This is the 66th of the series

The United States is being forced toward socialism by a tax revolution of far-reaching consequences.

We have not yet felt fully the deadly impact of this revolution because inflation and the postwar boom have delayed its effects.

But from now on, more and more people will feel its bite. Already it is the dominant element in our economic life. Already it is the major factor in our chances of keeping our jobs and of getting ahead.

Here are some pertinent facts on this tax revolution:

1. The tax load that our nation can safely carry has long since passed the danger point.

Our capitalistic system is in real danger when taxes take more than 20 percent of our national income (or 20¢ out of every income dollar). Beyond that point there are not sufficient dollars left in private hands for capitalistic America to raise the capital required to keep its industry going. So we are right now being nudged further and further into socialism.

For today taxes take twenty-five percent of national income (or 25¢ out of every income dollar).

2. The tax revolution has undercut the incentives that help us to get ahead.

The group whose incomes range from $5000 up now turns over about one-half of its total income to federal, state, and local tax collectors. Before the war, this group gave the tax collectors one-third of its collective income.

In sharp contrast, the group of people with incomes under $5000 pays the tax collectors 20% of its income for direct and hidden (mostly hidden) taxes—against 18% before the war. This lower-bracket group needs immediate tax relief but I believe most sincerely that persons earning less than $5,000 have a very vital reason for also supporting tax relief in the much more heavily hit upper brackets.

As you get ahead, you expect your taxes to go up. Taxes should be levied, in principle, according to ability to pay. But today tax rates rise so sharply that they virtually destroy all incentives to get ahead, to save, and to invest in new and untried enterprises that open up new jobs. The progressive tax idea now carried to punitive extremes has become a destructive tax revolution.

Today the U.S., envied by all the world for the wealth it has won under capitalistic incentives, has cut its incentives below those offered by that state whose police methods strike terror into the hearts of all workers.

Soviet Russia rewards successful managers, writers, and scientists better relatively than we do under our present tax system.

A revolution that sweeps away incentives will quickly sweep away our free enterprise economy. The only substitute ever found for free incentives is the whip-and-lash compulsion of the police state. And no police state has ever been able to match the production of a free people with a free economy that gives adequate rewards to individual producers.

3. The tax revolution hits squarely the average American's chances of keeping a job and of getting ahead.

If you make less than $5000 a year you may well ask why you should worry about a tax revolution that seems directed at the comparatively small group, about 10% of American families, who make $5000 a year or more.

The answer, it seems to me, is that "risk capital," the money that makes new jobs when invested in growing companies or in new businesses, must come largely from the people making more than $5000 a year. The others usually cannot afford to take any risks with their savings.

It was the savings of this 10% group that made possible the huge growth in American industry and American jobs and our progress in raising American living standards in the years before 1930.

Now the government is taking so much from the 10% group in taxes that they cannot afford to risk any savings they manage to accumulate. Most of their savings now go to insurance companies and savings banks which are barred by law from making risky investments or investments even in seasoned common stocks.

The flow of risk-capital from this 10% group can only be renewed by reducing their taxes. The result will benefit everyone over the difficult years to come by providing more and steadier employment for all.

The cost of the presently proposed reduction, less than 1% of the national income, can well come out of current revenue surplus. It will be repaid many-fold by the new enterprises it will stimulate.

4. Jobs will be lost if risk-capital does not increase.

Unless the flow of risk-capital into business can be doubled and trebled in the next few years, business investment in job-making new plants and equipment will drop sharply. The McGraw-Hill survey of prospective capital expenditures, reported in the previous editorial in this series, made that quite clear.

When such a drop in business investment has come in the past, it has brought with it a general slump in business—and unemployment.

As we work through the enormous demand for goods of all kinds built up during the war years, and as the war-accumulated savings of businesses and individuals are spent, it will be harder and harder to keep production and employment at today's high levels.

Then—at the very time that we shall need all our drive to maintain prosperity—we shall be hit by the full impact of the tax revolution.

5. Compounding these troubles is a tax system as out-of-date as an ox-cart.

Twenty years ago, when taxes took only twelve cents out of the national income dollar, our rattle-trap tax system was little more than a nuisance. Today, when it takes twice as big a bite, its double-taxing of the earnings of investors, its discriminatory excises, and the overlapping of federal, state, and local levies are a fatal handicap. A new system, a fair system, a rewarding system, is a necessity if American initiative and enterprise are to have a fair chance.

What Congress does now about federal taxes will bear crucially on our ability to sustain prosperity.

By demanding economy in government and by re-designing the tax system to stimulate initiative and risk-taking, Congress can multiply many times our chances of maintaining full employment and of raising living standards.

By allowing people to save more and by renewing the incentive to risk capital in new enterprises, Congress can actually insure a bigger tax return in the years ahead. More business will result—and pay more taxes.

That is the only way that a free people with a free economy can carry the tax load.

That is the best way that our government can improve our chances of keeping our jobs and of getting ahead. I suggest that you discuss these vital matters with your chosen representatives in Congress, in your state government, in your local community.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Family Wages Campaign to Break Up Romance Between Man, 40, and Lovely Divorcee Whom He Plans to Marry in Spring; Is This Right?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our eldest brother, who is 40, plans to marry a divorcee. We understand she divorced her husband to marry him.

She is in her early thirties and has a teen-age child. She seems like a lovely person. In fact, she is so very nice that if it weren't for the divorce we would be glad to have her in the family; but as it is, we are doing our best to break up the friendship.

Our parents, mother especially refuse to meet her but I have met her on several occasions and that's why I know she is nice.

Lately we have been inviting girl friends to our home for Tom's benefit and one in particular is very cooperative in making a play for him. She comes for dinner and spends the evenings. At first, Tom would go out when she was here, but now when she spends an evening with us he stays home, as she shows great interest in his hobby of photography.

Love Improves Man's Habits

THE DIVORCEE has never been to our home to share this interest of his, and Tom is very proud of his pictures. However, we don't give her the opportunity, as we would rather break up their friendship.

Tom isn't at all good looking and the divorcee is pretty. He has a good job, but so has she. He drank and smoked a lot in the past, but since he has gone with her he has cut down these habits to almost nothing.

What should we do? Let them continue their friendship and marry this spring? Or should we persevere in our campaign to try to break it up. Please answer soon as we are planning to have the other girl here to dinner again next Thursday—if you think we should.

D. A.

Family Picture Is Unwholesome

DEAR D. A.: What woman in her right mind, who knew the details of the family picture surrounding Tom, and who was able to read the implications of human behavior, would waste five minutes on him as a serious suitor or prospective husband?

What do we see here? A 40-year-old "boobus Americanus" (to purloin a term from Henry Mencken), still the infantile-charge of militantly protective mother and sisters, who is per se a foolish caricature of a fellow in the role of Romeo.

You ask, "Shall we let him marry the divorcee this spring? Or shall we perserve in our campaign to break it up?"

As to that, if you can sabotage the plan by cajoling him with home-treats, if you can swing him around to betraying his financee's trust, by the application of smirking two-edged prejudice and unscrupulous meddlesome pressure, you will simply be proving that Tom has no more character, backbone or manhood than a diapered idiot, hence has no business courting anybody.

Want to Keep Man on Leash

THE CARRYINGS-ON of Tom's female kin after getting wind of his intent to marry remind me somewhat of a nest of rattlesnakes assuming defense positions at the sound of approaching footsteps,—and though you say you object to Tom's tentative choice because she is divorced, that (to use an Al Smith word) is just so much "baloney." The truth is that the family is dead-set against Tom's marrying anybody, after having him around as a house pet for 40 years.

If I were advising the divorcee, I would tell her to drop Tom like a hot potato and cast her nets for a bona fide man, whose psychological growth hadn't been blocked at cradle-level by matriarch thwarting of masculine attributes.

So, to sum up, I think your collective behavior in this instance is infamously wrong in its bearing on Tom's social history, and I must infer it has always been so, with the result that he is a pathetically warped character and poor marriage risk, and therefore I cannot in conscience wish him on anybody. But if you want to do the decent thing, stop mismanaging his life and let him run it as he sees fit.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Slow Cooking Enhances Flavor

Chocolate, in Dual Role, Serves as Food, Drink

By Frederika Borchard

IN PRACTICALLY all known countries chocolate is recognized as both food and drink, and in many of them today it is an accepted medium of exchange and cementer of friendship, a gift to the tired old world from its offspring across the sea. Which is just as it has always been, from the time the first Spanish explorer returned to his native land with it after a visit to our hemisphere.

It is easy to cook with chocolate if a few simple facts are borne in mind. Long slow cooking enhances its texture and flavor, while high heat spells culinary disaster. Quantities of the product, as given in all the following recipes, are subject to modification. They are in balance and proportion, but a more pronounced or delicate flavor is a matter of individual taste. While vanilla emphasizes its richness, orange enhances its tang and coffee stimulates its characteristic bitterness.

Cinnamon, allspice, mace and ginger, alone or in combination can be added to advantage and almond essence adds an exotic touch.

Chocolate is richer than cocoa because it contains more cocoa butter. This difference may be overcome by substituting one tablespoon of shortening and three level tablespoons of cocoa for every square of bitter chocolate.

Cheap and Easies

2 cups corn flakes, unbroken
¼ cup raisins
¼ cup chopped walnuts
Dash of salt
½ pound semi-sweet chocolate, melted

Combine corn flakes, raisins and walnuts. Add salt to chocolate. Pour carefully over corn flake mixture, coating all flakes and breaking them as little as possible. Drop from teaspoon onto waxed paper. Chill. Approximate yield: 24 to 36 pieces.

Midas Torte

5 eggs, separated
Dash of salt
1¼ cups sugar
¼ pound ground nuts
3 squares (3 ounces) bitter chocolate
½ cup butter
2 teaspoons rum

Beat egg whites with salt until slightly stiff. Gradually beat in ¾ cup sugar. Fold in all but 2 tablespoons nuts. Place in two 7-inch spring layer cake pans. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) 1 hour. Place chocolate in top of double boiler. Melt over hot water. Add egg yolks, remaining sugar and 1 tablespoon butter. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in remaining butter and rum. Spread between layers and frost top.

Science Gimmicks Come to Aid Of Baby Sitter and Homemaker

By Harman W. Nichols

The world of tomorrow will be interesting—and at the same time dangerous.

It will be exciting because of the new gimmicks science is cooking up. One will sizzle a steak "medium-well" in 10 seconds; "well-done" in 15. Another, an electronic dust collector, will suck in 99 per cent of the dust, lint and pollen in the whole house.

Mama won't have to swing the dust rag more than once a month. She won't have to wash the curtains but once a year, even white ones.

The dust collector, science says, also will sound the death knell of the common cold, since while it is snuffling in all of the dust it will snuffle all of the stray germs at the same time.

In the future, the lights will go on in a room as soon as you cross the threshold, and flick off auto-

MARKET MEMO

By Lucia Brown

THE price on green beans has snapped down 5 to 10 cents on the pound this week, making this vegetable . . . both the green and yellow kind . . . a better buy than last weekend. Green peppers are cheaper, too. There are more medium-sized peppers on the market and they are selling for about a third less than the jumbos. Cabbage and lettuce continue to be very reasonable. Other plentiful vegetables are cauliflower, carrots, greens, celery, radishes and red and white potatoes.

A 5-cent drop in the price of eggs has brought them down to around 59 or 60 cents a dozen in many stores. Otherwise, rates on poultry products remain unchanged. There's little difference in most meat prices compared with last weekend, except that smoked products tend to be a shade higher.

CANNED FOOD CUE: The latest list of plentiful canned foods issued by the Department of Agriculture rates citrus and tomato juice as excellent buys. Pumpkin, sweet potatoes, and lower grade peas are the three canned vegetables on the plentiful list. Top grade and small-sized peas are in light supply, however, and relatively high in price.

TASTY TREATS such as nuts, jams, jellies, marmalades, honey and fruit butters are much cheaper than last year, says the department. Walnuts, filberts and pecans are selling about 25 per cent less at wholesale. Bottled honey prices are off 40 per cent. That larger supply of sugar last summer encouraged the making of fruit spreads, hence the receding prices now.

Your Questions On Homemaking

I would appreciate it if you would tell me how to remove blue ink spots from wallpaper. I do not know whether the ink is washable or not. The spots are about the size of a quarter.

V. W. F.

Ink stains can be removed from wallpaper by the use of a commercial ink remover kit. Apply solution 1 from the kit with a water color paint brush, blot away excess and then wet with solution 2. Or you can use a concentrated solution of household bleach applied with a water color brush. Be sure not to apply enough of any liquid to run down the wall. Keep a clean blotter handy to blot away the excess. Since these solutions are bleaches, they are apt to remove the color from the wallpaper. If this happens, the design can be filled in with crayons or water color paints.

Would you tell us how windows should be puttied so that the putty will not crack off in a short time?

A. R.

If the putty cracks and falls in a short time, it is probably because it has been applied against bare wood which absorbs oil from the putty and leaves it brittie so that it crumbles. To prevent this, remove all putty, give the wood a coat of linseed oil or thin paint to seal the pores, and apply fresh putty.

Will you tell me if there is any cleaning fluid that will remove indelible ink from a light covert cloth coat? The ink has been on the coat since last fall.

M.R.A.

Indelible ink is hard to remove, but try this: Place a pad of cloth under the stain and sponge with alcohol. Then rub glycerine into the stain, rub it well between the hands and rinse out with alcohol. If this lightens the stain but doesn't remove the stain, perhaps it can be taken out by a bleach. Stretch stained area over a bowl of hot water, moisten the stain and apply oxalic acid crystals (poison) directly to the stain. Rinse by dipping in hot water in the bowl and finally by rinsing in water to which a few drops of ammonia water have been added. Be sure to test the effect of the oxalic acid on an inconspicuous spot of the coat before applying to the stain.

I would like to know how to clear a gray stripped brocatelle sofa that has a light film of dirt covering it, also a rose chair of the same material. I do hate

Girl Scouts of America Celebrate 36th Anniversary Today

Today marks the thirty-sixth anniversary of the Girl Scouts of America.

And the organization has grown to a membership of approximately a million and a half since March 12, 1912, in Savannah, Ga., when Juliette Low invited 11 girls from Miss Nina Pape's Girls School to meet her for tea and form the first Girl Scout troop.

The Scouts' basic principle, "Be Prepared," calls for study in 11 separate program fields that is preparation for useful citizenship.

In addition to helping with national campaigns such as the March of Dimes, Community Chest, etc., the Scouts in Washington and Montgomery County have worked on 32 overseas projects. For example, District III has clothed, fed and supported a French child for nearly two years.

Senior Girl Scouts in this area serve as hospital aides in Garfield, George Washington, Freedman's and Gallinger Hospitals. Their duties include bedmaking, feeding patients, general postmaternal care, clerical duty and messenger service.

Kay Padgett, chosen the outstanding Girl Scout Hospital Aide during the past year, spent 321½ hours on voluntary work at Gallinger Hospital.

Local Scouts have also joined the national "Clothes for Freedom" project, which intends to send 100,000 clothing kits to children in Europe and Asia.

Friends Say 'Bon Voyage' At Tea Party

Senorita Minerva Bernardino was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Charles W. O. Bunker entertained yesterday at a "bon voyage" tea. As president of the Inter-American Commission of Women, Senorita Bernardino is leaving on March 18 to attend the Pan Amercian Conference in Bogota, Colombia. At this conference, she will also serve as representative of the Dominican Republic.

The tea is one of a series planned by Mrs. Bunker in the "spirit of Inter-American cooperation." At these periodic get-togethers, women prominent in Latin American diplomatic circles and Washington women interested in forwarding the good neighbor policy work for a better understanding among the peoples of the Americas.

Guests who took turns presiding at the tea table yesterday were Senora de Thomen, wife of the Ambassador of the Dominican Republic; Senora de Mora, wife of the Minister of Uruguay; Senora de Ivanissevich, wife of the Ambassador of the Argentine; Mrs. Clark H. Woodward, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and Mrs. Martin Vogel.

Other guests included Senora de Dillon, wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador; Senora de Caceres, wife of the Honduran Ambassador; Senora de Munilla, Representative Margaret Chase Smith, Mrs. Lowell Stockman, Mrs. A. Burks Summers, Mrs. Alf Heiberg, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. W. H. Milton, Mrs. Aime Forand, Mrs. Carl Stefan, Mrs. J. W. Peters and Mrs. W. H. Howells.

Egyptian Attaches Will Entertain

The Air Attache of the Egyptian Embassy, Col. M. A. Khalifa, and the Military Attache of the Embassy, Col. M. H. Haiba, will entertain at cocktails on Friday, March 19, from 6 to 9.

Rings on Their Fingers

Kerner—Adelson

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kerner announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alma Kerner, to Max Adelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adelson.

The bride-elect attended Brooklyn College in New York and Southeastern University. She is a member of Sigma Gamma Delta sorority of this city. Mr. Adelson was graduated from Central High School and served in Europe with the Third Army.

The wedding is planned for July.

Franklin—Morris

The engagement of their daughter, Miss Cassandra Small Franklin, to Caspar Wistar Morris, jr., has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Franklin of Ardmore, Pa. Mr. Franklin is traffic vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The bride-elect was graduated from St. Timothy's School, Catonsville, Md., and Vassar College, class of 1947. She is a granddaughter of the late Col. and Mrs. Walter S. Franklin of Baltimore and the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Latimer Small of York, Pa.

Mr. Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Wistar Morris of Haverford, Pa., was graduated from Montgomery School and is attending Harvard University, where he is a member of the Hasty Pudding and Fly Club. During the war he served overseas in the 104th Infantry Division.

New British Minister Arrives in Capital

Frederick R. Hoyer Millar, newly appointed British Minister, arrived in Washington yesterday from London. Mrs. Hoyer Millar will arrive in the late spring with their children.

The new Minister, son-in-law of the former Dutch Minister to Great Britain, Rene de Marees van Swinderen and Mme. van Swinderen, who now live in Washington, was last here in 1942 when he was Counselor of Embassy. He was serving as Assistant Undersecretary of State in the Foreign Office at the time of his latest appointment.

Dr. Slavik to Be Celebrity Tea Guest of Honor

Dr. Juraj Slavik, former Czechoslovakian Ambassador, who resigned last week as representative of the Communist-dominated government at Prague, will be honor guest and speaker Monday in the second of a series of celebrity teas given for the public at 5:30 p. m. in the new Palladian Room of Shoreham Hotel.

The D. C. League of Women Voters will serve as hostess with Mrs. John Thomas, president, presiding. Mrs. Harold A. Stone, vice president of the National League, will introduce Dr. Slavik and act as moderator during the press interviews which will follow the talk.

Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Souls' Unitarian Church, who returned last week from Czechoslovakia, will also be there for the interview.

Table reservations for the regular Monday event may be made by calling the Palladian Room of the Shoreham.

Society Attends Gay Debut Of Town, Country Room

WITH a fanfare of airy color and subdued music, Washington's newest, smart dining spot came to life yesterday and was officially dubbed the Town and Country Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

A small, select group from residential circles was on hand for the room's debut. New York took cognizance of the event by sending down a dozen guests, including society and fashion editors of such magazines as Vogue and Harper's Bazaar.

There were quick comments of approval as the room filled with guests. Gay and pretty, it is the type of retreat that Washingtonians will think of especially when the torrid season rolls around.

Its locale is that corner of the Mayflower which is bounded by Connecticut ave. and De Sales st. For many years it housed the drug store and men's bar, but in the past three months it has been transformed into a spacious L-shaped room. The old, familiar men's bar remains in approximately the same place it has always occupied, but it, too, has been given a complete face lifting job.

Mirrors Reflect

Blooming flowers and glossy-leaved growing plants are reflected in pillars of dark mirrors. Deep-piled green carpets harmonize with softly tinted walls and ceiling. The color scheme throughout is cool, refreshing violet, and green combined with blond wood and gleaming white touches at the tables.

There is violet in the linen upholstery of the banquette which extends around the room. Other banquettes and chairs are in wood violet, a tone repeated in the livery of the waiters.

The men's bar has been redecorated with tan leather walls and green leather banquettes and chairs. The bar itself is in blond wood.

The Town and Country Room, designed as a pleasant, informal retreat for that quiet cocktail and snack, is smaller than most rooms of its type. Capacity is about 100 and the adjoining bar will hold no more than 50 patrons.

A full complement of guests was on hand for yesterday's opening during the cocktail hour.

Among those seen at tables around the room were Mrs. George Mesta, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Schenck, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Claggett, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, Rear Admiral and Mrs. J. J. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Hendrick Eustis, Ralph McBane, John Logan, George Livingston Williams, J. Frederick Roy, Gen. and Mrs. Clayton S. Adams and many more.

Envoys Attend

Others invited to view the new room were the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins, the British Minister, Sir John Balfour, and Lady Balfour; Serge Sheremetieff and Mrs. Rowen Shevlin.

Conrad Hilton of New York, owner of the Hilton chain of hotels, of which the Mayflower is part, was present for the opening, having as special guests Col. Serge Obolensky and Joseph P. Binns.

Magazine editors who came from New York for the occasion were Kenneth Chambers of Harpers Bazaar, Mrs. Constance Woodworth, fashion editor of the same magazine; Miss Margaret Case, society editor of Vogue; Mrs. Betsy Talbot Blackwell, editor of Mademoiselle, and Miss Sally Iselin, society editor of Town and Country.

Abdication Story, Uncensored

Michael's Story, Now Told, Runs True to the Pattern Of Iron Curtain Plots

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEW YORK.—King Michael of Romania and his mother, Queen Helen, are here unofficially on a strictly nonpolitical visit. The King, as has been rumored, is not planning to form a government in exile, since neither the United States nor Britain could recognize such a setup when both maintain diplomatic relations with the present Romanian regime.

No patriotic organization or commercial enterprise is contributing a cent for expenses. The King is financing the trip personally from funds derived by the sale of such products as wine and grain grown on the crown estates. So far this relatively modest sum is all the Communists have let the King take out of the country.

Story of the Abdication

THE story of Michael's abdication, hitherto censored, runs true to iron curtain pattern. When the King left his country for London and Princess Elizabeth's wedding the Communist-controlled government was sure he'd never dare return. Turning down his request for permission to marry Princess Anne further reassured them. But when the King had the temerity to return they moved fast. A day before he was scheduled to make his annual speech at the opening of Congress, Michael was summoned to Bucharest from his country place.

Because his palace had been badly bombed by the Nazis, the King always stayed with his aunt, the former Queen Elizabeth of Greece, in a house surrounded by a park and some distance from the center of town. Once there he was surrounded by Communist troops, the telephone lines were cut, all those trying to get to the King were stopped.

News Stuns Bucharest

IN BUCHAREST no one was aware of what was happening. Meanwhile, Prime Minister Groza arrived with the abdication document all prepared. It included one significant phrase, the King was being forced to abdicate because he was "an obstacle to future plans for Romania." The King's only alternative to signing was imprisonment or possible deportation to Russia.

Later in the afternoon, when the radio blared news of the abdication, everyone in Bucharest was stunned. People wept openly in the streets, business was at a standstill. The following day the King and Queen left Bucharest for their country place to pack for their trip to exile.

Communist troops had replaced the King's guard, and when the royal party drove up to their own gate their car was stopped, the soldier demanding identification of each person in the car. Three days later they left Sinaia. As the royal car went through the gate, huge floodlit photographs of Ana Pauker and Gheordju Dej, Communist overlords of Romania, had been hung on flanking sentry boxes. No one was allowed on the station platform to say goodby. All the soldiers had been forbidden to salute the King. Some hours later the train passed through a village near which the King owned a country estate. The villagers, to a man, wished to come to the station to salute the King. The police, learning of the plan, stopped them. On the train the masculine members of the party and several of the women were stripped and searched, some jewelry was stolen. No one except the King and Queen had more than a suitcase or two of personal possessions. Most of them went into exile almost penniless. After this trip most of those who left with the King will settle down to making a living in a strange country. Meanwhile they are here sampling our democracy, pinching themselves to see if it isn't all a dream.

Expects to Regain Throne

ON HIS arrival here, the King answered all questions in perfect English and with considerable wit. He intends to visit factories to see how our brand of democracy works. The queen is interested in hospitals and most aspects of social work. Questioned about Romania, the King believes he will regain his throne, is sure almost every Romanian wants him back. As for his marriage to Princess Anne of Bourbon Parme, no date has been set, and he has no idea where they will live.

Movie to Be Shown

A movie based on a novel written by the new President of Venezuela, Romulo Gallegos, will be shown at the Pan American Union this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Hall of the Americas. The title of the picture is "Dona Barbara." Subtitles are in English.

Brookings to Give Farewell Party Tuesday

ADMIRAL P. W. B. Brooking, retiring Chief of Staff of the British Naval Staff, and Mrs. Brooking will give a farewell party on Tuesday from 6 to 8. Mrs. Martin Vogel has turned her house on 30th st. over to the Brookings for the occasion.

Admiral and Mrs. Brooking will introduce the admiral's successor, Admiral Schofield, and Mrs. Schofield at their party on Tuesday.

New Gadgets for the Home

matically when you go out.

It'll soon be possible for one family to sit at home and do the baby-sitting for the whole neighborhood, thanks to a little gadget that operates on the principle of the inter-office communication system.

The kids down the block get into a pillow fight and o. goes a light in the sitter's home, telling which house the scrap is in. All of the dope except the name of the kid who started it. That may come later.

Before long, you'll be able to walk into a drugstore and come out with one of those two-way wrist watch radios like Secretary of Commerce Harriman gave Mr. Truman for Christmas.

Very Simple Electronics

So much for the interesting part of life.

Now for the dangerous part. For that you can blame a handsome gentleman named Gordon Volkenant, who calls himself a "short hair" scientist. He works for Minneapolis Honeywell and goes around the country making lectures on how simple electronics are.

Mr. V., a fine father and a family man, was very proud of a new invention he and his colleagues had thought up. So he tucked one under his arm, and took it home to show to the little woman. He shouldn't have.

The Gadget Works

It's called a "husband detector." You hide the thing behind a drape or a radio or something and when somebody walks through the front door, it buzzes—like a five-alarm fire.

Mrs. V., being a woman who likes to play guinea pig to her husband's inventions, tried it out at night.

Mr. V. found that his gadget worked too well. Far too well. He came tiptoeing up the steps that first night, shoes in hand, and lifted the latch. Being an inventor, he had himself a noncreak door. It didn't creak, but the husband-detector was on the job. It went off and his wife came loping down the steps to greet him with one eye and a look at the clock with the other.

It was 3 in the a. m.

The darn thing probably will be on the market before our inventor friend gets out of the doghouse.

Even Babies Can Be Odd About Foods

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mothers are unnecessarily worried when their children's food tastes tend to deviate from the average. Yet babies are individuals from the day of birth. Indications of the scientific consideration of individual differences are the newer way of managing schedules by letting the baby establish his own, and the newer method of computing the child's progress in height and weight, by the Grid method, which allows for the child to fall into certain channels and follow his own path of development.

It is sensible to work toward a pattern of eating and sleeping and expect one in development which approximates the average. But, if the baby is happy and contented and developing, though different, there seems no reason why he has to be whipped into line.

Here is a baby who has never liked milk from the day it was born. (What a shame it couldn't have been breast-fed!) Yet despite this consistent dislike and refusal, he has remained strong, well, good-natured and growing as expected. It would seem that after 9 months of such an experience, the mother would be satisfied to allow baby to eat as he pleases. But she isn't.

Mrs. F. writes, "My boy is 9 months old. He weighs 20 pounds. He has never liked a formula and he is no better now. He has four teeth, two more coming through. He has had his shots and they gave him no trouble. He wakes between 6 and 7 and after urging will take three ounces of formula. He naps for about an hour.

"Then I give him four tablespoons of cereal and a raw egg yolk strained into a few ounces of milk. He then takes about half a jar of strained fruit.

"I put him in his playpen, where he exercises continually. Between 11:30 and 12 o'clock I give him orange juice and vitamin D. He is out in the air until 1:30 p. m.

"For three weeks he hasn't touched his noon meal. Then at 2:30 I give him soup and custard. He has no enthusiasm for vegetables or baked potatoes. He'll take five ounces of milk two hours after his 2:30 meal. He sleeps then and is awake until 7:30. He fights cereal or mashed banana; and seldom takes milk at 10:30 p. m., though I offer it. I worry about his refusal of milk."

Have you tried goat's milk? Can't you rearrange the meals so he is hungrier at noon? Give food at 11:30 to 12 instead of juice and vitamin D. Try solid foods containing milk and don't fuss if he refuses the bottle. He's evidently progressing beautifully on his queer diet—so there isn't much room for worry.

New Recipes For Cake, Pie

Sprinkle with nuts. Let stand overnight. Yield: One 7-inch layer cake.

TARRED ANGEL PIE

¾ pound marshmallows
1/3 cup orange juice
1½ cups heavy cream, whipped
1 graham cracker crust, baked
¾ cup semi-sweet chocolate, melted
1 cup grated coconut

Combine marshmallows and orange juice in top of double boiler. Heat over hot water until marshallows are melted. Cool. Fold in cream. Pour into chilled pie shell. Chill immediately. When completely chilled, cover with chocolate. Top with coconut. Chill. Yield: One 9-inch pie.

PEACHES RING AROUND

1 package chocolate pudding
2 cups milk
1½ cups cooked rice
¼ cup evaporated milk
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2½ cups sweetened peaches

Combine chocolate pudding with ½ cup milk. Stir until smooth. Add remaining milk and bring to a slow boil. Simmer, stirring constantly, 3 minutes. Add rice, evaporated milk and cinnamon. Pour into wet 1-quart ring mold. Chill. Unmold. Fill center with peaches. Approximate yield: 6 portions.

slip covers; I love to enjoy my furniture. What is your opinion about slip covers? N. L. Y.

You can clean the upholstery by shampooing with a soap jelly. Prepare the jelly by dissolving 1 cup mild soap flakes in 2 cups warm water. Allow to cool and beat with an egg beater. Prepare plenty, for you clean with the suds alone. Now, apply the lather with a small brush to a small area of upholstery. Rub in a circular motion until upholstery is clean. Wipe away soiled suds and wipe again with another cloth wrung out of clear water. Be sure to keep changing the rinse water so it stays clean and you can rinse thoroughly. Continue over the entire piece in this way, working over some of the already cleaned area each time you move to another so that no uncleaned strips are left between. Be sure to test the effect of the suds first on back part of the upholstery to see if it will cause the colors to run before proceeding. When piece is shampooed, set in sunny, airy place to dry quickly or turn an electric fan onto it.

For furniture which is subjected to much use, slip covers offer a comparatively easy and inexpensive way to protect the upholstery and keep it clean. And, when slip covers are well chosen as to design and color and are properly fitted, they can be an attractive addition to any room.

I wish to cover a wooden clothes hamper with cretonne of fairly heavy quality, and use the hamper as a seat in my dressing room. Will you kindly tell me how to go about the work of covering the simple, straight-lined hamper? Would the material be glued to the wood or fastened in some other way as a slip cover? T. M. A.

If the hamper has a lid at the top which lifts up, the best method for attaching the cretonne would be by the use of upholstery tacks. These can be purchased at dime and hardware stores and are available with heads in several colors as well as black and white. Since you wish to use the hamper as a seat, I would suggest you arrange some padding under the top cretonne cover such as a thin pillow, an old blanket or cotton batting. Now, cut the cretonne the size of the top, allowing 3 or 4 inches turn under all around. Tack this to the top, spacing the upholstery tacks evenly all around for decorative purposes. The cretonne for the sides can be tacked to the hamper both top and bottom—or if you wish a slip cover effect, gather or pleat the cretonne onto a band, tacking the band to the top edge of the hamper. The cretonne should fall loosely to the floor completely covering the hamper. The bottom edge could be finished with a ruffle, pleats or hem.

Can you tell me whether or not a cedar chest is a good place to store clothing for an expected baby? I have a number of woolen and cotton articles that have to be saved for a couple of months, but hesitate putting them in a cedar chest for fear that the odor might cling to them even after airing. Will this odor be harmful to the baby, as I don't want to wash everything before it is used? E. G. C.

The cedar odor will not be harmful to your baby. If the chest is new and the odor especially strong, it might be wise to air the articles for a day or so before using them, but washing would not be necessary.

Last year a friend invited me to his home for dinner on my birthday. It was also his son's birthday. His wife remembered me with candy. I took no gift for the son. They are very comfortable and my income meager. Having received another invitation for this year, do you think it proper or necessary for me to take some little gift for him? L. G.

It would be proper, and, I think, very thoughtful for you to take a gift to your hostess' son. Such a gift need not be expensive, but should be well chosen taking into consideration the son's age and interests.

BERNEY'S steak house, which has created quite a hubbub already, is managing to stay in the public's eye with another new idea. . . . Every week Berney runs his finger down the phone book and picks out a name at random. Then he places an ad in the paper telling the person selected that he or she is invited to dine, along with three friends, as Berney's guest for the day.

MISS BRANCH

A letter from White Sulphur Springs way tells us that the Greenbrier is due to open next month, which makes 20 consecutive seasons for Meyer Davis at that popular society rendevous.

Erskine Butterfield, the popular pianist, will begin a two-week engagement at the Merry-Land Club Monday . . . The first week of his engagement will be the seventh anniversary there for Owner Olivia Davis, and she plans quite a celebration.

We finally got around to eating a full dinner at the Little Mexico, and although we've never been in Mexico the food certainly meets with all reliable descriptions of Mexican foods . . . Here's a friendly warning to those of you who haven't been there yet. Stay away from the pot of hot sauce placed on each table unless you're able to hold several gallons of water on short notice . . . The stuff is really hot.

Marjory Hendricks, owner of Watergate Inn and Normandy Farm, is planning a special dinner for those of you who plan to dine out on Easter Sunday.

The two outstanding people in the Club Cairo show this week are Kay Vernon and Georgie Tapps . . . Kay is one of the few female warblers today who puts everything they have into a song . . . Tapps proves himself one of the top club dancers we've seen for some time . . . He's especially good in his version of the Hawaiian War Dance.

LAST week we said a picture of Barbara Branch, one of the Sheraton Lounge waitresses, was appearing in the column that day, but somewhere along the line things got mixed up—hence no picture . . . This week we're crossing our fingers and saying you'll find her at the top of the column.

Doraine and Ellis at the Mayflower lounge have a novel way of bowing out of the audience after their Western routine is finished . . . While the crowd is urging another encore, they simply say that their horses are tied up outside and it's getting rather cold . . . The pair will be leaving the Mayflower Sunday and will be replaced by Florence and Frederic, two Parisian dancers fresh from France, who, if they may be judged by their pictures, should be exciting.

Has anyone noticed the whole list of things River Bend is offering for $2 on its weekly Wednesday night Piggy Party? It runs from soda to coke in the mixer line and from chili to half a dozen kinds of sandwiches for food.

Veering away from current night clubs for a moment we'd like to suggest to you small orchestra fanciers and club owners that it's not a bad idea to keep your eyes on the smaller musical aggregations that are now playing for sorority and fraternity dances with the thought in mind of booking them into your club . . . One of these outfits, called Music by Hilliard, featuring Lee Parker, will be playing in the Continental Room of the Statler on March 27 . . . A wise club owner might be able to do himself some good.

Labor Law Forum Is Listed Tonight

Labor laws and their relation to industrial peace will be debated at a dinner forum sponsored by the Prince Georges County League of Women Voters tonight at 8 p. m. at the Lord Calvert Hotel, College Park.

Participants in the discussion will be Milton Smith, associate general counsel of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and John Whittlesey, labor relations attorney for the USCC, outlining management's point of view, and Herbert Thatcher, counsel for the AFL, and Leslie Fishman, research associate for CIO, speaking on behalf of labor. Alfred Friendly, labor editor of The Washington Post, will serve as moderator.

The voters' league has extended invitations to civic and political leaders in Prince Georges County, and the forum discussion will be open to the general public. The dinner will be preceded by an informal reception, beginning at 6:30 p. m.

The forum will be rebroadcast over Station WINX at 9:30 that night.

WHY DOES THE POST LEAD IN WANT AD GAINS?

CONTINUE TO

How to explain the fact that The Washington Post showed a greater percentage gain in want ads last year—over the 1946 total—than any other local paper? And what's causing that trend to continue in 1948? (Last month The Post carried 31% more ads than in February, 1947, the second paper increased only 12%). The answer, of course, is results like these—typical cases in which the same ad that brought no response in another paper quickly succeeded in The Post:

Room Rented

ARL.—Room, twin beds, conv. transp. Govt. bldg., Wash. OL. xxxx after 7:30.

"No results from the other paper. Switched to The Post and got a tenant in four days," says Mrs. P. M. of Taft Street, Arlington.

Car Sold

BUICK, 1942 Special sedanette; 1946 motor; 13,000 miles; 4 new tires; defroster; r. and h. AT. xxxx.

"No luck with my ad until I placed it in The Post. Sold car first day," reports Mr. F. Y., Blue Plains Drive.

Found Home for Dog

POMERANIAN, male, beautiful tiny orange sable, 15 mos., AKC, $50. Phone PL. xxxx.

"Couldn't find a buyer elsewhere. Results first day through Post," states Mrs. C. W. of Lexington Street.

Next time you have need to place a want ad, use The Post—and get results.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

The Glasses Are Sterilized and Science Marches On!

"Since you bring up the subject of restaurant sanitation," writes Katherine Thompson of 3922 Benton st. nw., "you might like to hear about a scene I witnessed recently.

"The bus boy was carrying dirty glasses to the sterilizer in the traditional manner. He stuck his fingers into a nest of them and picked up as many as he could handle.

"Then he began setting out sterilized glasses—in the same manner. His dirty fingers contaminated the inside of every glass.

"The manager of the restaurant had done his best. Everything in his place was modern and sanitary, except his bus boy."

Incidentally, I'm told that local Health Department officials are perturbed about our orginal letter about restaurant sanitation, and are considering a reply to "point out inaccuracies."

To date, however, no such reply has been received. Perhaps we can hurry it along by noting this observation from Constance Steel of 1743 P st. nw.:

"Since the Health Department is part of our District government, I'm inclined to think that the whole thing adds up to a lack of self-government. If we could run our own affairs we'd be better off."

Or at least we'd have nobody but ourselves to blame for these things.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Mrs. Homer George of Catlett, Va., forwards this classified ad culled from the Fauquier Democrat:

FOR SALE—Model A half-ton truck, 41 wheels.

Bette Dorgan of 1344 19th st. nw. forwards this classified ad from a Portland (Me.) paper:

LOST—gold pendant walking from 47th st. to First Baptist Church.

IT TAKES ALL KINDS

The Board of Trade's courtesy campaign is turning up quite a variety of communications. Two from this morning's mail will serve to illustrate:

"I was one of the parents taking 22 school children to visit the Interior Department," writes Mrs. S. H. Glidden of 7239 Allentown rd. se.

"When about half of the children had boarded a Friendship Heights car, the motorman suddenly decided that he couldn't tarry any longer. So he shut the doors and drove off.

"Fortunately, I had been among the first to board the car. Otherwise those children would have been without supervision. And it was also fortunate that another parent had remained behind with the other children, or they would have been left stranded.

"It was more by good luck than good management that part of the children were not endangered by this striking lack of courtesy."

That's one side of the picture. The other side comes from William M. Seay of 409 S. Clifton Terrace, who writes:

"This happened on a Number 50 car yesterday morning. Along about P st. a girl got up from her seat and walked forward to talk to the motorman.

"We heard that it was something about a pocketbook, and we saw the operator shake his head, as if to indicate that he knew nothing about it.

"Whereupon the girl burst into tears and returned to her seat. And what do you suppose that awful motorman did?

"He stopped his car, came back and started poking around under the seats, and in a few seconds restored the purse to its sobbing owner.

"As the motorman returned to his controls, the sobs ebbed away and the smile which spread across the girl's face was reflected on the face of every passenger in the car."

Yep—it takes all kinds to make a world.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY DEPT.

Mrs. Robert Sammons of 1 Knox pl., Silver Spring, Md., reports that her 5-year-old son, Billy, thinks Red Skelton is a dead Indian.

And A. F. Sesson of 4609 24th ave. says he's disappointed to hear that the Walking Man is Jack Benny.

District Liner Sesson thought the Walking Man was that good old American, P. Destrian.

(That reminds me of the ad run by the used car lot which wanted to urge people to sell it their cars. The dealer advertised: "Top cash prices paid. You, too, can be a wealthy pedestrian.")

HOLLYWOOD.—John Gunther tells of the first time he met Dorothy Parker, at a party given by Elsa Maxwell, when one of the guests told Miss Maxwell: "I'm going to look at some pictures by Augustus John. You know him, of course" . . . "Elsa knows him so well," said Mrs. Parker, "she calls him Augustus Jack."

POLITICS: At political discussions in Hollywood, the local Democrats look for authoritative opinions to Edward J. Flynn, the public relations man here. These authoritative views stem from the fact that he recently spent a few weeks in New York, and lived at the Hotel Commodore—where Edward J. Flynn, the Democratic leader, has his offices and where press agent Flynn usually received politician Flynn's mail.

DECORATION DEPT.: Mrs. Leo C. Rosten went to a decorator's shop near Beverly Drive to buy a table. The salesman showed her one which had a circular bottom shelf covered with leather-bound backs of volumes which looked almost like real books . . . "No, thank you," said Mrs. Rosten. "Those are artificial" . . . "They're not artificial," said the salesman. "They're real covers off real books."

TRAVEL NOTE: Richard Brooks, author of "The Brick Foxhole" and "The Boiling Point," was in the Marine Corps during the war. His assignments took him to many places to which he traveled by plane. He never has overcome his aversion to flying . . . "When you're in a plane," he was asked, "do you feel like smoking, or eating or sleeping?" . . . "No," he replied. "When I'm in a plane I feel like confessing."

HELP WANTED: Paul Hollister tells of Sigourney Thayer, the New York socialite, who decided to enter the banking business. He phoned the Chemical Bank, said he had position and money, and asked to be president of the bank. They told him they had one. He called another big bank, and asked to be vice president. "We have trouble with our printer," he was told, "who complains we have so many vice presidents now he can't get them on one letterhead" . . . He went to bank after bank, each time asking for a lesser job. On 14th st., he asked for the job of bank doorman and said: 'I'm very strong" . . . "We have a strong doorman now," Thayer insisted he was told, "and to show you how strong he is, he's going to throw you out right now."

McGrath Irked by Forrestal

By Drew Pearson

Despite denials of Senator J. Howard McGrath that he has felt like resigning as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, McGrath several times has been near the boiling point.

PEARSON

One occured only last week and took the form of a hot feud with none other than Secretary of National Defense Forrestal.

Just one week ago today—March 5—Forrestal phoned McGrath that he was appointing Russell J. Hopley of Omaha, president of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., as Director of Civilian Defense. Under direct orders from the White House, every Cabinet member is required to clear all job appointments with the chairman of the National Committee. This has been a rule of both Democratic and Republican administrations for years. It is supposed to prevent political enemies from being taken to the bosom of the family.

Checking on Hopley, McGrath informed Forrestal that he was flatly opposed to the appointment. Not only was Hopley a Republican, but a big-business Republican who had bitterly fought labor up and down the State of Nebraska.

In a war job, Hopleys appointment might be O.K., McGrath argued. But to put a labor-baiter in charge of civil defense, where labor is involved, was another matter. So he asked Forrestal to hold up the appointment until it could be taken up with President Truman, then still in Florida.

Forrestal agreed.

Whereupon, with McGrath's back turned, the story of Hopley's appointment mysteriously leaked to the press—following which Forrestal brusquely informed McGrath he would have to make the appointment anyway since it had now been published.

That was one reason why the discouraged McGrath has felt like resigning. Here is another.

Just one week before, Forrestal had appointed as his deputy on atomic matters, Donald F. Carpenter, president of the Remington Arms Co., a duPont subsidiary.

Mr. Carpenter is a member of the same duPont-Carpenter family which poured money into Republican campaigns against Truman and Roosevelt as if it were water. He is also a member of the duPont-Carpenter family which organized the Liberty League to defeat Roosevelt. Naturally McGrath received this news with no thrill.

D. C. Law Connection

When hard-hitting Senator Ferguson of Michigan begins his probe of the Civil Aeronautics Board he is expected, among other things, to take more than passing notice of a certain Washington law firm.

That firm is Gambrell & White, attorneys for Eastern Airlines. A member of that firm from 1941 up until a few weeks ago was John E. Branch, son of charming Commissioner Harllee Branch of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Senator Ferguson's committee is also expected to delve into any interesting reasons which may lie behind the fact that the same Harllee Branch voted against giving Colonial Airlines the right to fly between New York and Washington—which, of course, would be in direct competition with Eastern Airlines, which his son represents.

Colonial has an air-safety record of no fatalities in 18 years, was recommended by the CAB examiner to operate the New York-Washington route. But Harllee Branch's vote swung the decision against Colonial to National Airlines—even though its pilots are out on strike.

Note—Young Branch was retained by Eastern Airlines' law firm in 1941 shortly after he graduated from law school. Then, as the fight between Eastern and Colonial reached a climax, he was made a partner in 1945. With his father's resignation from the CAB a few weeks ago, young Branch's connection with the law firm ended.

Howard Fram Doomed to Die For Slaying

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—Howard A. Fram, 31-year-old baker's helper from Kensington, Md., yesterday was sentenced to death by hanging for the hatchet slaying at Christmas time of an elderly Baltimore grocer.

Fram was convicted of first degree murder last week after he pleaded guilty. He told Judge Herman M. Moser that he had been worried about the money to buy Christmas presents for his two children.

He admitted attacking 77-year-old George Lehr in the small neighborhood grocery near his rooming house, hiding Lehr under some packing cases behind a counter and waiting on several customers.

He later took $40 from the cash register and two cartons of cigarettes, locked up the store and fled.

Lehr was found near death almost four hours later when two boys discovered his keys in a vacant lot. The grocer died a week later on Christmas Eve.

Judge Moser had the alternative of sentencing Fram to death or life imprisonment. He declared that a killing in the course of a deliberate robbery is an offense that calls for the ultimate penalty.

He said it would be "blind and stupid" to assess lesser punishment.

Fear not the Lord

The Lord, our God, is powerful . . . Beyond all earthly skill . . . But we should not be moved by fear . . . In following His will . . . We should not be afraid of Him . . . Along our daily path . . . Or serve His wishes solely to . . . Avoid His righteous wrath . . . But we should love the Lord, our God . . . And honor Him each day . . . Because He is so good to us . . . And kind in every way . . . He fashioned us with lips to smile . . . And eyes to hold a tear . . . And with a heart to harbor love . . . But not to carry fear . . . And all He ever asks of us . . . When skies are bright or dim . . . Is just a little token of . . . The love we have for Him.
